Overall Responsibilities

The Department is responsible for the supervision of federally registered or licensed insurance, trust, loan and investment companies, fraternal benefit societies, and co-operative credit societies. It also supervises employer-sponsored pension plans that are subject to the Pension Benefits Standards Act. These are plans related to employment under federal jurisdiction, or to work, an undertaking, or business of a local or private nature in the Yukon Territory or the Northwest Territories.

The Department is responsible for the provision of extensive actuarial services in connection with the Canada Pension Plan. It is responsible for providing actuarial advice to Revenue Canada as required by Section 20(1)(s) of the Income Tax Act with respect to funding of actuarial deficiencies under pension plans approved for income tax purposes. It also provides actuarial advice to Revenue Canada with respect to maximum tax actuarial reserves of life insurance companies and fraternal benefit societies. In addition, the Department provides services and advice concerning actuarial aspects of programs administered or proposed by other departments and in particular provides the extensive required actuarial services in connection with the valuation, administration and planning of all other government insurance and pension programs, except Unemployment Insurance and Government Annuities.

Laws and Regulations

The Department administers the following Acts:

- Canadian and British Insurance Companies Act
- Foreign Insurance Companies Act
- Trust Companies Act
- Loan Companies Act
- Co-operative Credit Associations Act
- Investment Companies Act
- Pension Benefits Standards Act
- Civil Service Insurance Act
- Part I, Excise Tax Act

Major Publications

Reports of the Superintendent of Insurance for Canada:

- Property and Casualty Insurance Companies
- Life Insurance Companies and Fraternal Benefit Societies
- Trust and Loan Companies
- Co-operative Credit Associations

Reports contain information on the financial condition and affairs of supervised companies. Reports are available in Canada through authorized bookstore agents of Supply and Services Canada and other bookstores, or by mail from the Canadian Government Publishing Centre, Supply and Services Canada, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada, K1A 0S9.

Major Data Sources

The financial data, from which the information in the reports referred to above is prepared, is available to the public via computer media access.

Data on the results of at least the three most recent years of operation can be obtained either through the purchase of computer tapes or by the direct access of the data through the facilities of I.P. Sharp Associates Limited time-sharing system. The data bank is updated annually, about the middle of July, to include the results of operations for the year ending the previous December 31.

Operations Branch

This activity involves the supervision of companies, including periodic on-site examination of books and records of federally registered or licensed insurance, trust, loan and investment companies, fraternal benefit societies and co-operative credit societies; as well as supervision of employer pension plans relative to employment under federal jurisdiction.

Examinations, other technical services and advice are provided to the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation and, by agreement, similar service is provided to certain provincial jurisdictions concerning provincially incorporated companies. As part of the examination program, reviews are made of the corporate income tax returns of insurance companies, and reports are made to Revenue Canada on any significant findings.

Actuarial Branch

This branch provides actuarial services and advice to other government departments and performs extensive actuarial services in the valuation of government insurance and pension programs.

Finance and Administration Branch

This branch administers the Civil Service Insurance Act and Part I of the Excise Tax Act. Under the Civil Service Insurance Act, life insurance was made available by the government to public servants on

Background

The International Development Research Centre (IDRC) was established by the Parliament of Canada in 1970 as an autonomous public corporation to stimulate and support research for the benefit of developing countries. Research supported by the Centre is directed at adapting and applying science and technology in fields that directly affect the day-to-day lives of people; for example, agriculture, nutrition, education, health services, the effect of technological change on traditional society, population, tropical diseases and water supplies.

The great majority of IDRC-supported projects are aimed at improving the quality of life in the rural areas of developing countries. Three-quarters of the people live in these areas, yet they are usually the last to benefit from the advances of science and technology. IDRC also supports programs that will help developing regions build both human and institutional capacity for bringing the methods of scientific enquiry to bear on the solution to their own problems.

Building a strong local base for future research is another important objective of most Centre-supported projects. Every effort is made to provide opportunities for both junior and senior researchers to broaden their experience through further specialized study or practical on-the-job training or both.

Laws and Regulations

- International Development Research Centre Act, 1970
- General Bylaw of the IDRC

Overall Responsibilities

The International Development Research Centre initiates, encourages, supports and conducts research into the problems of the developing regions of the world and into the means of applying and adapting scientific, technical and other knowledge to the economic and social advancement of those regions. Its research activities are carried out by five program divisions. A brief description of each division's area of concentration follows.

Organization

The IDRC's headquarters are in Ottawa, where it has an international staff. Regional offices in Asia (Singapore and New Delhi), East Africa (Nairobi), West Africa (Dakar), Latin America (Bogota) and the Middle East (Cairo) link Ottawa with the researchers and policy makers of the developing countries, encourage and assist the development of research proposals, and monitor ongoing projects within their regions.

The IDRC's 21-member Board of Governors is appointed by the Canadian government. Under the International Development Research Centre Act, the chairman, vice chairman, and nine other governors must be Canadian citizens; the other ten are non-Canadians. In 1984, six non-Canadian governors were from developing countries.

The president of the Centre holds the rank of deputy minister and is responsible to Parliament through the Minister designated for that purpose by the Governor-in-Council (currently the Secretary of State for External Affairs). He or she is assisted in the Centre's operations by a management committee composed of all officers appointed by the Board of Governors and a president's committee composed of the four vice-presidents.

Agriculture, Food and Nutrition Sciences Division

This division's emphasis is on crops, farming systems, and reforestation in arid and semi-arid lands. It also supports research on food crops that in the past have been neglected, such as root crops, food legumes, and oilseeds; agro-forestry, the combination of trees with food crops; multiple cropping systems; improvement of pasture lands; use of agricultural wastes and by-products in animal feed; fish farming and shellfish culture; post-production systems of protection, processing, and distribution of cereal grains, root crops, legumes, fish, fruits, and vegetables; and the needs of the rural family.

Information Sciences Division

This division co-operates with United Nations agencies to establish worldwide information systems (for agricultural sciences and population policy) and assist developing countries to participate in such systems. It also supports the creation of specialized information centres on subjects of interest for development (e.g., particular crops, irrigation technology and sanitation for rural areas); improvement of industrial extension services; development-related communications research; improvement of library services; and provides an internal library and computerized information service to IDRC and the Canadian development community.

Health Sciences Division

This division concentrates its support on five program areas: biological and environmental control of some major tropical diseases; techniques to improve water supply systems and sanitation in rural areas and peripheral urban squatter settlements; safer and more effective methods of fertility regulation; evaluation of the rural health care delivery system; and occupational health.

Social Sciences Division

This division concentrates on research to ease the process of modernization and change, especially in rural areas; formation of appropriate science and technology policies; investigation of the effectiveness of traditional and non-traditional education systems; studies of the determinants of population change and its effects on social and economic development; and research leading to more efficient management of development activities.

Co-operative Programs Division

This division was established in 1980 in response to the need for greater access to research expressed by the developing countries at the United Nations Conference on Science and Technology for Development. The main aim of this program is to promote collaboration between research groups in the developing countries and their counterparts in the Canadian scientific community, whether academic, governmental or private. By providing increased opportunities for developing country researchers to work with Canadian research institutions, the program will strengthen the scientific and technological capacity of the participating third world institutions. By establishing channels of communication among scientists, it is designed to improve the transfer of research results.

Communications Division

The Centre has always placed considerable importance on the publication and dissemination of research results. The Centre's Communications Division produces a wide range of technical and scientific materials for worldwide distribution, particularly in the developing countries. It also produces more general materials to inform the public about the work of the Centre. Catalogues of all current IDRC publications and films are available on request.

All of the activities of the IDRC are supported by the services of the Office of the Secretary and General Counsel, the Office of the Comptroller General and Treasurer, the Office of the Director of Human Resources, and the Office of the Director of Planning and Evaluation.

General Information

The Public Affairs Unit of the Communications Division receives enquiries from the public for information about the IDRC and general development issues. The library and computerized information service respond to the more specific information needs of Centre staff and the larger Canadian development community. For general information, please contact

Agriculture, Food and Nutrition Sciences Division

This division is responsible for encouraging and supporting research projects for the benefit of rural peoples in the third world. The semi-arid regions of the developing world are the principal concern of much of the division's research support. It has emphasized the importance of a systematic approach to research, and it stresses the need both to consult and co-operate with the people whom the research is intended to benefit.

Information Sciences Division

The main thrust of this division is to make grants for the establishment of better information systems, tools and services to meet the needs of scientists, technologists and officials in the developing countries. In its support for information projects in such fields as agriculture, health, population, education, and economic planning the division is closely involved in the work of the Centre's other four program divisions. In addition to its research program area the division also maintains the Centre's library, whose collection is available to the public; a MINISIS computer group; and a small micrographics unit.

Health Sciences Division

The overall goal of this division is to help the developing nations to provide a better standard of health for their people. It concentrates on areas where it is felt that project funds will provide the maximum impact and help stimulate local research capability. The division maintains worldwide links with other international agencies to ensure that its research results are shared. It also participates in major international research efforts with organizations such as the United Nations Development Program (UNDP), World Bank and World Health Organization (WHO).

Social Sciences Division

The Centre is fundamentally concerned with supporting research aimed at better meeting people's essential needs, particularly in the rural areas of developing countries. In the broadest terms, the role of this division is to help societies gain, through research, a deeper understanding of the processes of development and the effects of these processes on people and social institutions. As such understanding grows, problems and solutions can be more clearly identified, and effective policies formulated to contain them.

Co-operative Programs Division

The main concern of this division is the promotion of research collaboration between research groups in Canada and in the developing world. It offers support for co-operative research in any subject area whose importance to developing countries is established and in which Canadian expertise is recognized.

OTTAWA, ONTARIO
K1A 0H8

Background

The Department of Justice was created by the Department of Justice Act, passed at the first session of Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, and assented to on May 22, 1868. This Act outlined the responsibilities of the Minister of Justice and the Attorney General of Canada and, with a few exceptions, these responsibilities have remained substantially unchanged.

Overall Responsibilities

The work of the Department may be described as consisting of litigation, the provision of legal advice and opinions to the federal government of Canada on a wide range of matters, and the drafting of legislation, contracts and other legal documents. The Department is also concerned with the legal aspects of developing government policy, and prepares or reviews recommendations for reform of the law. To carry out these responsibilities, the Department uses federal statutes and regulations.

In addition, contributions are made to provide financial assistance to organizations conducting studies and legal research, and to other law-related programs. A limited number of grants are made in connection with legal education, and cost-sharing agreements are entered into with provincial governments in connection with Compensation of Victims of Violent Crimes, Legal Aid in criminal cases, Unified Family Court pilot projects, and Native Courtworker Programs. The role of the Federal Department of Justice does not include the provision of legal services or advice to members of the public.

Regional Offices

The headquarters of the Department is located in Ottawa. There are ten regional offices, in Vancouver, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montréal, Halifax, Charlottetown, Yellowknife and Whitehorse.

Laws and Regulations

As the Department of Justice provides legal services to all departments of the federal government, it is necessarily concerned, from time to time, with all federal and provincial statutes. Specifically, the Department administers, in whole or in part, the following statutes:

- Access to Information Act (SC 1980-81-82-83 c.111 'Schedule I')
- Annulment of Marriages (Ontario) Act (RSC 1970 c.A-14)
- Anti-Inflation Act (SC 1974-75-76 c.75)
- Bills of Lading Act (RSC 1970 c.B-6)
- Canada Evidence Act (RSC 1970 c.E-10)
- Canada Prize Act (RSC 1970 c.P-24)
- Canadian Bill of Rights (SC 1960 c.44)
- Canadian Human Rights Act (SC 1976-77 c.33)
- Criminal Code (RSC 1970 c.C-34)
- Crown Liability Act (RSC 1970 c.C-38)
- Department of Justice Act (RSC 1970 c.J-2)
- Divorce Act (RSC 1970 c.D-8)
- Escheats Act (RSC 1970 c.E-7)
- Extradition Act (RSC 1970 c.E-21)
- Federal Court Act (RSC 1970 '2nd Suppl.' c.10)
- Food and Drugs Act (RSC 1970 c.F-27)
- Foreign Enlistment Act (RSC 1970 c.F-29)
- Fugitive Offenders Act (RSC 1970 c.F-32)

- Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act (SC 1980-81-82-83 c.100)
- Identification of Criminals Act (RSC 1970 c.I-1)
- Interpretation Act (RSC 1970 c.I-23)
- Judges Act (RSC 1970 c.J-1)
- Law Reform Commission Act (RSC 1970 '1st Suppl.' c.23)
- Lord's Day Act (RSC 1970 c.L-13)
- Marriage Act (RSC 1970 c.M-5)
- Narcotic Control Act (RSC 1970 c.N-1)
- Official Secrets Act (RSC 1970 c.O-3)
- Permanent Court of International Justice Act (SC 1921 c.46)
- Postal Services Interruption Relief Act (RSC 1970 c.P-15)
- Privacy Act (SC 1980-81-82-83 c.111 'Schedule II')
- State Immunity Act (SC 1980-81-82-83 c.95)
- Statute Revision Act (SC 1974-75-76 c.20)
- Statutory Instruments Act (SC 1970-71-72 c.38)
- Supreme Court Act (RSC 1970 c.S-19)
- Tax Court of Canada Act (SC 1980-81-82-83 c.158)

Departmental Secretariat

The secretariat provides essential support services to the deputy minister, ensures appropriate communication and liaison on policy and operational issues among the deputy minister, the Minister and the Department, co-ordinates the Department's involvement with the various Cabinet and Parliamentary processes, and is responsible for the development and assembling of departmental statements of policy and procedures.

Bureau of Program Evaluation and Internal Audit

This bureau undertakes evaluation and audit studies of the full range of departmental operations, ensuring their continued relevance and positive impact on society, and examines methods of improving operational performance and the adequacy of controls to ensure the appropriate expenditure of public funds.

Corporate Planning

This section is responsible for the development, implementation and operation of a corporate management system for the Department, as well as the co-ordination of a management information system.

Communications and Public Affairs

This section plans, develops and implements the Department's communications policy, supports and assists in the development of communications goals and objectives; and manages and co-ordinates programs and activities relating to public information and public affairs.

Legal Services Branch

In the National Capital Region, legal service units of the federal Department of Justice exist within the organization and on the premises of most government departments or portions of the public service. These units provide legal services to those departments and agencies. In addition, the following sections form part of the departmental Legal Services Branch:

Property Law Section

This section provides specialized legal advice on property matters, including the purchase and expropriation of land on behalf of the Crown.

Commercial Law Section

This section provides a focus for commercial law activities within the Department, including the provision of expertise to departmental legal service units.

Information Law and Privacy Section

This section deals with a wide range of legal issues relating to information held by the government and is a centre of expertise in respect of access to information, privacy legislation and related areas.

Public Law Branch

Constitutional and International Law Section

This section advises the federal government on constitutional law matters and plays a vital role in the constitutional law process, as well as being active in public and private international law matters.

Advisory and Administrative Law Section

This section is concerned with areas of law relating to the machinery and operation of government and provides legal opinions requested by other departments and agencies of the federal government.

Human Rights Law Section

This section gives legal opinions on the interpretation and application of federal legislation having human rights implications, and reviews all federal laws, policies and practices to ensure compliance with the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

Policy Planning and Development Branch

Policy Planning and Criminal Law Amendments Section

This section identifies and analyses emerging legal issues of national significance and develops policies designed to address these issues. It reviews recommendations of the Law Reform Commission, and also proposes amendments to specific federal statutes.

Programs and Law Information Development Section

This section is responsible for implementing the Department's policy objectives through programs and other initiatives.

Research and Statistics Section

This section is responsible for defining, undertaking, and overseeing the conduct of all policy-related socio-legal research on behalf of the Department. It also monitors and assesses programs in the justice area.

Legislative Programming Branch

Legislation Section

This section is responsible for the drafting of all government legislation; examines proposed legislation as required under the Canadian Bill of Rights; oversees the printing of the sessional volume of statutes, Part III of the Canada Gazette and prepares the Tables of Public Statutes.

Privy Council Office Legal Section

This section functions in regard to the Legislative Programming Branch's responsibilities under the Statutory Instruments Act. Counsel in the section also serve as legal advisors to officers of the Privy Council Office and in particular to the Assistant Clerk of the House of Commons responsible for Orders-in-Council.

Statute Revision Commission

This section is engaged in the revision, consolidation and indexing of federal laws and regulations and prepares administrative consolidations of federal laws.

Central Divorce Registry

This registry, while a part of the Administration Branch, is the only element of that branch which does not provide direct support services to the rest of the Department. It administers a computerized register for all petitions for divorce filed in Canada, with the principal objective of ensuring that courts in different parts of the country are not dealing with the same matter concurrently.

The following units support the Attorney General function:

Criminal Law Branch

Criminal Prosecutions Section

This section is responsible for prosecution of infractions under federal statutes (other than the Criminal Code and the Lord's Day Act, over which the provincial Attorneys General exercise prosecutorial authority), and related matters including the implementation of Canada's obligations under the Extradition Act and the Fugitive Offenders Act. The section also reviews applications under the Criminal Code for the mercy of the Crown by or on behalf of persons who have been convicted in proceedings by indictment or who have been sentenced to preventive detention, and makes recommendations to the Minister as to their disposition.

Tax Litigation Branch

Tax Litigation Section

This section acts in all civil litigation involving tax matters; offers related legal advice to the government, particularly to the Department of National Revenue, and conducts all appeals arising under the Income Tax Act.

Civil Litigation Branch

Civil Litigation and Real Property Law (Québec) Section

This section handles litigation for or against the Crown arising out of the Province of Québec.

Civil Litigation (Common Law) Section

This section handles litigation for or against the Crown which arises everywhere in Canada except out of the province of Québec.

Admiralty and Maritime Law Branch

This branch is responsible for admiralty litigation, maritime legislation, maritime commercial law, marine casualty investigations and marine international law.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR

Chapter 54

DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR

DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR

Background

The Department of Labour (Labour Canada) was established in 1900 under the Conciliation Act. It now operates under the Department of Labour Act. Since its inception, Labour Canada has been closely involved in many of the social and economic changes that shaped the first part of the twentieth century. It has seen the country emerge from a basically agricultural economy to an industrial nation of urban communities employing 94 per cent of the work force. The increasing complexities of labour markets during this time have resulted in substantial demands on governments in general, and labour ministries in particular.

Laws and Regulations

The Minister is responsible for:

- Canada Labour Code (R.S.C. 1970, C.L-1) - Part III (Labour Standards) - Part IV (Safety of Employees) - Part V (Industrial Relations)
- Department of Labour Act (R.S.C. 1970, C.L-2)
- Fair Wages and Hours of Labour Act (R.S.C. 1970, C.L-3)
- Government Employees Compensation Act (R.S.C. 1970, C.G-8)
- Merchant Seamen Compensation Act (R.S.C. 1970, C.M.-11) as amended by R.S.C. 1970, C.19 (2nd Suppl.)
- Labour Adjustment Benefits Act (S.C. 1980-81-82, C.89)

Overall Responsibilities

Legislation administered by the Department includes working conditions such as hours of work, minimum wages, annual vacations, holidays with pay, equal wages, unjust dismissal, group and individual terminations of employment, severance pay, the regulation of fair wages and hours of labour contracts made with the federal government for construction, remodelling, repair or demolition of any work; federal mediation and conciliation services; government employee and merchant seamen compensation; occupational safety and health; and labour adjustment assistance benefits for workers affected by redundancies and layoffs.

Departmental programs are designed to:

- improve worker safety, health and quality of working life in the work environment through enforcement of legislation coupled with research, investigation and advisory services;
- improve the collective bargaining system to maintain smooth, flexible and rapid expansion of this process by improvement of the Department's conciliation, mediation and arbitration services; and
- improve labour-management relations through education, information and consultation to foster trust and understanding in the work place, and replace conflict with co-operation as a means of resolving disputes.

Labour Canada concerns itself directly with employees, employers and unions in enterprises which are national, interprovincial or international in character. This jurisdiction covers interprovincial and international railways, highway transport, telephone, telegraph and cable systems, pipelines, canals, ferries, tunnels and bridges, shipping and shipping services; radio and television broadcasting, including cablevision; air transport and airports; banks; grain elevators, flour and feed mills, feed warehouses and grain seed cleaning plants; and certain Crown corporations.

Generally all other enterprises in the labour field fall within the jurisdiction of provincial or territorial governments.

Organization

The Minister of Labour heads the Department and is responsible to Parliament for all departmental policies and programs. The deputy minister supervises the day-to-day activities of the Department and reports directly to the Minister. All departmental managers report to the deputy minister.

The Merchant Seamen Compensation Board reports directly to the Minister of Labour, while the Canada Labour Relations Board and the Canadian Centre for Occupational Health and Safety report to Parliament through the Minister of Labour.

The federal Mediation and Conciliation Service program, headed by an associate deputy minister, and the Operations and Policy programs, headed by assistant deputy ministers, report directly to the deputy minister of Labour. Administrative Policy and Services, Personnel, and Women's Bureau programs are headed by directors-general and report directly to the deputy minister. In addition, the Communications Directorate and Legal Services (seconded from the Department of Justice) are headed by directors and report to the deputy minister.

Within these programs there are five regional and twenty-five district labour offices. (For more detailed information on these programs and branches, see later sections and classes of records.)

Administrative Policy and Services

Administrative and Library Services supervises several divisions; library services, word processing, records and mail management, accommodation, materiel and property management services.

The Finance Branch handles accounting, allotment control, program forecasts, estimates and budgets.

The Data Processing Branch provides automated systems support for the Department's programs.

The Program Evaluation Branch is accountable for the effective management of the corporate program evaluation and internal audit activities to ensure the effectiveness and efficiency of the departmental programs and administrative systems through the implementation of departmental and Treasury Board policies.

The Planning Branch provides advisory and support services in the development and review of departmental strategic and operational plans and co-ordinates the implementation and operation of the government's Policy and Expenditure Management Systems (PEMS) in the Department.

Communications Directorate

This branch draws public attention to and encourages public support for the Department's programs and services. It is responsible for media relations, audio-visual services, editorial and creative writing services and publishing. It produces the Department's annual report and its newsletter.

Additional information may be obtained from the public relations office, (819) 997-2617.

Personnel

The Personnel Branch is responsible for the Department's personnel relations: human resources, classification, pay, staff relations and employee services. In addition it looks after the Department's official languages plan, language training and the equal opportunity programs.

Women's Bureau

The branch reviews legislation, programs and policies on the employment of women and recommends initiatives indicated by socio-economic developments which affect women in the workplace. It co-operates with federal, provincial and international agencies to improve the situation of women working for pay and conducts in-depth research on relevant current issues. The bureau is the focal point within and outside the Department for information concerning women in the labour force. Promotional activities are carried out to facilitate improvements, support and recognition of women's concerns in the world of paid work.

Merchant Seamen Compensation Board

The Board administers the Merchant Seamen Compensation Act which provides worker's compensation coverage for seamen who are employed on vessels registered in Canada and who are not covered by a provincial Workers' Compensation Act.

Program Planning and Technical Support

The branch carries out specialized research activities and projects pertinent to the resolution of labour management disputes and studies industrial relations implications of government policy initiatives. It provides operational research support to conciliation officers and mediators in the field and headquarters, and directly assists the associate deputy minister in the development of policies. In addition, it analyses developments and trends in industrial relations in Canada, the United States and other countries.

Arbitration Services

The branch processes arbitration requests to the Minister; supplies the Minister with names of independent arbitrators qualified to hear disputes and maintains an extensive, up-to-date nation-wide inventory of arbitrators; records and indexes all arbitrary awards and publishes summaries of more significant decisions in the publication: Arbitration Services Reporter; researches labour legislation, cases, policies and practices related to the grievance dispute settlement process in Canada.

Mediation and Conciliation

The branch provides neutral third-party assistance to labour and management to resolve disputes arising during the negotiation of collective agreements or during the term of an agreement by appointing Conciliation Officers, Conciliation Commissioners or Boards and Mediators under Part V of the Canada Labour Code (Industrial Relations). It also helps improve labour relations between specific parties through the practice of preventive mediation techniques and general labour relations climate through the appointment of Industrial Enquiry Commissions and Task Forces.

POLICY

International Relations Branch

The branch is responsible for the Department's international labour activities including those connected to the International Labour Organization (ILO) and other international bodies of which Canada is a member or in which it has strong interest. It also acts as an intelligence unit generating information and suggestions to appropriate centres in the Department; consults with the provinces on ILO questions; consults with labour and employee organizations on ILO matters; and maintains liaison with the Canada Branch of the ILO.

Social Policy and Federal-Provincial Relations

The branch works toward strengthening consultative efforts between levels of governments and developing new mechanisms, either on a bilateral or multinational basis, to assist in the resolution of problems between federal and provincial governments in the labour field. It also assesses various federal-provincial labour policy issues; arranges federal-provincial labour meetings; provides secretariat services to the Canadian Association of Administrators of Labour Legislation; and analyzes various government initiatives in the social policy field, identifying possible implications for the Department. The branch is involved in interdepartmental meetings on a subject matter basis; holds meetings of Social Development Deputy Ministers; and maintains liaison with Ministry of State for Social Development.

Economics and Industrial Relations Research

The branch provides analytical and advisory services in the area of general and labour economics to strengthen the Department's capacity to understand and predict the influences of economic factors and trends on departmental activities. The work includes research and analysis in wage determination, economic trends and prospects, socio-economic impact analyses of labour standards, minimum wage and structural issues such as productivity. This branch also has policy responsibility for the Labour Adjustment Benefits Program and Industrial and Labour Adjustment Program.

Industrial Relations Information Service

The services are responsible for encouraging and facilitating access to public information by those involved in the collective bargaining process.

Labour Data Branch

The branch collects, processes, publishes and disseminates data on current major collective bargaining settlements, the wage implications of settlements and various provisions in collective agreements; occupational wage rates and certain conditions of employment for most industries; work stoppages due to strikes and lock-outs; and information on labour organizations and union membership. The branch also maintains an extensive library of collective agreements from all jurisdictions in Canada and retains for public viewing copies of non-confidential labour union returns received under the Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act (CALURA).

OPERATIONS

Employment Relations and Conditions of Work

The branch is concerned with the improvement of conditions of work in the federally regulated private sector and the industrial unrest in all of Canada, through changes in Part III (Labour Standards) and Part V (Industrial Relations) of the Canada Labour Code and the development of constructive labour management relations through the promotion of labour education and the quality of working life innovations.

Occupational Safety and Health

The branch develops policies and programs to promote safe and healthy working conditions through the application of Part IV of the Canada Labour Code (Safety of Employees). It also provides industrial safety and occupational engineering services and is responsible for policy on the administration of work injury compensation for federal employees and penitentiary inmates.

Background

As a result of recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor-in-Council, and proclaimed on February 1, 1972. The Act created four pilotage regions with specific Authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four Pilotage Authorities — Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific — are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The Laurentian Pilotage Authority is a Crown corporation established on June 30, 1971, and effective as of February 1, 1972. It is a Schedule C Corporation within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act.

Laws and Regulations

- Pilotage Act and Regulations

Overall Responsibilities

The objectives of the Authority are to establish, operate, maintain and administer, in the interests of safety, an efficient pilotage service within its geographical boundaries. It has jurisdiction in and around the Province of Québec, north of the northern entrance to the St. Lambert Lock, except for the waters of Chaleur Bay south of Cap d'Espoir.

Organization

The Authority's board of directors is appointed by the Governor-in-Council to a maximum of seven members. The chairman is the chief executive officer; the other permanent member is the vice-chairman.

Access Procedures

All formal requests under the Access to Information Act should be directed to

Background

The Law Reform Commission of Canada was established by an Act of Parliament which came into force on June 1, 1971. The original statute provided for a chairman, a vice-chairman, two other full-time commissioners and two part-time commissioners. A subsequent amendment in 1975 eliminated the part-time commissioners in favour of one more full-time commissioner. The present establishment of commissioners comprises five full-time members, one being the President, a title which superseded "Chairman", and one, vice-president.

Laws and Regulations

- Law Reform Commission Act

Overall Responsibilities

The objectives of the Commission are to study and keep under review, on a continuing and systematic basis, the statutes and other laws comprising the laws of Canada with a view to making recommendations for their improvement, modernization and reform, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing: the removal of anachronisms and anomalies in the law; the reflection in and by the law of the distinctive concepts and institutions of the common law and civil law legal systems in Canada and the reconciliation of differences and discrepancies in the expression and application of the law arising out of differences in those concepts and institutions; the elimination of obsolete laws; and the development of new approaches to, and new concepts of the law in keeping with, and responsive to, the changing needs of modern Canadian society and of individual members of that society.

Major Publications

Working Papers

The Commission's working papers contain the results of its research in law on specific topics, together with its tentative recommendations for changes. Its final reports convey to Parliament the Commission's firm proposals for reform, with the reasons for arriving at those conclusions. In addition to these publications it publishes an annual report which contains a listing of all publications currently available. Commission publications are issued free of charge and may be obtained by visiting the Commission at its premises or by telephoning the publications office.

Study Papers

As an introduction to some study topics, the Commission has produced study papers which were given a restricted distribution, and some other research papers which were similarly limited in distribution. These are available at the Commission library.

Library

The Commission's library holds all of the Commission's research papers including those which have had a very limited distribution. It is a working legal library with a public reading room.

Regional Activities

The Commission maintains a small regional office in Montréal, largely devoted to liaison and research in the field of civil law. Records held there are part of the main filing system and are not necessarily complete in themselves.

Chapter 57

MEDICAL RESEARCH COUNCIL

Background

The Medical Research Council is a Crown corporation which became a separate entity in 1969 after some ten years of functioning as a semi-autonomous component of the National Research Council. The Medical Research Council is accountable to Parliament through the Minister of National Health and Welfare.

Overall Responsibilities

According to the Medical Research Council Act, the Council's mandate is to promote and support health sciences research in Canada by funding research carried out primarily in faculties of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy, as well as in affiliated institutions and hospitals. The Council has no laboratories of its own, believing that health sciences research is better carried out in proximity to these medical environments.

Organization

The Council is made up of a president, who is also the executive officer of the Council and whose rank is equivalent to a deputy minister, and 21 other members appointed by the Governor-in-Council, who perform their duties on a part-time and unpaid basis. Members are drawn primarily from the health professions, but the general public is also represented. Council meetings are held three times a year.

The Executive Committee, made up of seven Council members including the president, carries out executive powers and functions under delegation from the Council.

The Medical Research Council also has standing committees to assist it in formulating policies and procedures for planning and priorities, research funding, research personnel, and ethics in experimentation. There are, in addition, approximately 35 committees composed of scientists, to review funding applications and evaluate the scientific merit of projects submitted. Some 350 researchers provide part-time unpaid input into the activities of the standing and review committees and into such related activities as on-site visits.

A 54-member secretariat, made up of full-time employees located in Ottawa and under the direction of the president, provides general services to the Council, the Executive Committee, and all the other committees set up by the Council. This secretariat is subdivided into four organizational units: Programs Branch, Policy and Program Development, Corporate Management, and Public Affairs.

Key Contacts

General information on the Council is provided by the Public Affairs Branch in Ottawa. Contact may be made in person, by telephone, or by writing to the branch, at the following address

President's Office

The Medical Research Council is responsible for administering the Queen Elizabeth II Research Fund and for the initial screening of Canadian candidates for International Research Fellowships offered by the U.S. National Institute of Health.

Queen Elizabeth II Canadian Research Fund

The Queen Elizabeth II Fund to Aid in Research on the Diseases of Children was established by Parliament to commemorate Her Majesty's visit to Canada in 1959. The fund, in an amount of $1 million, was created to provide financial support to individuals or organizations prepared to undertake or to carry on research into the causes, prevention or treatment of diseases of children.

The fund is administered by a board of trustees; the administrative services required are provided by the secretariat of the Medical Research Council.

Programs Branch

This branch manages all Medical Research Council grants, awards, and other programs in accordance with the peer review process, the policy and program framework, other policies and procedures approved by the Council and government policies and directives concerning financial, administrative, and personnel management.

Policy and Program Development Branch

This branch conducts ad hoc and continuing studies in order to provide the president and Council with the information necessary for policy considerations.

Major Equipment Grants

Description: Major equipment grants intended to provide for the purchase of single items of special research equipment costing $10,000 or more, or for the purchase of various items of equipment that cost more than $15,000 in total. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessment; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence.

MER/PRB-025 Formerly Identified as: MRC-40

Maintenance Grants

Description: Maintenance grants made to cover the costs of maintaining facilities that are shared by groups of researchers within a department, faculty, university, or region. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessments; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence.

MER/PRB-030 Formerly Identified as: MRC-50

Medical Research Council Groups

Description: Medical Research Council groups provide full support for teams of accomplished investigators who wish to develop collaborative programs in what appear to be especially productive areas. The members of a group are expected to devote their entire research effort to the program of the group and to be freed of the ordinary responsibilities of a faculty member. Topics: Application of group director and colleagues; executive and Council decisions; administration of the group; general correspondence.

Biotechnology Development Grants

Description: Grants designed primarily to assist in the recruitment of new faculty members with a major interest in applying the recombinant DNA and related techniques to problems directly relevant to the health sciences. Topics: Applications; reviews by external referees; committee assessments; notification and administration of grants; general correspondence.

Research Development Grants

Description: Grants designed to help initiate new and focused research programs which have the potential for impact on treatment and diagnosis, and for which there are requirements that cannot readily be met through other programs. At present, perinatology research is the only subject to which this program applies. Grants are awarded only in situations where there appears to be a definite university intention to establish and maintain a new research program in the subject concerned. Topics: Applications; Council decision; administration of the grant; general correspondence.

General Research Grants

Description: Grants made each year to the dean of each school of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy, to be used for the support of research at the discretion of the dean, except for the stipulation that they not be used for the payment of supplementation of salaries of academic personnel, construction costs or overhead expenses. Topics: Notification of the grant to the dean; financial statement; general correspondence.

Development Grants

Description: Grants designed primarily to assist in recruiting or establishing new faculty members who have the potential for major accomplishments in research. They are intended to provide an impetus for research in those schools of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy where a more vigorous research program is considered by Council to be necessary to support professional education and health care. Topics: Applications of the principal investigator and colleagues; executive and Council decision; administration of grants; general correspondence.

Career Investigators

Description: Originally called the Associateship Program, the Career Investigators program was established in 1956 as a means of providing funds for salaries of a limited number of individuals of outstanding ability and training who made research a full-time career. No new appointments are being made by the Council. Career investigators appointed in 1975 and earlier will continue in their appointment, subject to the terms and conditions under which they accepted the award. Topics: Individual's career investigator application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence.

Medical Research Council Scientists

Description: This program provides salary support for independent investigators of outstanding ability who have shown promise of becoming leaders in their respective fields. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence.

Scholarships

Description: Scholarships provide salary support, for a period not exceeding five years, to a limited number of young health science investigators who show particular promise as independent researchers. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence.

Centennial Fellowships

Description: Fellowships designed for outstanding young persons of distinguished academic standing who hold an M.D., D.D.S., D.V.M., Pharm. D., or Ph.D. degree and who wish to broaden their fields of interest and thus equip themselves for independent work in clinical investigation and interdisciplinary research in the health sciences. Awards are made for one to three years; no more than ten new awards are made in any year. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence.

Fellowships

Description: Fellowships offered in competition to highly qualified candidates with an M.D., D.D.S., D.V.M., Pharm. D., or Ph.D. degree who wish to take full-time research training in the health sciences. Awards are tenable for a specific term to a maximum of three years and may be renewed under certain conditions. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence.

Studentships

Description: Studentships provided in competition to highly qualified graduates with a B.Sc. degree who are undertaking full-time training in research leading to an M.Sc. or Ph.D. degree under the supervision of members of departments of schools of medicine, dentistry, or pharmacy, and under certain circumstances, schools of nursing or physical education. Awards are tenable for a specific term to a maximum of three years and may be renewed. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence.

Summer Scholarships

Description: Scholarships made available to undergraduates in medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy who wish to gain research experience in a health science department during the summer months. Funds are provided to the dean of each faculty of medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy in accordance with a formula based on undergraduate enrolment. Recipients of the awards are selected locally. Topics: Deans' reports; general correspondence.

Biotechnology Training Centre Awards

Description: Awards to support opportunities for training students and post-doctoral fellows in the application of techniques of recombinant DNA and related methods, to a broad range of disciplines and problems. Topics: Applications; committee assessments; notification and administration of awards; general correspondence.

Biotechnology Retraining Awards

Description: Awards to enable established investigators to enhance their own research programs by the application of recombinant DNA strategies. These permit them to spend a year at another laboratory in Canada or abroad in order to gain experience with the relevant techniques. Topics: Applications; committee assessments; notification and administration of awards; general correspondence.

Visiting Scientists Awards

Description: Awards made in limited numbers each year to enable investigators to spend three to 12 months in laboratories other than their own. Proposals may be submitted by the deans of Canadian health science faculties on behalf of foreign scientists, or by Canadian investigators who wish to spend some time in another university in Canada or abroad in order to advance their research. Topics:

Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence.

Visiting Professors

Description: Visiting professorships intended to encourage collaboration and exchange of information among scientists in Canadian universities. Awards are made to the universities on a formula basis, following submission of proposals by the deans of health science faculties. Topics: Individual's application; committee decision; administration of the award; general correspondence.

U.S. National Institute of Health International Research Fellowships

Description: Initial screening of Canadian candidates for International Research Fellowships offered by the U.S. National Institute of Health, for which the Council is responsible. Topics: Individual's application form; general correspondence.

MER/PPD-115 Formerly Identified as: MRC-210

Fields of Research

Description: Information on areas peripheral to medical research for which the Council has some responsibility. Topics: Research in the fields of dentistry; schools of pharmacy; psychology; occupational health and safety; gerontology; surgery and veterinary medicine; space research; mental research; general correspondence.

Research Survey

Description: Information on surveys established by the Council to gather general statistical data on selected aspects of the research community for use by the Council in determining the research requirements of the health science community across Canada. Topics: Graduate students; medical research support; research personnel; research trainees; research costs; health science research funding; academic degrees; fellowships and scholarships from other agencies; tropical and infectious diseases.

NATIONAL CAPITAL COMMISSION

Background

The quality of the urban and regional setting of the nation's capital has been a continuing concern of the Government of Canada since Confederation. In 1899 specific provision was made for a government organization with the mandate to ensure that the capital could adequately fulfil its role as a major national symbol.

The Ottawa Improvement Commission (1899-1927) and the Federal District Commission (1927-58) were the first such agencies. Their most significant accomplishments were the development of the early stages of the National Capital Region's network of parks and parkways.

By the National Capital Act (1958), Parliament established the National Capital Commission (NCC) as a successor to the Federal District Commission to continue developing and improving the National Capital Region. The Region, with the cities of Ottawa and Hull at its centre, is now an area of 4,662 km<sup>2</sup> intersected by the Ottawa, Gatineau and Rideau rivers.

Laws and Regulations

- National Capital Act, 1958

Overall Responsibilities

The basic role of the Commission, as stated in the Act, is to prepare plans for and assist in the development, conservation and improvement of the National Capital Region in order that the nature and character of the seat of the Government of Canada may be in accordance with its national significance. This objective has been further defined by the Government to mean development of the Region so that it will be a fitting symbol of Canada's cultural and linguistic values, an efficient and aesthetically satisfying place in which to carry on the nation's business, and a model of urban planning and development that will benefit other parts of the country and be a source of pride for Canadians.

The National Capital Commission responds to this challenge by maintaining high standards in its traditional areas of activity. These areas include parks, parkways, urban infrastructure, planning, architectural and landscape design, and the management of lands and properties. It administers shared-cost programs with municipalities for roadways, bridges, buildings, parks and utilities. It also has innovative programming in areas of increasing importance such as public, cultural and recreational activities and services to visitors.

Organization

To ensure the national outlook of the NCC, the Act provides for twenty commissioners from across Canada who function as a Board of Directors and who must be appointed by Order-in-Council. The Commission is headed by a chairman who is also its chief executive officer, and with the assistance of a general manager, acts as head of the Commission staff.

The staff of the Commission is organized into six administrative elements, each headed by an Executive Director: a Secretariat, and five branches responsible for Planning, Property, Public Activities, Development, Finance and Administration. These branches are further organized into divisions, headed by directors, to administer the Commission's programs, projects and services. The Commission reports to Parliament through the Minister of Public Works.

General Information

The Commission has traditionally had an open-door policy in its extensive dealings with the public and will continue to provide all possible information on a routine basis. Much information on public, cultural and recreational activities such as guided tours, natural and historical interpretation, heritage and festivals is available through newspapers, periodicals, radio and television as well as posters, brochures and publications.

Background

The role and function of the Department of National Defence, and its principal component, the Canadian Armed Forces, have historically been to ensure the security of Canada and to contribute to the maintenance of world peace. The evolution of the Canadian Armed Forces is thus an ongoing modernization process reacting to ever-changing world conditions and itself changing from time to time to address perceived threats to Canada's security.

Laws and Regulations

The Minister of National Defence is the designated minister for the following Acts of Parliament:

- Canadian Forces Superannuation Act, Revised Statutes of Canada (R.S.C.)
- Defence Services Pension Continuation Act, R.S.C. 1970
- National Defence Act, R.S.C. 1970
- Visiting Forces Act, R.S.C. 1970
- Aeronautics Act, R.S.C. 1970; for matters therein relating to defence; otherwise, the designated minister is the Minister of Transport.

Overall Responsibilities

The basic roles and responsibilities of the Department may be summarized as follows:

- To supplement and support the civilian authorities in maintaining surveillance and preserving control over and security within the national territory of Canada and areas of Canadian jurisdiction; to assist civilian authorities in the event of emergency or disaster; to provide search and rescue services; and to contribute to national development.
- To enhance the security of Canada against military threat by co-operating with the United States in the defence of North America.
- To enhance the security of Canada by co-operating in collective defence measures under the North Atlantic Treaty.
- To promote international stability, both by contributing to peacekeeping activities in co-operation with other members of the international community, and by providing military training assistance to friendly nations.
- To provide effective control, management, and administration of all activities of the Department and the Canadian Armed Forces.
- To provide the services necessary to ensure adequate supply and technical support for the Department and the Canadian Armed Forces.
- To provide all levels of training for the Canadian Armed Forces.
- To maintain and advance Canadian scientific and technological knowledge and analytical capability for defence.

Major Publications

The bilingual publication entitled Defence Canada is published annually by the Department of National Defence. It is designed to provide an overview of current strategic considerations relative to defence planning, and highlight departmental activities during the preceding year.

Register of Information Sources and Manuals by Activity

Because of the wide range of manuals, regulations and orders used by the Department of National Defence to fulfill its functions, it is impracticable to include a complete list of its holdings in this publication. The Department may, on request, provide a list of existing manuals relating to a particular subject or activity.

Access Procedures

The Department of National Defence and the Canadian Armed Forces process formal requests under the Access to Information Act through a central agency. Requests are channelled to the Access to Information Co-ordinator whose staff initiates and monitors the action required to provide a response.

Informal requests from the public and media for information on departmental programs and activities may be directed to any one of the many offices of information listed in the Government of Canada publication Index to Federal Programs and Services. Requests for information may also be directed to National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0K2. Telephone: (613) 992-7147.

Formal requests under the Access to Information Act should be addressed to

Office of the Judge Advocate General

The office provides legal advice to the Department and the Canadian Armed Forces and oversees a system of courts and justice applicable to all members of the Canadian Armed Forces and to civilians subject to the code of service discipline under Section 55 of the National Defence Act. The office also administers and settles damage and injury claims by and against the Department; administers the service estates of all deceased members of the Canadian Armed Forces; and administers the Service Pension Board.

Executive Secretariat Division

The division is responsible for providing and managing administrative services to ensure the effective functioning of the Department in general, and National Defence headquarters in particular. This includes providing departmental administrative support such as library services, records management services, personnel identification services, and National Defence headquarters accommodation management services. The division also provides departmental policy co-ordination and review, and secretarial support for senior management meetings. The director general of this division is the corporate secretary for the Department of National Defence.

NATIONAL ENERGY BOARD

Background

Under the National Energy Board Act of 1959 and subsequent amendments, the Board has two principal responsibilities:

- to regulate specific matters concerning oil, gas and electricity in the public interest, and
- to advise the government on the development and use of energy resources.

The Board, on its own initiative, may hold enquiries into a particular aspect of the energy situation and prepare reports for the government, Parliament, or the general public.

The Board also carries out studies and prepares reports at the request of the Minister.

Overall Responsibilities

The National Energy Board Act requires the Board to take into consideration all relevant matters in considering applications for export authorizations. It must satisfy itself that the quantities of energy do not exceed the surplus remaining, after allowing for reasonably foreseeable Canadian requirements.

The Board grants certificates to construct and operate interprovincial and international oil, gas, and petroleum products pipelines, and international electric power lines. Designated interprovincial electric power lines may, by order of the Governor-in-Council, come under the relevant provisions of the National Energy Board Act. Before a certificate is issued, the Board is required to hold a public hearing. As a result of amendments to the National Energy Board Act in 1983, new expropriation and compensation procedures have been created to govern the establishment of rights-of-way for pipelines and for international and designated interprovincial power lines. These changes provide an opportunity for those with lands which may be adversely affected to present their views at a local public hearing. The Board is then required to take into account the evidence presented before reaching a decision on the acceptability of the proposed detailed routing.

The Board may approve minor additions or modifications to existing pipeline systems without calling a public hearing. These are restricted to sections, branches, and extensions of pipelines less than 40 kilometres in length, and ancillary installations such as tanks, pumps, compressors, meter stations, and communications systems. The Board may also by order authorize the construction and operation of international power lines of a voltage not exceeding 50 kilovolts.

For reasons of safety, environmental protection and the maintenance of other utility services, no pipeline or power line may cross or be crossed by another utility without prior authorization of the Board. If a pipeline is to cross a navigable water or a railway, the Minister of Transport or the Canadian Transport Commission must give permission. Crossings by pipelines or power lines of the facilities of other utilities may only be made with the authorization of the Board after consideration of all the relevant information.

The Board's oil and gas pipeline regulations provide for the safe design, construction, and operation of pipelines under Board jurisdiction. To ensure high standards in the safety of pipeline construction and operation, the Board carries out inspection programs and conducts investigations and reviews of pipeline system performance.

The Board studies the potential environmental impact of the construction and operation of power lines and oil and gas pipelines to ensure that the environment is protected during all phases of a project. It takes into consideration the impact on permafrost terrain; erosion and siltation at water crossings; the impact on wildlife and fish; preservation of archaeological sites; air emissions; noise; and the protection of agricultural soils.

The Board monitors socioeconomic action plans, conducts investigations, and reviews pipeline company performance where warranted. It has also issued guidelines for regional socioeconomic impact assessments of gas or oil pipeline projects.

The Board regulates the tolls and tariffs of pipeline companies under federal jurisdiction, to ensure that the tolls are just and reasonable and not discriminatory.

Under the Energy Administration Act, the Board administers the price of natural gas in interprovincial and export trade.

Under the Northern Pipeline Act, the Board's responsibilities relate mainly to financing and tariffs, approval of pipe specifications, granting of leave to open orders, and regulation of the operation of the Alaska natural gas transportation system.

The Board is a Court of Record. It holds public hearings where applicants and interested persons have full rights of participation in the language of their choice. The Board gives ample notice of the hearings and provides sufficient time for information requests to be answered.

The record of a proceeding is public. The only exception is when an applicant asks that price or contract conditions be kept confidential for competitive reasons, in which case the Board may do so for a limited period of time.

The Board publishes quarterly regulatory agendas which provide advance notice of forthcoming regulatory actions and information on the status of ongoing proceedings. It also publishes information bulletins on its activities and procedures.

When, after a public hearing, the Board decides to grant a certificate for a pipeline or a power line, or issue a licence for the export of natural gas or electricity, the import of natural gas, or the export of oil, for a period exceeding one year, it reports its decision to the Governor-in-Council through the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources. If a certificate is approved, it is then issued by the Board. In the case of export/import licence applications, those issued by the Board go into effect on approval by the Governor-in-Council. If the Board refuses an application, it is not subject to referral to the Governor-in-Council.

Decisions on tolls and tariffs are made by the Board without reference to the Governor-in-Council.

The Board may review, rescind or change any order or decision made by it, or may hear any application again before deciding upon it. It may also change a certificate or licence issued by it, but no such change is effective until approved by the Governor-in-Council. Parties may apply to the Board requesting that an order or decision be reviewed, or a licence or certificate be amended.

A decision or order of the Board may be appealed to the Federal Court of Appeal, providing the appeal is based upon a point of law or jurisdiction.

The Board does not award costs to participants at its proceedings. However, in the case of detailed route hearings, the Board may establish the appropriate level of compensation to be paid to the landowner for costs associated with participation in the hearing.

Office of the Executive Director

The Executive Director is responsible for the day-to-day management of the Board, the acquisition and allocation of human and financial resources, and the efficiency and effectiveness of Board activities and operations.

Personnel Branch

The branch is responsible for providing advice and service in the areas of personnel administration, official languages and security.

Finance Branch

This branch provides advice and information on all matters pertaining to financial policies and practices. The branch plans, organizes and directs the development and implementation of the financial administration program for the Board, requiring the co-ordination of budgeting, forecasting, accounting, reporting and contracting functions.

Manuals

- Policy and Procedures Manual — Finance

Director General, Pipeline Regulation

The Director General, Pipeline Regulation is responsible for the integration of all staff activities with respect to the regulation of pipelines. This includes the planning and co-ordinating of all staff work affecting the regulation of oil and gas pipelines, and covers the design, construction, operation, safety, and environmental concerns under Part III of the National Energy Board Act, and matters with respect to traffic, tolls, and tariffs under Part IV of the National Energy Board Act.

Financial Regulatory Branch

This branch has the prime responsibility for rates, tolls and tariffs, financial advice, and the audit of petroleum export charges and costs of transportation under specific areas of the National Energy Board Act and the Energy Administration Act. It is also responsible for auditing the accounts of pipeline companies under the Board's jurisdiction and for monitoring the financial performance of pipelines.

Manuals

- Accounting Division Manual

Environment and Right-of-Way Branch

This branch is responsible for the protection of the environment and the administration of land acquisitions for pipelines and international power lines. The branch assesses submissions from concerned landowners regarding the detailed route of those facilities, verifies the accuracy of right-of-way acquisitions, and evaluates the technical requirements related to third-party crossings of pipelines.

Manuals

- An Aid to Effective Environmental Monitoring: The Environmental Issue List
- Environment of Surveillance Manual
- Right-of-Way Group Procedures Manual

Pipelines Engineering and Operations Branch

This branch is principally responsible for pipeline certificates issued under the National Energy Board Act and for the regulation of all pipeline facilities under the Board's jurisdiction with respect to safety matters. The branch is the principal source of advice to the Board on capital and operating costs, engineering, and pipelines.

Manuals

- Leave to Open Applications — procedure
- Procedures and Responsibilities — inspection activities, engineering
- Branch Staff at Construction Sites — training co-ordinator; spill incident reporting; construction progress reports
- Engineering Branch Input and Responsibilities of Assistant Directors in Handling Applications

Support Services Branch

This branch provides administrative co-ordination of matters brought before the standing and hearing panels of the Board. The branch also provides library services, general administrative support services, and information technology services to the Board.

Manuals

- General Guidelines for Processing Hearing Applications

Information Technology Branch

This branch is responsible for computer systems services, word processing support, and data processing support to the Board, including consultative service on computer operations, data management, and program design and development. It also provides an advisory service on the latest information processing techniques and applications to meet the Board's needs.

Office of the Secretary

The Office of the Secretary is the focal point for all formal contact with the Board by regulated companies, industry, and the general public. The office prepares and maintains custody of minutes, statutory documents, and other official Board records. The office also provides media and public relations services and administers the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act.

Manuals

- Introduction to International System of Units

Law Branch

The branch is responsible for providing legal advice to the Board. Counsel represent the Board at public hearings and before the courts.

Gas Branch

This branch is the focal point for all gas and gas product related regulatory activity, including the licensing of gas and gas products exports. The branch also monitors and controls all matters associated with the Board's obligations for the administration of domestic gas pricing under the Energy Administration Act. In addition, the branch plays a supportive role in all other regulatory activity with respect to gas and gas products.

Electric Power Branch

The branch is responsible for electricity export licensing, international power line certification, and regulatory surveillance. The branch prepares supply and demand forecasts for electricity for use in dealing with electrical or other applications, reviews the United States market for electricity, and provides advice to the Board on matters relating to the production, transportation, sale, and exchange of electricity over which the federal government has jurisdiction.

Oil Branch

This branch is responsible for providing advice in the general area of oil-related energy matters, crude oil and petroleum product exports, international oil exchanges, domestic crude oil disposition, questions of oil pricing, markets, processing, distribution, and the short-term balance of supply and demand for feedstocks and oil products.

Director General, Energy Studies

The Director General, Energy Studies, is responsible for the effective co-ordination and synthesis of all matters relating to energy demand, supply, and surplus, in addition to coordinating major energy studies and enquiries respecting energy supply, demand and surplus under Part II of National Energy Board Act.

Economics Branch

This branch advises the Board on economic and socioeconomic matters. Among other duties, the branch analyses the impact of proposed energy projects on the economy of Canada and its regions. It also considers the socioeconomic impact of such projects and assesses the extent to which Canadians will have an opportunity to participate in projects. The branch also maintains an energy statistics unit.

Energy Supply Branch

This branch is responsible for advising the Board on matters of oil and gas exploration, drilling, and production. It forecasts trends in oil and gas supply from conventional, oil sands, synthetic, and frontier sources and it investigates the potential of new energy sources such as enhanced oil recovery, non-conventional gas, alcohols, coal conversion products, biomass, and solar energy. The branch independently calculates the reserves and productive capacity of oil and gas. The Calgary office of this branch is engaged in the calculation of reserves of individual oil and gas pools.

Background

The National Film Board (NFB) was established by an Act of Parliament passed on May 2, 1939, and revised in 1950. Its mandate is to produce and distribute and to promote the production and distribution of Canadian film and video. The NFB reports to the Minister of Communications.

Overall Responsibilities

The NFB's purpose is to make films which are distinctively Canadian, reflect the bilingual, multi-cultural and regional realities of this country, and answer the social and cultural needs of its citizens. NFB productions are distributed on film and videocassette and are available through Canadian theatres, library collections and the NFB's own Audio-Visual Centres. NFB films are seen on broadcast and specialized television across the country. The NFB also operates an International Commercial Service to sell and market its films abroad. Films are available through NFB offices and Canadian diplomatic missions in 80 countries abroad.

NFB films are produced by two distinct English and French program branches, which are also responsible for marketing their films to their respective audiences. The NFB began to decentralize its production studios in the early 1970s and the ensuing years have seen production studios develop in Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Moncton, and Halifax as well as in Montréal. There is a permanent creative staff in Montréal, though a large proportion of NFB films are made by freelance independent filmmakers. The NFB is a totally integrated production house, with an average annual production of approximately 100 original films and 50 versions and adaptations of existing films. The NFB produces versions of its films in up to 60 different languages for foreign distribution. The Technical Services Division also undertakes advanced technical research and development to advance the art and technology of film and video.

The NFB is also mandated to play an active role training people in all aspects of filmmaking.

Organization

The board of trustees of the National Film Board is composed of the Canadian Government Film Commissioner — who is both the chairperson and chief executive officer of the NFB — and eight other members appointed by the Governor-in-Council, three of whom are selected from the Public Service of Canada or the Canadian Armed Forces and five from the public at large. The NFB is managed by the Canadian Government Film Commissioner and by the directors of the English Programming Branch, French Programming Branch, Services Division, Administration, Finance and Personnel Division, Planning Directorate and Communication Services.

The head office of the NFB is in Ottawa, while its operational headquarters are located in Montréal.

Office of the Commissioner

The Government Film Commissioner advises the Minister and the government on matters relating to film and video. He/she is chairperson of the Board of Trustees, and chief executive officer of the NFB. The Commissioner is responsible for all programming, administrative and policy decisions as well as the day to day operations and management of the NFB. The Commissioner is supported by an executive assistant and secretary to the board and senior secretaries in Ottawa and Montréal. The internal auditor and director of Communication Services report to the Commissioner.

Administration, Finance and Personnel Division

This division provides for overall management of NFB resources, financial planning and personnel management and counsel; it also administers data processing services and prepares financial statements.

Planning Directorate

The Planning Directorate assures that institutional objectives are established, monitored and evaluated; it also undertakes research to assist management in policy and programming decisions.

Communications Services

Communications Services operates programs for NFB staff, public and media; prepares speeches and documents for the Government Film Commissioner, develops the corporate image of the NFB; handles corporate public relations through special projects, public and media visits to the Film Board, and with the media; and is responsible for the NFB's participation in festivals, retrospectives and other film events. It also oversees NFB participation in conferences and corporate projects (internal and external corporate communications), and co-ordinates minutes of board meetings, speeches, articles, policy and planning decision papers, and presentations to Parliamentary committees.

English Programming Branch

This branch produces and markets English language films and videos in documentary, animation and fiction forms to reach audiences in Canada and abroad on relevant social and cultural issues. These programs are produced in five studios in Montréal, and one each in Halifax, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. English production uses permanent staff and freelance filmmakers, and sometimes co-produces with outside organizations. The International Commercial Service, which is administered by the English Program Branch, ensures sales of NFB productions in French and English outside Canada.

French Programming Branch

This branch produces and markets films and videos in French to reach audiences in Canada and abroad on social and cultural issues, and is responsible for marketing its productions in Canada. The branch produces documentaries, fiction, and animation from its headquarters in Montréal and from regional production centres in Moncton, Toronto and Winnipeg. French production uses permanent staff and freelancers to produce its films.

Services Division

This division provides technical production services and a versions service for the programming branches, and operates a technical research and development section. It is also responsible for distribution services, including the delivery of prints and operation of libraries and film deposits in NFB audio-visual centres in Canada.

Background

The Department of National Health and Welfare was established in 1944 by the Department of National Health and Welfare Act for the purpose of promoting and preserving the health, social security and social welfare of the people of Canada over which Parliament has jurisdiction. The new Department administered the National Health Section of the Department of Pensions and National Health and the Family Allowances Act which came into force on July 1, 1945. Since then, advances in the fields of health, social security and social welfare have led to the introduction of a number of new and extensive programs. Each year the federal government devotes about one-third of its total budget to the Department. Most of these funds are returned to the people of Canada through departmental programs.

The Department's mandate also includes the Fitness and Amateur Sport Program and the participation of the Government of Canada in the 1988 Winter Olympics which were transferred to the Minister of National Health and Welfare in October 1982.

Overall Responsibilities

Departmental health programs are designed to reduce illness and untimely death associated with hazards in the environment, both man-made and natural; to protect and enhance the health of those Canadians whose care, by legislation or custom, is the responsibility of the Department; and to develop, promote and support measures designed to preserve and improve the health of Canadians.

Departmental welfare programs are designed to maintain and improve the income security and the social well-being of Canadians. Fitness and Amateur Sport programs are designed to promote, encourage and develop fitness and amateur sport in Canada.

Organization

The Minister of National Health and Welfare is the head of the Department. The Minister of State, Fitness and Amateur Sport, is responsible for the Fitness and Amateur Sport Program and the participation of the Government of Canada in the 1988 Winter Olympics.

The Department is headed by the Deputy Minister of National Health and Welfare who, with the associate deputy minister, is supported by the heads of the staff, line and administrative branches and directorates, by the Special Advisor, Policy Development, and by the Principal Nursing Officer.

The two staff branches, which are headed by assistant deputy ministers, are the Intergovernmental and International Affairs Branch and the Policy, Planning and Information Branch. Both report to the associate deputy minister.

Six branches, each headed by an assistant deputy minister, administer the departmental operational programs. These are the Health Protection, Medical Services, Health Services and Promotion, Income Security Programs, Social Services Programs and Fitness and Amateur Sport branches. The Health Services and Promotion Branch and the Social Services Programs Branch report to the associate deputy minister.

Departmental management control and administration are carried out by the Corporate Management Practices Branch headed by an assistant deputy minister; the Personnel Administration Branch, headed by a director general, and the Internal Audit and Public Affairs Directorates, which report directly to the deputy minister.

General Information

At the branch level, the Access to Information Co-ordinators make or endorse initial decisions on applications and service to the public. Branch heads decide on the disclosure of information under their control which may be subject to exemptions prescribed in the Act or to third party notification.

At the corporate level, the Director, Access to Information, directs and oversees the implementation of departmental policies and administrative guidelines on the application of the Act throughout the Department, co-ordinates access requests, and is responsible for the settlement of all complaints on issues having to do with applications and service to the public. The deputy minister makes final settlement of complaints or legal actions on disclosure of departmental information.

Complaints and enquiries on the administration of the Act in the Department should be addressed to the Director, Access to Information at the first address given under Access Procedures.

STAFF BRANCHES

Deputy Minister

Overall responsibility for the direction and the operations of the Department rests with the deputy minister, who is its permanent head. The deputy minister and the associate deputy minister are the senior advisors to the Minister of National Health and Welfare on all health and welfare matters and serve on the committee of deputy ministers advising the Minister of State for Social Development on the operation of all social development programs of the federal government.

Special Advisor, Policy Development

The Special Advisor, Policy Development, provides advice to the deputy minister, to senior management and to other staff members on program evaluation co-ordination, privacy co-ordination, the status of women, regulatory reform liaison, social policy development and access to information, and provides general direction to the Directorate of Program Evaluation, the Directorate of the Status of Women and the Directorate of Access to Information.

Principal Nursing Officer

The principal nursing officer advises the deputy minister on all matters related to nursing in the Department, as well as nationally and internationally.

The Intergovernmental and International Affairs Branch

The branch has responsibility for the co-ordination, monitoring, and where required, initiation of departmental policies and strategies on international and federal-provincial-territorial issues, in the health, social security and social affairs fields, where those issues affect more than one branch or require interdepartmental consultation. It is composed of three organizational units: the International Affairs Directorate, the Federal-Provincial and Interdepartmental Relations Directorate, and the Management Information Directorate.

Policy, Planning and Information Branch

The branch undertakes research on social policy issues, analyzes proposed initiatives in the health and welfare field, and collects, collates and disseminates information on social programs and related socioeconomic conditions in support of the planning and development of departmental policies and programs. In addition, the branch provides financial assistance to the provinces to support development of management information systems for provincial welfare programs.

The branch is composed of two major directorates — Policy Resources Directorate and Information Systems Directorate — and a number of smaller specialist units, all reporting to the assistant deputy minister for the branch.

General information on the operation of the branch and its publications is available from the Public Affairs Directorate.

National Council of Welfare

The National Council of Welfare was established by the Government Organization Act, 1969 as a citizens' advisory body to the Minister of National Health and Welfare. Its mandate is to advise the Minister on matters pertaining to welfare.

The Council consists of 21 members, drawn from across Canada and appointed by the Governor-in-Council. All are private citizens and serve in their personal capacities rather than as representatives of organizations or agencies.

The publications of the Council are available in English and French. For copies please write to the National Council of Welfare, Brooke Claxton Building, Tunney's Pasture, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0K9.

National Advisory Council on Aging

The 18-member National Advisory Council on Aging is a citizens' advisory body charged with counselling the Minister of National Health and Welfare on matters relating to the quality of life of Canada's aging population. In addition to advising on programs and policies, the Council reviews needs and problems of older people and recommends remedial action; consults with institutions and groups involved in aging or representing the aged; publishes reports; helps in information dissemination; and stimulates public discussion on aging.

The publications of the Council can be obtained free of charge in both official languages by writing to the National Advisory Council on Aging, Room 1264, Jeanne Mance Building, Tunney's Pasture, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0K9.

The Government of Canada Office for the 1988 Olympic Winter Games

The office is responsible for co-ordinating all federal activities in support of the 1988 Olympic Winter Games and for liaison and negotiation with the key bodies associated with the organization of the Games.

PROGRAM BRANCHES

Of the six program branches which administer the departmental operational programs, three pertain to health programs, two to welfare programs and one to fitness and amateur sport.

HEALTH PROTECTION BRANCH

The branch was formed in 1972 through the amalgamation of the Food and Drug Directorate with the Environmental Health Directorate, the Canadian Communicable Disease Centre, the Epidemiology Division, and the Nutrition Division.

The responsibility of the branch is to reduce illness and untimely deaths of Canadians associated with hazards in the environment, both man-made and natural. Specific programs protect the public from any present or potential health hazards in foods, drugs for humans and animals, cosmetics, medical devices, radiation-emitting devices and environmental contaminants. Other programs carry out disease surveillance services, standardize laboratory methods and control psychoactive and psychotropic drugs and tobacco. There is close co-operation and assistance between the federal and provincial governments and liaison with international governments and agencies.

The assistant deputy minister of the branch, supported by Management Processes and by Finance and Administration, administers five operational directorates: the Food Directorate, the Drugs Directorate, the Laboratory Centre for Disease Control, the Environmental Health Directorate and the Field Operations Directorate. Regional offices of the Field Operations Directorate are located in the Atlantic, Québec, Ontario, Central and Western regions.

The Health Protection Branch publishes information for the public, industry and specific groups and also warns of dangers through the media. Branch information for the public may be obtained from the offices of the assistant deputy minister and the regional directors, as follows:

Food Directorate

The directorate conducts programs to ensure the safety and nutritional value of food. These include laboratory research, the development and standardization of analytical methods for use by regional laboratories and the development of standards and regulations based on the assessment of monitoring and surveillance data.

Manuals

- Analytical Methods for the Regulatory Analysis of Foods

EDP Systems

- RISK 81 — provides various statistical information about low dose extrapolation of quantal response toxicity data. (NHW/FDI-110)
- Nutritional Content of Menus — describes the nutritional content of seven-day menus defined by the users, with regard to the minimum acceptable intake of nutrients. (NHW/FDI-120)

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL HEALTH AND WELFARE

- Canadian Nutrient File — obtains and maintains current information on nutrients found in foods available in Canada. (NHW/FDI-120)

Drugs Directorate

The directorate is engaged in a wide spectrum of regulatory and research programs aimed at promoting the judicious use of drugs as well as providing assurance to Canadians that the drugs sold in Canada are safe and effective and that cosmetics do not pose safety hazards.

on drug and food samples collected and analyzed in support of the food and drug inspection program. (NHW/FOD-215)

- Food Plant Inspection Reporting System — contains data compiled from inspections. (NHW/FOD-215)
- Consumers Product Complaint Reporting System (NHW/FOD-215)
- Manufacturers Table — compiles basic information on food (and eventually drug) manufacturers. (NHW/FOD-215)

MEDICAL SERVICES BRANCH

This branch was formed in 1962 from formerly independent services within the Department. These were Indian Health, Quarantine, Sick Mariners, Immigration Services, Civil Aviation Medicine, and Public Service Health.

The objective of the branch is to promote, improve and preserve the health of Canadian citizens whose care, by legislation or custom, is the responsibility of the Department. These clients include the status Indians and Inuit, all residents of the Yukon and Northwest Territories, federal public servants, immigrants, refugees and temporary visitors, international travellers, civil aviation personnel, the physically handicapped and disaster victims.

The assistant deputy minister of the Medical Services Branch directs a branch organized on a regional basis, with headquarters in Ottawa. The headquarters organization consists of: Operations and Policy, Planning and Liaison, as well as financial, administrative and personnel units. Medical Services has ten regional directorates: Atlantic, Québec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Pacific, Yukon Territory, Northwest Territories, and the National Capital Region (including Overseas). Within the regions there are approximately 22 zone offices and 450 points of service. The branch is divided into Native Health Services (comprising Indian and Northern Health Services) and Health Advisory Services (comprising the Immigration Medical Service, the Quarantine and Regulatory Service, Public Service Health, Civil Aviation Medicine, Emergency Services and Prosthetic Services).

HEALTH SERVICES AND PROMOTION BRANCH

The branch was formed in 1978 when the previous Health Programs Branch, consisting of the Health Services, Health Resources and Extramural Research Programs directorates, was joined by the Non-Medical Use of Drugs and Nutrition Units from the Health Protection Branch, and Family Planning from the Social Service Programs Branch.

The responsibilities of the branch are to develop, promote and support measures designed to preserve and improve the health of Canadians by encouraging and assisting them to adopt a way of life that enhances their physical, mental and social well-being, and to provide leadership and co-ordination in assisting the provinces and territories to bring their health services to, and maintain them at, national standards, including the administration of federal contributions to the provinces with respect to hospital insurance, medical care and extended health and care services programs.

The assistant deputy minister of the Health Services and Promotion Branch directs a Planning and Management Services Directorate, four operational directorates and a secretariat: the Health Services Directorate, the Health Promotion Directorate, which maintains regional offices in the Atlantic, Québec, Ontario, Prairie and Pacific Regions, the Health Resources Directorate, the Extramural Research Programs Directorate and the Canadian Blood Committee Secretariat.

General information on the operation and programs of the branch may be obtained from the Public Affairs Directorate, Office of the Chief, Branch Administration. As well as the Department Directory of Publications, a Branch Directory of Publications is available.

Health Services Directorate

The directorate develops and implements, in co-operation with provinces, territories and other federal departments, guidelines and standards for health care services and facilities; provides consulting services to provincial governments and other federal departments; provides financial assistance and consulting services to provinces and voluntary health organizations; provides training, supply and distribution requirements of health personnel and manages programs concerned with health technology, institutional and professional health services, health assessment, community, and mental health.

Health Promotion Directorate

The directorate develops and implements programs of health information, education and health promotion. Programs include nutrition, smoking, drugs, alcohol, health risk assessment, women and health, child health, birth planning, school health education, the elderly, and health protection in the work place.

Manuals

- Health Promotion Contributions Program Guide for Applicants — assists applicants in understanding the mandate and the administrative and financial procedures of the program

Extramural Research Programs Directorate

The directorate administers the National Health Research and Development Program (NHRDP) in support of health research, demonstration projects, symposia, workshops and conferences, and health research personnel training and development, in order to provide scientific information of the high quality needed by the Department to fulfil its responsibilities.

INCOME SECURITY PROGRAMS BRANCH

The branch was created in 1975, through the amalgamation of the Canada Pension Plan and the Income Maintenance Programs. The latter was responsible for the administration of the Family Allowances and the Old Age Security which included the Guaranteed Income Supplement and the Spouses Allowance.

The objective of the branch is to maintain and improve the social security of Canadians through the programs it administers. These programs are as follows:

The Canada Pension Plan (CPP) — a compulsory, contributory social insurance program which provides members of the Canadian labor force with a basic level of protection for themselves and their families against the loss of income due to retirement, disability or death.

The Old Age Security Program (OAS) — provides a basic level of income for older Canadians through a basic pension which is supplemented by the income-tested Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS) for pensioners who have little or no income, as well as by an income-tested Spouse's Allowance (SPA) for spouses, ages 60 to 65, of pensioners in receipt of the Guaranteed Income Supplement.

Under the authority of the Old Age Security Act and the Canada Pension Plan, benefit payments are also made to those individuals who are eligible under the terms of international social security agreements concluded with other countries.

The Family Allowances Program (FA) — supplements the income of families with dependent children in order to help meet the additional costs associated with raising children. It also provides for the payment of an allowance to welfare and government agencies and other institutions which maintain children.

The assistant deputy minister, supported by Finance and Administration, administers two major components of the Income Security Programs: the Policy, Liaison and Development and the Programs Operations, each headed by a director general. The former consists of an ongoing legislative review of the Income Security Programs and the development of policies, directives and guidelines for the administration of these programs. The latter operates the programs benefits delivery system.

General information on the programs administered by the Income Security Programs Branch is available from the Public Affairs Directorate, branch headquarters in Ottawa, as well as from the regional offices across Canada.

The Access to Information Act provides accessibility to subject records. These subject documents such as guidelines, directives, policies and procedures are issued and maintained at headquarters in Ottawa. Individuals' files containing personal information are kept in the regions and are accessible under the Privacy Act.

Policy, Liaison and Development

This directorate, through four divisions, is responsible for ongoing Old Age Security, Family Allowances and Canada Pension Plan legislative reviews and updates; for related policy planning and development; for the review and analysis of information programs; and for international liaison for purposes of developing International Social Security Agreements. An additional responsibility is the secretariat service provided to the Canada Pension Plan Advisory Committee.

Policy, Legislation and Planning Division

This division is responsible for providing policy advice and analysis on income security programs for use by senior management and the Minister, for the development of legislative changes to the three Acts administered by the branch (Canada Pension Plan, Old Age Security Act, Family Allowances Act), and for various planning activities related to the branch's overall mandate.

Data Development and Analysis Division

This division is responsible for forecasts of program expenditures; for the development of specialized data banks through survey activities; and for program costs and beneficiary estimates for various policy initiatives.

International Liaison Division

Within the framework of the authority granted by Parliament in the Old Age Security Act and the Canada Pension Plan, this division is responsible for developing, drafting and negotiating social security agreements with other countries and administrative arrangements to implement those agreements. The division also co-ordinates the department's activities related to bringing the agreements into force.

Income Security Programs Development Group

This group has been established to examine the delivery systems of the three programs, to co-ordinate the integration of the programs, and to modernize operations. In a gradual process, over a period of years, this group will oversee changes to equipment, systems and procedures, all designed to improve and streamline service to clientele.

The national Co-ordinator for Income Security Programs Development is responsible for projects and for ensuring the co-ordination and co-operation between this group and Income Security Programs Operations.

Canada Pension Plan Advisory Committee

The committee is an independent body appointed by Order-in-Council. Its role is to review the operation of the Act, the state of the Canada Pension Plan Investment Fund, and the adequacy of coverage and benefits under the Plan. The committee reports its findings and makes recommendations to the Minister.

Programs Operations

This directorate, through five divisions and a network of regional offices and client service centres, is responsible for the administration of the Old Age Security, Canada Pension Plan and Family Allowances programs, for the administrative aspects of appeals and for all aspects of client services.

Legislation Application and Appeals Division

This division develops administrative policies and guidelines related to the payment of Income Security Programs benefits, and administers the appeals system for dissatisfied applicants and beneficiaries. It is also responsible for the development and delivery of public information programs, as well as for the preparation of ministerial and other correspondence related to Income Security Programs. The division is also responsible for co-ordinating all functions related to the Access to Information and Privacy legislation.

Regional Programs Operations Co-ordination

This division develops, maintains and documents EDP programs used in the administration of the three Income Security Programs, and provides operational and procedural guidelines and co-ordination for systems and non-systems processing at headquarters and regional offices. It also facilitates data exchanges with other federal departments for the purposes of administering legislation.

Regional Offices and Client Service Centres

The staff of full-time client service centres, which are located in most major cities across Canada, is responsible for the operation of more than 150 part-time centres in smaller towns and cities. These centres provide information and services to the public in all matters relating to Income Security Programs benefits, including distribution of applications for such benefits.

Each regional office provides administrative and operational support for the network of client service centres under its control. Applications for Income Security Programs benefits, with the exception of Canada Pension Plan disability benefits, from residents within its area of jurisdiction are adjudicated, processed, and the resulting benefit accounts maintained in the regional offices.

Disability Division

This division is responsible for determining, through the evaluation of an applicant's medical history and profile, eligibility for Canada Pension Plan disability benefits; it is also responsible for the processing and maintenance of all other disability benefit related accounts.

Canada Pension Plan Central Operations

Central Operations is composed of the Claims and Benefits section and the National Benefits section. Claims and Benefits, in the process of being phased out, is currently responsible for processing benefits for Chatham and Peterborough until such time as the processing function is centralized to these two Ontario areas - November, 1985 and September, 1986 respectively. National Benefits is responsible for the processing of dual accounts (those whose contributions were made to both the Canada Pension Plan and the Québec Pension Plan); Québec residents' accounts (those whose contributions were made to the Canada Pension Plan only, but who now reside in Québec); division of unadjusted pensionable earnings (credit splitting) accounts; those accounts affected by the child-rearing drop-out provision; and all accounts which require manual processing of benefits. Central Operations' other responsibilities include the maintenance of record-of-earnings data including the recently introduced contributor information project, as well as the provision of administrative and data management services.

International Operations

This division, established in 1978, participates in the development and negotiation of administrative arrangements and operational accords, and produces the relevant procedures, application forms and booklets for the administration of international social security agreements. The division also adjudicates and processes all applications which are covered by an international agreement.

The Corporate Management Branch

The Corporate Management Branch is responsible for providing a full range of personnel, information and administrative services for the effective integration of planning, resource allocation and expenditure control activities; and for implementation of management practices throughout the Department. The branch is the departmental liaison with such federal agencies as the Treasury Board and the Office of the Comptroller General. The branch is directed by an assistant deputy minister who heads seven directorates: Corporate Planning and Management Practices, Financial Administration, Personnel Administration, Administrative Services, Public Affairs, Informatics and Internal Audit. Descriptions of the classes of records and topics pertaining to this administrative area of the Department are reported in the Access Register under Standard Classes of Records.

Corporate Planning and Management Practices

This directorate is responsible for the departmental management framework, with particular emphasis on the establishment and operation of a planning system, the co-ordination and control of a program to improve management practices and the co-ordination and integration of corporate management systems.

Financial Administration

This directorate is responsible for ensuring that policies and systems of financial administration are established, maintained and operated; for exercising financial and budgetary controls and co-ordination of departmental operations; and for advising senior departmental management on financial management matters.

Manuals

- Financial Management Manual

Personnel Administration

This directorate is responsible for assisting departmental managers in achieving their overall program objectives and in discharging their responsibility for personnel management by providing services and advice in personnel matters and by providing for the fair and equitable treatment of employees. It also ensures that the delegated managers and personnel administrators exercise their authority in a responsible manner. The directorate is comprised of six bureaux: Staff Relations and Compensation; Classification and Organization; Staffing Management; Human Resources Development; Official Languages; and Management Services. Of eight area personnel units, two are located in the National Capital Region and six in the regions: Atlantic, Québec, Ontario, Prairie, Alberta and Pacific.

Public Affairs

This directorate is responsible for public awareness of the Department's objectives and programs, for the proper use of communications resources; and for advice and services on communications matters. It is comprised of two divisions: Creative Services, and Media and Promotion Services.

The Creative Services division provides technical and professional advice and production services to branches in the fields of editing, publishing, audio-visual and advertising and in the planning and implementation of corporate public affairs programs. The Media and Promotion Services division provides similar advice and support to branches in the fields of media relations, special events and public enquiries (including public affairs support in the regions); it also assists in the planning and implementation of corporate public affairs programs. Service is provided to the public through headquarters facilities in Ottawa as well as six regional offices: Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montréal and Halifax.

Informatics

This directorate is responsible for the development, implementation and maintenance of all policies, guidelines, and standards related to electronic data processing, office automation and related telecommunication, and on an ongoing basis, monitoring their application throughout the Department. It also ensures the co-ordination of long-range systems planning throughout the Department; the provision of consultative and advisory services to all branches; and the development and maintenance of Department-wide information systems.

Internal Audit

This directorate, divided into a Management and Support component and an Audit Operations component, appraises the control framework applicable to departmental programs and objectives; the efficiency of departmental operations, systems and procedures; and the measures of efficiency and effectiveness used by management. It provides the deputy minister and senior managers with an assessment of the Department's operations and the integrity with which public funds are acquired and expended.

NATIONAL LIBRARY

Background

The National Library of Canada is a branch of government with the rank of a department. It reports to Parliament through the Minister of Communications. Located in Ottawa, its mandate is to ensure that the written heritage of the Canadian people is preserved and made accessible to everyone through the country's libraries.

The National Librarian, who has the status of a deputy head, manages and directs the department. This person has authority to enter into agreements with libraries and educational associations in and outside Canada and to represent the National Library and Canada at international and national conferences and other gatherings.

The associate national librarian assists the National Librarian in the management and direction of the National Library and represents the National Librarian during the latter's absence. The associate national librarian directs the four operational branches; oversees the Library's budget and person-year allocations on behalf of the National Librarian; and represents Canada at national and international conferences. The position has the rank of assistant deputy head.

Laws and Regulations

The National Library operates under the National Library Act (1969) and its amendments and enforces the Legal Deposit Regulations (1969).

Overall Responsibilities

To fulfil its responsibilities, the Library collects and promotes Canadian literary heritage in its broadest sense. This includes listing the nation's publications to facilitate their retrieval, availability, and use; providing reference information, referral and document delivery services, with special emphasis on Canadian subjects, to support similar services provided by other Canadian libraries; and by co-ordinating and participating in national and international programs for identifying and making available needed documents on interlibrary loan so that the nation's total library resources are shared. As part of this responsibility, the Library provides locations and lending services which are supported by the maintenance of national union catalogues, the publication of union lists and inventories of research collections; and connects with sources in Canada and abroad. The Library also provides location and reference services on material produced for handicapped persons.

All these services are supported by the National Library's extensive collection of books, periodicals, newspapers, government documents, other publications, sound recordings and other non-book materials, including access to automated information retrieval systems. The Library specializes in the social sciences and humanities, but its collection of Canadian materials covers all subjects including a collection on native rights. Current Canadian publications are acquired under the Legal Deposit Regulations of the National Library Act, which require every publisher to send two copies of most publications to the National Library. It in turn helps other libraries catalogue and classify their collections by providing them with current and retrospective bibliographic data in a variety of formats.

Data for Canadian publications is created by the Library and published in the national bibliography, Canadiana. Data for foreign publications is provided through exchanges of machine-readable records with other national libraries. This service results in significant savings of time and money for libraries and promotes standardization of bibliographic data.

Advised by the National Library Advisory Board and other specialized committees, the National Librarian and the staff also participate in and promote planning for library and information services in Canada, and participate in international planning for such services.

One of the National Library's top priorities is the development of a co-operative, nation-wide decentralized library and information network with international connections, using existing as well as emerging information and telecommunications technology. This task involves research, co-operative pilot projects, and the development of standards and policies.

Publications

Through its publishing program, the Library assists in individual research, particularly in Canadian studies, and also helps other libraries in the provision of services to their clients. In addition to Canadiana, the national bibliography, Library publications include specialized bibliographies, indexes and checklists, technical manuals, reports of surveys, directories and union lists, Canadian academic theses in microfiche format (in original language only), catalogues of National Library exhibits, and brochures describing National Library services.

Administration Branch

Federal Libraries Liaison Office

The office serves as the main communication link between the National Library and other federal libraries. It gives the many federal department, branch and agency libraries across Canada a continuing contact with the National Library on administrative, operational and planning matters, and promotes joint projects among libraries of the federal government. It also serves as the permanent secretariat of the Council of Federal Libraries, which advises the National Librarian on library services in the federal government.

Manuals

- 1974 Government Library Survey Recommendations
- Council of Federal Libraries By-laws and Decisions

Office for Network Development

The function of this office is to co-ordinate and facilitate the design, development, and implementation of a decentralized nation-wide library and information network. It conducts research on standards, on new technology and on policy issues related to network planning and development. It also conducts pilot projects to test bibliographic network applications in an open-systems environment.

Public Relations Office

This office assists the National Library's staff by advising on communications plans and policies and publicizing the Library's services and activities through a publications program; mounting information displays; advising on media relations; co-ordinating an advertising program; and performing other public relations and information duties.

Cultural Events Office

This office co-ordinates and implements a program of cultural events to reinforce the public image of the National Library and promote a better understanding of Canada's cultural heritage. It administers cultural exhibitions in Canada and abroad to make known the National Library collections to the public; conducts visits to the various branches of the National Library; organizes concerts, lectures, authors' readings and film screenings that are in keeping with the objectives of the National Library; and co-ordinates the National Library's participation in international conferences, in particular, hospitality and special events.

Collections Development Branch

This branch is responsible for receiving and registering, under the Book Deposit Regulations of the National Library Act, publications issued in Canada, as well as acquiring books about Canada or by Canadians published abroad. It is also involved in procuring non-Canadian library materials in the social sciences and humanities for the National Library by purchase and exchange. Surplus library materials from Canadian Libraries are collected and exchanged through the Canadian Book Exchange Centre in Ottawa. The branch provides International Standard Book Numbers (ISBN) to publishers in Canada and offers the Canadian Theses on Microfiche Service. At the request of any Canadian university, the Canadian Theses on Microfiche Service publishes (on microfiche) any or all postgraduate theses accepted by that university and sells copies in microform. The branch is also responsible for surveying library resources in Canada and promoting their improvement.

Manuals

- Canadian Acquisitions Division — contains instructions for staff engaged in acquiring library materials
- Canadian International Book Numbering Agency — provides instructions for staff issuing International Standard Book Numbers (ISBN) to Canadian publishers
- Ordering — contains instructions for staff engaged in the selection and acquisition by purchase of library materials

- Serials Control Unit — outlines instructions for the funding of serial holdings in the National Library collection
- National Library In-house Serial Editor's Guide — instructions for the entering of information of the serial holdings of the National Library in the on-line database
- Canadian Theses on Microfiche Service

Cataloguing Branch

This branch compiles and publishes the current and retrospective versions of the national bibliography: Canadiana, as well as a bilingual list of headings for corporate and personal authors' names used in the bibliography; publishes a list of Canadian subject headings in English and co-publishes a list of subject headings in French; co-ordinates the Canadian Cataloguing-in-Publication program; compiles and publishes a bibliography of Canadian theses; distributes machine-readable cataloguing records for Canadian and foreign publications; assigns International Standard Serial Numbers (ISSN) to Canadian serial publications; contributes to the development of national and international cataloguing standards; contributes cataloguing records for Canadian serials to CONSER, a machine-readable database of serial records; publishes CONSER Microfiche, a bibliography of serials; and catalogues material for the National Library's collection.

Manuals

- Canadian Cataloguing-in-Publication (CIP) Manual for Agent Libraries — contains instructions for CIP agent libraries on preparing a CIP entry and processing requests for CIP from publishers
- UNISIST: International Serials Data System (ISDS) Manual — contains policies and procedures for processing serial publications for inclusion in the international register of serials
- National Library Cataloguing Manual — contains guidelines on the level of treatment of material selected for the bibliography: Canadiana, describing the amount and type of information to be included in catalogue entries for different types of documents; priorities for the processing of material selected for Canadiana; policies on the content and form of a catalogue entry
- Guide de la section française de l'analyse documentaire — contains policies and procedures for analyzing and describing the subject content of a document
- Guide to the Work of National Library Collection Unit — contains instructions on processing material for inclusion in the National Library's collection.
- Serials Section Manual — provides instructions on cataloguing serials
- Government Documents Section Manual — contains instructions for cataloguing federal and provincial publications

Library Systems Centre

The Library Systems Centre (LSC) provides computerized systems services to the National Library, to other federal government libraries and to the developing Canadian library network. To meet this objective, the centre operates and enhances DOBIS (Dortmunder Bibliothekssystem), an on-line library-shared database management system. Systems include the bibliographic and authority subsystems and the Machine Readable Cataloguing (MARC) Records Distribution Service (MRDS). The centre also provides leadership in the development of automated systems that can be used widely by Canadian libraries and provides advisory or consulting services to Canadian libraries that are developing automated systems. To provide these services, the centre is organized into the user services area and the computing services area.

Manuals

- System Assurance Manuals — DOBIS
- Terminal Operator's Guide
- User Manuals
- Data Input Conventions

Public Services Branch

This branch is responsible for providing a location and interlibrary loan service and a reference information service, both automated and manual, to libraries, researchers and the general public. Special advisory services are offered in children's literature, music and library and information science, and service for handicapped persons. The branch compiles and maintains the Canadian Union Catalogue of Books, the Canadian Union Catalogue of Serials and the Canadian Union Catalogue of Library Material for the Handicapped (CANUC:H). It also maintains the library collections, including official publications, serials, music, rare books and manuscripts, Canadian newspapers and the Canadian Indian Rights Collection. Through the Multilingual Biblioservice, library materials in the non-official languages in Canada are acquired and disseminated through Canadian public libraries. The branch maintains the secretariat for the Committee on Bibliography and Information Services for the Social Sciences and Humanities (a committee of the National Library Advisory Board).

Manuals

- Music Division Procedures
- Machine Readable Reporting to the Canadian Union Catalogue
- Library Documentation Centre Procedures Manual
- CAN-SDI Systems Manual on Canadian Selective Dissemination of Information Services — describes technical operations of the system (an automated current awareness system)
- CAN-SDI Procedures Manual — provides detailed procedures for writing user profiles for CAN-SDI centres
- Bibliography Unit Manual — contains procedures for preparing lists of books, articles, etc., on a subject
- Periodicals Unit Manual — describes the receiving, shelving, retrieving and photocopying of periodicals and the handling of microforms
- Location and Lending Services Manual — describes how to use the National Library's location and lending services
- Circulation Manual — describes processing of loans and maintenance of the National Library collection
- Canadian Official Publications
- Foreign and International Publications

- Annotations Manual — contains instructions on preparing annotations for a multilingual collection of books

Background

The National Museums of Canada (NMC) incorporate, within a single administration, Canada's four national museums: the National Gallery of Canada; the National Museum of Man, including the Canadian War Museum; the National Museum of Natural Sciences; and the National Museum of Science and Technology, including the National Aviation Museum.

The National Museum of Man and the National Museum of Natural Sciences both evolved out of the National Museum of Canada, an institution that had its origin in the founding of the Geological Survey of Canada in Montréal in 1842. In 1880 the Survey and its museum were moved to Ottawa and in 1910 were located in the newly-constructed Victoria Memorial Museum Building. By this time the museum staff, as distinct from that of the Survey, was divided into a Biology Division and an Anthropology Division. The National Museum of Canada was formally established in 1927. Natural History and Human History branches were formed in 1956 and the Canadian War Museum, which dates back to 1880, was added to the latter branch in 1958. Since 1968, the National Museum of Man and the National Museum of Natural Sciences have been components of the National Museums of Canada.

The beginnings of the National Gallery of Canada are associated with the founding of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts in 1880. The Marquis of Lorne, then Governor General, had recommended and assisted in the founding of the Academy and among the tasks that he assigned to that institution was the establishment of a national gallery at the seat of government. The National Gallery was incorporated by an Act of Parliament in 1913. It occupied a section of the Victoria Memorial Museum Building until 1960 when it was moved into the Lorne Building. In 1968, the National Gallery became a component of the National Museums of Canada.

The National Museum of Science and Technology is the most recently formed of Canada's national museums. It began with the creation of a Science and Technology Branch of the National Museum of Canada in 1964. A director was appointed in 1966 and the museum opened in 1967, one year before it became a component of the National Museums of Canada. The National Aeronautical Collection, formed by the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1964, was added to the museum when it opened. In 1982, the National Aeronautical Collection became known as the National Aviation Museum.

In 1972, National Museums of Canada began developing a national museum policy designed to ensure the preservation of Canadian museum collections and increase public access to them. The five divisions of the National Programs Branch of the NMC provide services and assistance to the Canadian museum community to further the objectives of this policy. As well, the NMC has fostered co-operation among Canadian museums by forging a network of 25 associate museums (including the four national museums) and 23 national exhibition centres.

Overall Responsibilities

The National Museums of Canada is a Crown Corporation established in 1968 by the National Museums Act which reports to Parliament through the Minister of Communications. It is administered by its own secretariat under the authority of a Board of Trustees. The Secretary-General is the chief executive officer of the corporation. The purposes of the corporation, as defined in the Act, are to demonstrate the products of nature and the works of man, with special but not exclusive reference to Canada, so as to promote interest therein throughout Canada and to disseminate knowledge thereof.

National Programs

In 1968, the federal government announced its overall cultural policy based on the principles of democratization, decentralization, pluralism, and federal-provincial and international co-operation. The Secretary of State developed, and the Cabinet approved, a more specific National Museum Policy with two objectives — to preserve the elements of the national heritage, and to increase access to that heritage. The National Museums established five programs to meet the objectives of the National Museum policy. Collectively known as the National Programs, they are: the Canadian Conservation Institute, the Canadian Heritage Information Network, the International Program, the Mobile Exhibits Program and the Museum Assistance Programs. Together these programs form a component of the National Museums Corporation called the National Programs Branch. It is headed by an assistant secretary-general who is supported by the five program directors and the services of a central finance and administration unit called the Program Co-ordination Division.

National Gallery of Canada

Director's Office

The National Gallery of Canada (NGC) holds in public trust the most comprehensive collection of Canadian fine and decorative arts, and the finest collection of non-Canadian paintings, sculptures, drawings, prints and photographs in the country. Properly supported, these collections are an important resource in establishing self-awareness and pride throughout Canada. The goals of the National Gallery of Canada, consonant with the objectives and priorities of the National Museums of Canada, are directed towards national purpose and must be realized with the highest professional standards. The gallery maintains its holdings at a high level of preservation, and supports them through research for the development of the collections, the organization of exhibitions and the publication of catalogues.

Archives and Curatorial Division

The division is responsible for holdings of correspondence and archives for research and documentation.

Restoration and Conservation Laboratory

The function of the laboratory is to provide specialized conservation treatment for works of art. It thus examines, inspects, restores and analyzes the status of the present collection, prepares works of art for loans, exhibitions, and display in government houses and offices and prepares examination reports on new acquisitions.

National Museum of Natural Sciences

The Museum of Natural Sciences (NMNS) deals with the sciences of botany, geology, paleobiology and zoology. Five main exhibition halls on the birds and mammals of Canada, prehistoric animals, geology and the evolution of animal life are maintained in the Victoria Memorial Museum. Large research collections are held in other buildings in Ottawa. These collections are open to study by qualified students, including post-doctoral fellows and other contractees sponsored by the museum. The National Herbarium contains vascular plants and cryptogamic plants. The National Zoological Collections include molluscs, crustaceans, other invertebrates, fish, reptiles, amphibians, birds and mammals. The Palaeontological Collections contain vertebrate fossil specimens. Gem stones and minerals, rocks and ores from many regions of the world are some of the other collections found in this museum. In addition, it holds scientific and popular publications on these subjects.

The function of the Museum is the collection of specimens, audio-visual material or art work, as examples or depictions of flora, fauna or geological material. The basic objectives of the collection program are to acquire, preserve and use representative samples of the earth's biological and geological entities. This provides a comprehensive national scientific reference collection of flora, fauna and geological material with particular reference to Canadian material, but with other specimens which may aid in understanding Canadian problems. The museum maintains display and research collections in the quantities required to meet the needs of present and developing natural history museums in Canada and elsewhere, and to provide present and future generations with a perspective of current scientific and educational needs and a prospectus on future needs.

Mineral Sciences Division

The division is included under geological collections. Its holdings include reference and display examples of minerals, gemstones, rocks and ores. Minerals are acquired through purchase, exchange, donation, field collection and research on classic geological localities. Duplicate material through donations or direct collection is encouraged to provide exchange specimens.

Biological Collections

These collections include the vertebrate and invertebrate zoology, botany and paleobiology divisions. They are improved and completed primarily through field collecting and exchanges with other institutions. Collecting by a national museum is carried out on a broad front so as to include all families of organisms. The establishment of priorities is based on the completeness of representation of Canadian biota in national collections, the availability of specimens and data in other museums, and the inclusion of non-Canadian material related taxonomically, geographically or ecologically to Canadian specimens, as well as representative material from major biomes of the world to provide comparative material for research and display. Duplication of existing collections is discouraged, unless it provides an opportunity for exchanges with other museums.

National Museum of Man

Director's Office

The office is responsible for the administration and operation of all divisions within the National Museum of Man (NMM) as well as the management of the museum's role in public programming. Attached to the office are three senior scientist positions in the fields of archaeology, folk culture and ethnology.

Archaeological Survey of Canada

The Archaeological Survey of Canada (ASC) is primarily concerned with the recovery, study, preservation and presentation of information and artifacts on the prehistory of Canada. It is also concerned with the excavation of archaeologically important sites threatened with destruction by large construction projects such as roads, dams, airports or harbours. The survey maintains a collection of scientific records, including reports, field records and photographs produced by both staff scientists and contract researchers, which is available to qualified researchers. Artifacts and other archaeological remains are catalogued and conserved on behalf of the people of Canada. The results of the research and collection programs are disseminated through publications such as the Mercury series, Canadian Studies reports and the popular Canadian Prehistory series, co-published with commercial publishers. In addition, these research programs provide the basis for exhibitions, fact sheets, films, museum kits and videotapes, which convey the work of the ASC to the public.

Canadian Centre for Folk Culture Studies

The Canadian Centre for Folk Culture Studies (CCFCS) was established in 1969 to record and study various aspects of folk culture among all ethnocultural groups in Canada, with the exception of native peoples. The centre conducts a variety of research and collection programs, both in-house and on contract, which range from the collection and analysis of oral lore to the acquisition and conservation of all aspects of Canadian folk life. It disseminates information through the Mercury series, Canadian Studies reports and Oracle series. The research work of the CCFCS also reaches the public through exhibitions, museum kits, film, videotapes and Canada's Visual History series. In addition, the CCFCS provides professional advice and information to the scientific community and to the public at large on all matters related to Canadian folklore and folk life.

Canadian War Museum

In 1980, the Canadian War Museum celebrated 100 years of recording, collecting and preserving material on the military history of Canada, and of the nations that have been her friends and foes. In addition to collecting, identifying, cataloguing, conserving and researching artifacts from various military conflicts, the museum undertakes research projects and maintains archival material for further study. The results of its research and collection programs reach the public via the Mercury series, Canadian Studies reports and a popular series of books published on a variety of military history topics.

History Division

This division is concerned with researching, preserving and presenting to Canadians the social, economic and cultural history of non-aboriginal man since the beginning of European settlement in Canada. The division has as its goal, the collection and conservation of representative artifacts highlighting Canadian material of national interest, representing every region in Canada and all socio-economic groups and time periods in the nation's past. The division also conducts historical research on material culture in society to reconstitute portions of Canada's past. Publications produced by the division help interpret and explain Canadian history and increase national self-knowledge. These include the Mercury series, two periodicals — the Urban History Review and the Material History Bulletin, available on subscription — and popular publications such as the History of Canadian Cities series and a series of works on pre-industrial crafts which are published in co-operation with commercial publishers.

Canadian Ethnology Service

The traditional culture of Canadian Indians, Inuit and Métis is the focal point for the ethnographic research and artifact collections of the Canadian Ethnology Service (CANES). Research programs concerned with general ethnology, linguistics, material culture and ethnohistory have been carried on since the 1890s. Research projects to document cultural traditions are undertaken by both CANES and contract researchers. There is also a research collection of nearly 60,000 artifacts acquired over the last century, which are catalogued and conserved, and can be loaned to approved institutions for exhibition purposes or studied by qualified scholars and students. The scientific results of CANES programs reach the public through the Mercury series, Canadian Studies reports, fact sheets, films, videotapes, exhibitions, museum kits and Canada's Visual History series.

Education and Cultural Affairs Division

This division co-ordinates the National Museum of Man's nation-wide extension program of travelling exhibitions and museum kits while maintaining the permanent display galleries within the Museum and developing temporary exhibitions for the public in the national capital region. A media relations section promotes museum activities. The division maintains a national loans collection of artifacts and exhibition material which can be lent to schools, theatre groups or exhibition centres that cannot meet the environmental requirements for borrowing material from the main museum collections.

The activities of this division emphasize communication. The products of the research and collection activities of the National Museum of Man are interpreted to the general public across Canada through extension and information programs. A range of material such as the Oracle series, the Activity series, Canada's Visual History series, gallery guides and other items for the public is co-ordinated or produced by the division. The regional programs section of this division arranges school visits to the museum's displays and provides public programs which include films, demonstrations, lectures, theatre performances and an enquiry service.

National Museum of Science and Technology

The National Museum of Science and Technology (NMST) is designed to increase the scientific literacy of Canadians and visitors from other countries. Scientific principles and displays are demonstrated by artifacts and texts which correlate these principles with the development of technology; emphasis is on ground transportation, aviation, agriculture, shipping and industrial technologies. Collections are made available to other museums in Canada and abroad.

National Aviation Museum

The National Aviation Museum includes aircraft, engine collections and other artifacts related to the development of aviation.

NATIONAL PAROLE BOARD

Background

The National Parole Board is one part of the Canadian criminal justice system. This system, whose aim is to reduce criminal activity and to minimize its repercussions in society, is made up of several closely interrelated components including the body of criminal law, the judiciary and legal profession, the law enforcement agencies and the correctional services. Jurisdiction over these components is shared by all levels of government.

At the federal level, the National Parole Board is a component of the Ministry of the Solicitor General which also encompasses the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Correctional Service of Canada.

Laws and Regulations

- Parole Act and Regulations
- Criminal Records Act
- Penitentiary Act
- Prisons and Reformatory Act
- Criminal Code

Overall Responsibilities

In accordance with the provisions of the Parole Act and other relevant statutes, the Board grants, denies and controls the conditional release of inmates from federal institutions and, with the exception of the granting of temporary absences, from provincial institutions in provinces without a provincial parole board (the provinces of Québec, Ontario and British Columbia have their own provincial parole boards).

The Board also makes recommendations to the Solicitor General of Canada for the exercise of the Royal Prerogative of Mercy and for the granting and revocation of pardons under the Criminal Records Act.

Its responsibility for the development of policy derives from Section 25 of the Regulations, which requires the executive committee, in consultation with the Board, to develop and promulgate policies and procedures to be followed by the Board in carrying out its duties and functions.

Glossary of Key Terms

- Temporary absence is an occasional release from the institution for humanitarian or medical reasons.
- Day parole is a limited form of conditional release designed to help prepare for full parole or mandatory supervision.
- Full parole allows an individual to complete his or her sentence in the community provided he or she satisfies a number of conditions, including regular reporting to the parole officer and the police.
- Mandatory supervision is a legal right of inmates to serve a prescribed remaining portion of their sentences in the community providing they abide by conditions imposed by the National Parole Board. Should they violate conditions, they are returned to the institution.

Organization

The National Parole Board has its headquarters in Ottawa. There are five regional offices: Moncton, Montréal, Kingston, Saskatoon and Burnaby.

The Board consists of 26 full-time members appointed for a period of up to ten years by the Governor-in-Council upon the recommendation of the Solicitor General. Several temporary members are also appointed in each region to assist the Board in its duties. In addition, representatives in each region (community board members) are designated to act as regular board members when release is being considered for inmates serving sentences of imprisonment for life, or for an indeterminate period.

Board members are positioned in six divisions: the headquarters division and the five regional divisions. The role of the headquarters division differs somewhat from that of regional divisions in that its members review, through an appeal process, certain negative decisions of the Board in which they did not participate. They also make recommendations on clemency and the Royal Prerogative of Mercy to the Solicitor General for submission to the Governor-in-Council.

The Chairman is the chief executive officer who is responsible for all National Parole Board matters. Under his or her direction, a vice-chairman and an executive officer supervise National Parole Board operations and administrative support activities respectively.

Major Publications

- The National Parole Board (1981) — a brief overview of the structure and operation of the National Parole Board, including the requirements to be met for parole eligibility and the Board's role in the supervision of parolees. A schedule of eligibility for release is also included.
- Pardon under the Criminal Records Act (1981) — this booklet contains all the relevant information for an individual seeking pardon for a criminal offence. It answers 33 basic questions on the philosophy and mechanism of pardon. The booklet also reproduces the Criminal Records Act and contains an application form and a fingerprint kit.

Access Procedures

The decision to release files under the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act begins with the receipt of a formal request at the one centralized operation centre in Ottawa, and includes the acquisition of the documents from the records holder, whether located in Ottawa or in regional offices, and a multiple-lines review in the region and at headquarters of the documents before they are released to the applicant.

All formal requests for access to information under the Access to Information Act should be forwarded to

Vice-Chairman's Office

The vice-chairman directs a secretariat which co-ordinates from national headquarters the conception and implementation of all Board policies regarding parole and clemency matters. In that respect, it records and ensures implementation of decisions made by the executive committee of the Board, comprised of the Chairman, vice-chairman, the senior board member of the headquarters division and the five regional senior board members. In addition, the secretariat assumes responsibilities for the professional development of board members and the development and implementation of professional standards in the decision-making process.

Executive Director's Office

The executive director is responsible for the planning, co-ordination and orderly management of Board activities and resources, in direct support of the decision-making operations of the Board. He or she oversees the regional administrative support activities of the Board through the regional senior managers known as regional executive officers, as well as the headquarters activities through directors responsible for the following divisions.

Personnel and Official Languages Division

This division provides personnel services common to all government departments. It is also responsible for the co-ordination of the official languages policy of the Board. Details on the classes of records held by this administrative unit may be found elsewhere in this Register.

Finance and Administration Division

This division provides services in the areas of finance, administration, word processing and records management. These services are common to all government departments, and details on the classes of records held by this division may therefore be found elsewhere in this Register.

Communications Division

This division is responsible for improving the public awareness of the Board's objectives and programs.

Headquarters Operations Division

This division consists of Planning and Analysis, and Operational Programs.

Planning and Analysis

Planning and Analysis co-ordinates operational planning, including the development and the revision of policies and procedures. It includes the investigation of long-range issues affecting the Board and effects of changes in policies. Other responsibilities include research, statistical and evaluation programs.

Operational Programs

Operational Programs is divided into three sections: the case analysis and review section, which is responsible for investigating and analyzing inmate requests for re-examination of certain negative Board decisions; the clemency section, which processes applications for pardon and clemency; and the access to information and privacy section, which is responsible for co-ordinating the Board's access to information and privacy program.

NPB/NPB-005 Formerly Identified as: NPB-10

Operations — General

Description: Information on the general operations of criminal justice correctional matters. Topics: Criminal records; incarcerations; offences; inmate management; rehabilitation; research and statistics.

NPB/NPB-010 Formerly Identified as: NPB-20

Clemency — General

Description: General information related to clemency. Topics: Legal matters; statistics.

Clemency — Criminal Records Act

Description: Information on enquiries and investigations in response to requests for pardon under the Criminal Records Act. Topics: Eligibility; hearings and submissions; enquiries; investigations; notifications.

Clemency — Royal Prerogative of Mercy

Description: Information on enquiries and investigations in connection with any request made for the exercise of the Royal Prerogative of Mercy. Topics: Enquiries; investigations; amnesty; submissions.

Parole — General

Description: Information on the release of offenders on parole, mandatory supervision and temporary absences. Topics: Agreements and exchanges; delegation of authority; enquiries; legal matters; parole boards and systems; quality control; statistics; research and evaluation.

Parole — Eligibility

Description: Information on the eligibility of inmates to be released on day parole, full parole or temporary absence. Topics: Parole eligibility; after forfeiture, revocation and termination; day parole; temporary absences.

NPB/NPB-035 Formerly Identified as: NPB-70

Parole — Release and Release Programs

Description: Information on aspects of the release of offenders on parole, day parole, temporary absences, terms and conditions of parole. Topics: Day parole; deportation; programs and projects - general; special; release; temporary absences; terms and conditions.

Parole — Reviews

Description: Information on the parole decision-making stage. It includes panel hearings or parole reviews to decide whether or not to grant parole or day parole and if either is granted, the date from which it is to be effective. Topics: Board reasons - federal and provincial cases; parole by exception; case preparation; hearings; internal reviews; voting; evaluation.

Parole Supervision — Violations

Description: Information on the supervision and violation aspects of parole, mandatory supervision, apprehension of the released inmate and recommittal. Topics: Apprehension and recommittal; forfeiture; mandatory supervision; revocation; supervision; supervision by after-care agencies; Community Residential Centres (CRCs) and Community Correctional Centres (CCCs); suspension; termination.

Background

The National Research Council (NRC) is a departmental Crown corporation with a governing council consisting of a president and 21 members appointed by the Governor-in-Council. The President is supported by six vice-presidents, a current staff of about 3,300 and a budget for 1985-86 of approximately $440 million. As the principal research agency of the federal government the NRC has a broad mandate: to promote, assist and undertake scientific and industrial research for national development. This mandate is carried out under a wide spectrum of activities, which include the performance of scientific and engineering research in response to national, economic and social needs in the fields of transportation, energy, food, building, construction, industrial innovation and development, health, security, safety and environmental quality.

Under this mandate the Council also provides direct financial and technical assistance to industry; establishes and maintains standards; provides national scientific and technological facilities for industry and universities; supports scientific and engineering research teams in core technologies; and operates a nationwide network of scientific and technical information services.

The laboratories of the National Research Council consist of 15 divisions spanning the physical and life sciences and engineering disciplines. They are located mainly in the National Capital region, but substantial operations have been placed, or are being established, in Manitoba, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Québec, Saskatchewan and British Columbia. Their activities encompass a wide range of scientific and engineering endeavours and while all laboratories possess similar "housekeeping" records relating to the general administration of their operations, the detailed supporting material supplied in the following pages describes the information holdings that are unique to each individual laboratory.

Laws and Regulations

- The National Research Council Act

Overall Responsibilities

The National Research Council has two basic programs. The first, called the Scientific and Industrial Research Program, provides a national foundation for the creation, application and use of knowledge derived from the natural sciences and engineering. The second, the Scientific and Technical Information Program, facilitates the use of scientific and technical information by the government and people of Canada.

Information Services

In addition to the day-to-day information exchanges that take place between the Council's research staff and the scientific community, the National Research Council has three main operations through which it disseminates information to industry, the universities and the general public. These are Public Relations and Information Services (PRIS), the Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information (CISTI) and the Technical Information Service (TIS). A brief synopsis of their roles and activities is provided in the following three paragraphs, with more detailed accounts being supplied in the relevant sections of the supporting material.

General Information

General information on the National Research Council is provided by Public Relations and Information Services through its headquarters facilities in Ottawa. This unit deals mainly with the media and the general public. Contact may be made in person, by telephone, or by writing to

CISTI

The Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information (CISTI) is Canada's focal point for the storage and retrieval of scientific and technical knowledge and is designed to provide information services to the scientific, engineering and medical communities in industry, business and government, as well as to the general public. The data is derived from millions of reference items contained in an outstanding library, a computer that holds data from Canada, the United States and other world locations, and a highly qualified staff both within CISTI and the laboratories of the Council.

The many specialized CISTI services include a personalized current awareness service; an on-line enquiry service, which gives instant access to the various scientific and engineering databases; a health sciences resource centre, which provides nationwide access to Medline — the U.S. National Library of Medicine databases in medicine and toxicology; the interlibrary loan and photocopying service; and a general reference service, which provides access to the world's scientific and technical literature.

Regional Contacts

Scientific and technical information as well as advice and assistance to the Canadian manufacturing industry and the small business community in particular are provided by the field advisory offices of the Industry Development Office (IDO). Located across Canada and staffed by scientists and engineers, these offices have access to all the resources, services and expert advice of the NRC. These offices are listed below.

Access Procedures

The National Research Council currently responds to thousands of enquiries a year through the established services described above, and this practice will continue. In addition, the NRC has an Access to Information Co-ordinator, whose principal duty is to ensure that those people whose requirements for information are not met by existing services will be able to exercise their legal rights to obtain information under the legislation.

The NRC Co-ordinator for Access to Information oversees the access to information function at the Council, including the preparation of the entry for the Access Register, service to the public wishing to obtain access to information, the determination of exemptions and third-party notifications, responses to enquiries from the Information Commissioner, appeals before the Federal Court, and the Report to Parliament. Enquiries concerning the administration of the Access to Information Act within the National Research Council should be addressed to

President's Office

The President is the chief executive officer of the National Research Council and has supervision over and direction of the work of the Council and of the officers, technical and otherwise, appointed for the purpose of carrying on the work of the Council.

Council Secretariat

The secretariat provides a number of corporate services, including administration for the governing council and the executive offices, committees of the Council including standing committees, associate committees and advisory committees, as well as the management committee.

Additional secretariat functions include legal services, internal audit, external audit, parliamentary and ministerial services, history and archives, official languages, access to information and privacy, and affirmative action.

Manuals

- Standard Operating Policies and Procedures (SOPP)
- Personnel Administration Manual (PAM)
- Financial Management Manual (FMM)

Executive Vice-President

The executive vice-president has the overall responsibility for the operation of all NRC laboratories and research institutes, as well as research programs carried out across a number of laboratory divisions.

The other main areas of responsibility are international relations, university relations and related operations.

Public Relations and Information Services

The branch serves as a central source of general information about the National Research Council. By participating in exhibitions across Canada, arranging visits and open-house events and generally responding to a wide range of enquiries, it endeavours to provide information to the public that will keep it up to date and aware of the Council's role, objectives, programs and achievements. It also acts in an advisory capacity and as a central resource in the implementation of information activities on specific NRC programs.

Atlantic Research Laboratory

The Atlantic Research Laboratory (ARL) has five major research and development sections, an administrative support service and the Seaweed Culture Station located at Fink Cove, Nova Scotia. The director's office is responsible for the overall operation of ARL including policy, planning, program forecasting, estimates, interaction with the industrial, scientific and university communities, and public relations.

Administrative Services

Administrative Services is responsible for plant engineering services at the Atlantic Research Laboratory and at the Seaweed Culture Station at Fink Cove, Nova Scotia, as well as general administrative services, maintenance, financial services, stores (including purchasing), photography, drafting and personnel services.

Manuals

- Standing Operating Policies and Procedures (SOPP)
- Financial Management Manual
- Personnel Administration Manual

Analytical Methods and Services

The principal objectives of this section are to develop chemical reference materials and improved methodology for the analysis of seawater and marine materials for use by marine scientists, government regulatory agencies and industry, and to provide advanced instrumental capabilities in support of other Atlantic Research Laboratory research programs. The marine analytical chemistry work is done in co-operation with the analytical chemistry section of the Division of Chemistry, and most of the work is contracted out. A committee on marine analytical chemistry with representatives from commercial firms, universities and government meets annually, monitors the program and provides advice. A special series of research reports and situation reviews are published. The advanced instrumental capabilities provided include infrared spectroscopy, scanning electron microscopy, electron microprobe analysis, X-ray crystallography, and electrophoresis. Each is the responsibility of a qualified professional. The ARL research programs include metallurgical chemistry, coal, silicon compounds and the chemical structure and biosynthesis of mycotoxins and metabolites of algae, bacteria and lichens.

Marine Biosciences

The section conducts fundamental and applied research on coastal marine organisms, especially plants, to enhance understanding of their ecology, systematics, genetics, chemistry, biochemistry and physiology. Research and development is conducted in three main areas: ecological, taxonomic and genetic studies; chemical studies related to identification of biologically-active compounds; and physiological and biochemical studies directed at developing aquaculture technology.

Biological Chemistry

This section is concerned with the development and application of nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) techniques and the use of stable isotopes for the solution of biological and chemical problems, including that of silicon in metallurgical systems and the biological role of silicon (silicate) in marine organisms (e.g., diatoms, sponges).

Industrial Materials and Processes

This section is concerned with the study of the kinetics and thermodynamics of chemical reactions at high temperatures, particularly reactions of importance to the pyrometallurgical processes (e.g., gas-slag-metal reactions, thermodynamics and constitution of metallurgical slags; transport of sulfur through slags and solubility of  $H_2O$  and  $CO_2$  in slags).

The group also performs research on specific problems of local industry. The latter involves links with the Sydney Steel Corporation, Brunswick Mining and Smelting, and the Noranda Research Centre.

Microbiology

The section is concerned with the ecology, physiology and chemistry of fungi with particular reference to their role in agricultural systems. The emphasis is on mycotoxins and symbiotic associations with other plants (e.g., lichens) of particular Canadian significance.

Division of Biological Sciences

The division is composed of 13 laboratory sections and the Director's Office.

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for the administration and operation of the division. By directing and correlating activities in the areas of policy, planning, program forecasting, estimates and contracts, it contributes to the main function of the division, which is to conduct research in the biological sciences directed towards new knowledge, and with applications to industry, health, and environmental standards.

Cell Physiology

The section carries out endocrine and ionic regulation of cell proliferation in bone marrow, kidney, liver, peripheral lymphocytes, thymus, tumours and cells in culture with the objective of understanding why cells divide. One possible medical application would be in the area of the detection and treatment of cancer.

Animal Facility

This section's research involves the immunogenic potential of micro-organisms causing diseases in animals with the aim of producing immunoprophylactic (disease-protective) agents.

Microbiology

This section conducts research on the growth and physiology of bacteria and yeasts and on the microbiological conversion of organic materials into usable fuels and chemicals. Organic materials include wood cellulose, waste cellulose, and industrial, agricultural and municipal waste streams. The group is phasing out work on fruit and vegetable storage.

Biomathematics

The section performs mathematical analyses of biological systems; genetic code and protein sequence analysis and the secondary structure of ribonucleic acids; theoretical studies of molecular mechanisms; algorithms and associated software applied to the deconvolution of fluorometric data; and statistical analyses in connection with experiments carried out in other sections of the division.

Cell Biophysics

The section studies microfibril biosynthesis in bacterial cellulose and provides electron microscopy expertise for other divisional projects.

Ecotoxicology

The section conducts research on the pathways of pollutants through the environment; transformation in sediment, water, air and biota; mechanisms of toxicity and interactions, especially of heavy metals; and hazard assessment of environmental contaminants.

Animal Physiology

The section conducts research into the neural and hormonal control of energy balance (energy intake, expenditure and storage) in mammals.

Environmental Secretariat

As an aid to regulatory agencies, the Environmental Secretariat compiles and analyzes published scientific data for use in establishing cause and effect of pollutants in the environment. Published criteria and monographs concern areas such as radioactivity in the environment, effects of pulp and paper wastes on aquatic life, the formation, transport and effects of photochemical air pollution, and other discussions regarding doses and effects of environmental pollutants.

Immunochemistry

The activities of this section centre on the establishment of the structural basis for immunospecificity of antigens of pathogenic bacteria.

Molecular Biochemistry

The section conducts research into the structure, interaction and dynamics of biologically active proteins, mechanism of action at the molecular level of antibodies, enzymes, proteins and nucleic acids using biochemical and kinetic techniques; laser-Raman and luminescence spectroscopy; laser-flash photolysis; circular dichroism; and synthesized peptides. Its activities also include research on enzymic hydrogen production; immobilized enzymes; and affinity chromatography.

Molecular Biophysics

The section investigates the behaviour of biologically active compounds in living systems using nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) spectroscopy.

Molecular Genetics

The section investigates the "in vitro" synthesis of biologically active DNA; the development and application of improved recombinant DNA techniques for the insertion and expression of genes; the structure and function of chromosomes of eukaryotes — in particular those of yeast; and the control of gene expression at the levels of transcription, translation and cellular expression.

X-Ray Crystallography

The section conducts research into structure-function relationships in biological systems; the determination of chemical pathways and conformational preferences; and the stereochemistry of molecules of biological significance through X-ray crystal structure analyses.

Biotechnology Research Institute

The institute is located in Montréal and emphasizes the industrial application of biological sciences, focusing on the development of new processes and products. The main areas of research include fermentation and biochemical and process engineering, genetic engineering, cell fusion, and enzyme technology. A large-scale fermentation facility is available for pilot scale experimentation with new fermentation methods and economic evaluation. The research and development focuses on agro-food, energy, pharmaceuticals, waste management and forestry.

Canada Centre for Space Science

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for the direction and administration of the Canada Centre for Space Science (CCSS). By directing and correlating activities in the areas of policy, planning, program forecasting and estimates, it contributes to the main function of the CCSS, which is to plan, co-ordinate and support space science in Canada.

Scientific Planning and Evaluation Group

This group is responsible for the evaluation, planning and monitoring of the space science program in Canada. The program conducts experiments using instruments on rockets, balloons, satellites and space transportation systems, supported by ground-based instruments and data networks. Experiments are selected on the basis of scientific integrity and cost-effectiveness of benefits to Canada.

Facilities Branch

The branch is a national facility providing services (primarily related to scientific rockets, balloons and satellites) to industry, government and universities that assist basic and exploratory research in the natural sciences and support industrial innovation and development. The branch is advertised as a national facility to the Canadian and international space science communities, and there are formal mechanisms that permit access to branch services.

Manuals

- Standing Instructions for the Operation and Maintenance of NRC Space Research Facilities
- Rocket and Balloon Facilities Handbook
- Range Safety Regulations

Instrumentation Section

The section manages the development of instruments required by university or government scientists for selected space science programs. The development of both space-borne and ground-based instruments is carried out through contracting with Canadian industry.

Engineering Section

The section is responsible for providing the space science community with sounding rocket payloads, other space platforms, and support systems. Most of the services are supplied by contracting the work to the private sector for manufacturing and staff resources.

Manuals

- Manufacturers' literature in the form of engineering reports and technical memoranda
- Range Users' Handbook

Operations

The section is responsible for the establishment, operation and maintenance of space research facilities in Canada. This includes major physical installations, capital equipment and expendable supplies for research into space and atmospheric phenomena.

Manuals

- Rocket and Balloon Facilities Handbook — defines available facilities and equipment, and outlines procedures on the use of these facilities
- Operational Safety Regulations — rules and regulations for the safe conduct of space science operations
- Standard Practice Instructions — detail work to be completed

Chemistry Division

The Chemistry Division is composed of 16 laboratory sections and the Director's Office.

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for the administration and operation of the division. By directing and correlating activities in the areas of policy, planning, budgets and program forecasting, it contributes to the main function of the division, which is to conduct research in the chemical sciences with applications to the scientific community at large and to industry.

Analytical Chemistry

The section develops analytical methods, frequently within the context of the Marine Analytical Chemistry Standards Program, and especially in the area of inorganic trace analysis. Analytical services are provided under certain circumstances.

Chemical Engineering

This section carries out research on reverse osmosis, ultrafiltration, sludge and emulsion treatment with a view to the separation, recovery and reuse of materials of industrial importance. In addition, it investigates fluid-particle technology, size enlargement, and fine coal beneficiation methods to recover or increase the value of specific fossil fuels and various ores.

Chemical Physics

Research in the section is concerned with the spectroscopy of organic compounds, semiconductor films and photovoltaic materials and devices.

Colloid and Clathrate Chemistry

The section investigates the properties of suspensions, colloid science, surface problems, dielectric properties, nuclear magnetic resonance studies of solids, and low temperature calorimetry.

High Polymer Chemistry

The section is engaged in research dealing with the kinetics and mechanisms of ionic polymerizations, especially those initiated by carbanions, stereoregular polymers and their characterization by solution, and NMR measurements of polymers and inorganic or organometallic complexes.

Hydrocarbon Chemistry

The section conducts research on the chemistry and electron spin resonance (ESR) spectroscopy of organic free radicals in solution.

Kinetics and Catalysis

The staff in the section undertake research in the following areas: reactions of atmospheric interest, and gas phase free radical reactions; heterogeneous catalysts; chemistry and electron spin resonance spectroscopy of free radicals; metal clusters; Vitamin E.

Laser Chemistry Group

The group undertakes research into laser induced chemistry; laser isotope separation; enrichment of hydrogen, deuterium, tritium, carbon-13, zirconium, uranium; industrial applications of lasers; metal atom chemistry; photochemistry, photophysics and reaction dynamics.

Metallic Corrosion and Oxidation

Research in the section is concerned with the mechanics and kinetics of the formation of oxides on metal surfaces, with electrochemistry and with the instrumental characterization of surface films.

Molecular Spectroscopy

Research in the section involves studies of the vibration spectra of complex molecules of biological importance, vapor phase Raman intensities and band contours, and the development of new vibrational Fourier transform techniques.

Organic Chemistry

This section researches the physical, organic and organometallic chemistry of reactive intermediates such as free radicals, carbenes and metallenes.

Photochemistry and Kinetics

Research in the section includes studies of photochemistry and photophysics in the gas phase and reaction dynamics.

Reaction Intermediates

Research in this group is concerned with the kinetics, mechanisms and spectroscopy of transient species as studied by pulsed techniques such as laser flash photolysis.

Solid State Chemistry

Research in the section encompasses the chemistry and physics of metals, alloys and compounds, solid state inorganic chemistry, and X-ray diffraction and crystallographic computation.

Textile Chemistry

The section performs research on the degradation of plastics and fibers by sunlight and by heat, the mechanisms by which ultraviolet stabilizers and flame retardants operate to protect such materials, the relation between the properties of plastics and fibers and their molecular structures. In addition, there is work going on in the development and evaluation of textile test methods.

Theoretical Chemistry

Research in the section can be grouped into five areas: chemical physics, solid state and quantum optics, molecular physics, biophysics and quantum chemistry.

Division of Electrical Engineering

The division is composed of eight laboratory sections and the Director's Office.

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for setting research program goals, objectives and priorities and for directing and co-ordinating the divisional research and service activities. The division conducts research in electrical, electromagnetic and electronic engineering; computer, biomedical and ultrahigh vacuum technology; surface science and quantum electronics, with applications to industrial and social development.

Computer Graphics

This section conducts research in the following areas: intelligent robotics, computer graphics and image processing. The research in robotics focuses on problems in sensory-based robot control with emphasis on a multiprocessor computing architecture capable of serving the real-time processing requirements of a multi-sensor control system. The research in computer graphics involves the investigation of both hardware and software techniques of color raster display systems for advanced graphic work-station development. The image processing research involves the development of new knowledge in image analysis, recognition and image understanding and its application to the solution of problems in computer vision.

Electromagnetic Engineering

This section conducts research on fundamental problems in electromagnetic and antenna theory. In addition, it develops measurement methods and maintains facilities for the design and evaluation of antennas and the analysis of electromagnetic interference. The following are specific application areas in the section: radar principles to study the polarization effects of precipitation; microwave heating for industrial processes; and the development of moisture and electromagnetic radiation sensors.

Electron Physics

This section investigates the measurements, creation, processes and application of ultrahigh vacuum technology. Specific application areas include surface studies with regard to their order and physical properties; the preparation of lanthanum hexaboride as thermionic electron emitters and the calculation of their properties; the fabrication of thin film devices using optical lithographic methods, particularly integrated optical devices; quantum electronics and laser technology emphasizing line width, optical memories and optical spectroscopy of rare earth solids. Finally, the section operates a liquid helium facility to internal and external users.

Electronics Engineering

The section conducts research in two areas: instrumentation and software for intelligent robotic subsystems; and the applied use of photovoltaic technology. In the robotic subsystems area, effort is being devoted to optical-electronic measurement and inspection systems, digital and optical filtering techniques and the interfacing between measurement and control systems. In addition, the section develops power systems based on photovoltaic modules and evaluates the performance of photovoltaic modules.

Information Science

This section's main area of research is computer-aided learning. It develops and evaluates a national authoring language (NATAL); develops terminals and software for specialized interactive computer application; maintains and operates a computer network for co-operative research in computer-aided design and manufacture, and computer-aided training; pursues research and development activities concerned with application of database technology in these areas; and studies computer-aided design focused on the development of computer-based models to assist in the design-decision process.

Biomedical Engineering Research Program

The section develops instrumentation and techniques that define and analyze biological processes related to the clinical situation. There are four areas of endeavour: the development of technical aids for the physically handicapped to improve and increase their vocational opportunities and quality of life; the study of measurement of the effects of non-ionizing radiation such as ultrasound and electric current flow on body tissues; the development of methods of data collection, analysis and interpretation to facilitate the decision-making of the health worker; and the development of implant materials and instrumentation for orthopaedic research.

Power Engineering

This section develops instrumentation for the electrical power industry and standards laboratories. It studies the deterioration of high-voltage insulation systems and the environmental effects of high-voltage direct-current transmission lines. In addition, it develops and analyzes high-voltage impulse measuring systems for application to industrial calibration, standardization and ultra-fast impulses.

Rehabilitation Technology Unit (Toronto)

This section assists Canadian industry in developing and providing aids for the handicapped. It provides human and production engineering services to manufacturers; contracts and evaluates developmental models on a buy-back basis, ensuring the adherence to proper procedures; and co-operates with the Canadian Standards Association in testing developmental models for adherence to safety and reliability specifications.

Division of Energy

The division is responsible for the co-ordination of the NRC's energy work and for managing program offices in solar, biomass, fusion energy, wind energy, hydrogen and energy storage, peat and heat pumps.

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for the administration and planning of the division and for the co-ordination and liaison with other federal departments with respect to energy programs. The divisional budget is directed primarily to programs contracted to industry.

Biomass Energy Program

The program is responsible for co-ordination of the federal research and development program on bioenergy, including programs in other departments, as well as in-house and contracted work. Major activities relate to the harvesting and collection of biomass, conversion techniques and synthetic liquids fuels.

Fusion Program

The program co-ordinates Canadian research and development directed at harnessing thermonuclear fusion energy. The program includes work performed in-house, work contracted out to utilities, industry, and universities, activities of other federal organizations, joint federal-provincial projects and collaborative research and development with foreign fusion programs.

Solar Energy Program

The program is responsible for the management of NRC's solar research and development, including active solar heating systems for space and water, passive and hybrid heating systems, photovoltaic systems (direct-to-electricity conversion), industrial applications. The prime mechanism is contracted work to the Canadian solar industry.

Wind Energy Program

The program is responsible for the federal research and development on wind energy, including support programs in other departments, as well as major in-house and contracted work. Major activities relate to assessment of wind energy resource, development of wind energy components and systems, field trials of wind energy systems and development of megawatt-scale turbines (AEOLUS).

Heat Pumps

The program is responsible for co-ordination of the federal research and development program on heat pumps, including support programs in other departments, work performed in-house as well as contracted-out, and collaborative research and development with foreign heat pump programs. Major activities relate to industrial applications of heat pumps, residential applications of heat pumps, and component and technology development.

Hydrogen and Energy Storage

The program is responsible for co-ordinating the federal research and development program on hydrogen and energy storage, including support programs in other departments, work performed in-house as well as contracted-out, joint federal-provincial projects and collaborative research and development with foreign hydrogen programs. Major activities relate to hydrogen production, hydrogen use and storage, electrochemical technology, hydrogen safety and battery research.

Peat Program

The program is responsible for co-ordinating the federal research and development program on peat, including support programs in other departments, as well as in-house and contracted-out work. Major activities relate to peat resources, classification, mining, processing, dewatering and conversion.

Herzberg Institute of Astrophysics (HIA)

Director's Office

The Director's Office controls, directs and correlates the activities of the institute's nine sections, three of which are observatories. The office is responsible for the administration of the institute; it prepares policies, program forecast estimates, contracts and other related material.

In addition, it contributes to the main function of the institute, which is the advancement of knowledge in the areas of spectroscopy, space physics, planetary sciences and astronomy and the running of the observatories that are national facilities. The office also has supportive responsibilities for the Canada-France-Hawaii telescope.

Astronomy

The section carries out basic research into phenomena associated with natural emission from material in extraterrestrial space. This research can be divided into two broad categories: solar and non-solar astronomy. Solar astronomy in the radio spectrum involves daily measurement of the microwave flux and daily strip scans of the solar disk. Optical measurements of certain specific regions are made in or near the H line when weather permits. Galactic and extra-galactic radio astronomy comprises a very broad field ranging from research on cold interstellar clouds to the study of very distant and very bright radio galaxies and quasars.

The section also has the responsibility of operating the Algonquin Radio Observatory (ARO) as a national facility and providing new instrumentation for the 46-meter telescope.

Distinguished Research Scientist

The present work of this section is devoted mainly to the work of Dr. G. Herzberg and in particular to the study of a new class of molecules discovered five years ago. They may be referred to as Rydberg molecules since they are stable only in Rydberg states but not in the ground state. Molecules that have been identified are H<sub>3</sub> and NH<sub>4</sub>. New spectra have been obtained that may belong to a third molecule of this type, H F or HF, but this remains to be confirmed.

Dominion Astrophysical Observatory

The observatory is engaged in research on cosmology, normal and peculiar galaxies, including quasars and Seyferts, early-type stars, peculiar A stars, late-type stars, double stars, star clusters, galactic chemical evolution, supernova remnants, galactic structure techniques of data analysis, and design and development of instrumentation and optics for astronomical research from the ground and from space.

Planetary Sciences

The section carries out basic research on physical processes and phenomena occurring in the upper atmosphere and near space. Some of the principal phenomena studies include the aurora, ionosphere, magnetosphere, space plasmas, meteors, meteorites and comets. Observations are made from the ground, on rockets and on satellites. Instrumental techniques include photography, spectroscopy, photometry, radar and plasma probes. Theoretical work is done in some areas.

Dominion Radio Astrophysical Observatory, Penticton, B.C.

The observatory studies natural radio emissions from selected regions of the sky at various frequencies.

EDP Systems

- Maps of various regions of the sky, obtained with the observatory's radio telescopes, are stored on magnetic tapes and disks

Space Physics

The section conducts basic research into physical phenomena in space, specifically cosmic rays, plasma processes in the earth's magnetosphere and ionosphere and auroral mechanisms. Instrumentation is designed and constructed for experiments using rockets and spacecraft; data from these and other sources are analyzed and interpreted. A network of cosmic ray neutron monitor stations is maintained throughout Canada.

EDP Systems

- Cosmic Ray Neutron monitor and meson telescope data files for Canadian stations
- Data from ISIS 2 spacecraft — the energetic particle detector experiment
- Data from Magsat spacecraft — vector and scalar magnetometers

Spectroscopy

The section studies small molecules and free radicals (unstable chemical species) by means of the electromagnetic radiation they absorb or emit. The section has equipment that covers the range from the far ultraviolet (wavelengths of about 1000 angstroms/10<sup>-5</sup> cm) to radio frequencies (wavelengths of about 50 cm). Some emphasis is placed on molecules of astrophysical importance.

Spectroscopy of Larger Molecules

The section carries out basic research on the spectra of molecules and transient species. The aim of the research is to establish the structures of these molecules and information concerning their dynamic properties. The research has many applications in chemistry, physics and astrophysics.

Industrial Materials Research Institute

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for the administration and operation of the institute. It directs and correlates activities in the areas of policy, planning, program forecasting, estimates and contracts and contributes to the main function of the institute which is to serve the needs of Canadian industry in an area of major concern — the technology of industrial and engineering materials. The institute carries out its scientific activities at Boucherville, east of Montréal. The institute's research program, oriented primarily towards the needs of the industrial sector, includes research in process technology, materials and service performance characterization, and systems and instrumentation.

Institute for Marine Dynamics

The institute is a national resource for research development, test and evaluation in marine transportation and offshore systems. The research program is focused on the hydrodynamics, dynamics, stability and propulsion of floating and submerged vessels, structures and their components.

NATIONAL RESEARCH COUNCIL OF CANADA

The advanced new laboratories provide assistance to industry, university and government. A broad range of projects is undertaken involving theoretical studies as well as model and full-scale experiments in open water and in ice. Their application includes safety, ship design criteria, sea transportation, offshore exploration and development, fisheries, defence, search-and-rescue, and law enforcement.

Institute for Manufacturing Technology

Effective November 8, 1984, the government decided not to proceed with the establishment of the institute.

Division of Mechanical Engineering

The division is composed of eight laboratory sections, the Director's Office and the Manufacturing Technology Centre.

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for directing and correlating the administration and operation of the division through the following activities: policy making, planning, program forecasting, estimating, entering into contracts, purchasing and materiel management. The division conducts research and development in the areas of transportation, energy and industrial technology by providing a broad range of expertise and experimental facilities.

Systems Laboratory

The laboratory is concerned with the use of computers in engineering research and development and as aids to solving current industrial problems. Collaborative projects, usually with industry directly involved, define the needs for new computer technology development in the laboratory and provide for its effective transfer and use. Activity areas include transportation, control systems, industrial scheduling and signal processing.

The laboratory conducts research and development on the application of control theory and technology to a wide range of industrial and other control problems. In addition, it conducts research on human factors in manual control and man-machine interaction.

EDP Systems

- PDP-11/45 and PDP-11/60 with DECnet interconnection and graphics terminals — used in modelling and simulation of industrial and other control processes

Engine Laboratory

This laboratory concerns itself with engine research. All work conducted by the laboratory has strong industrial applications.

Fuels and Lubricants Laboratory

The laboratory conducts investigations and research into the use of all types of petroleum and associated products, in particular the development of laboratory test methods and their relationship to field use; future fuels for gasoline, diesel and gas turbine engines; re-refining of used lubricants; engine fuel economy and low temperature operation.

Gas Dynamics Laboratory

Work in the laboratory is concerned with the flow of fluids, mainly gases, in engineering applications. Gas flows range from small-quantity, high-temperature plasmas to the large continuous flow rates, at ordinary engineering temperatures, associated with prime movers, heat exchangers, industrial flues, and smelting processes. Engine work is centered largely on industrial, marine and aviation gas turbines. Specialized experimental facilities for all the major components of gas turbine power plants are operated in co-operative research programs with industry. Other facilities allow the study of high-powered model propulsion systems at forward speed, small gas turbine aeroengines at altitude, industrial aerodynamics related to non-aeronautical applications, and the internal aerodynamics of industrial ducting and flues. Heat transfer studies are related mainly to heat recovery systems, particularly those involving heat transport at small temperature differences, from low-grade sources, by various forms of heat pipes. Other activity is concerned with the use of high-pressure water jets for industrial cutting purposes.

Hydraulics Laboratory

The laboratory undertakes basic and applied research in the field of coastal and offshore engineering. Basic research studies are mainly in the field of simulation techniques of waves, tides and ice. Applied studies are carried out to determine forces on marine structures, stability of coastal structures and the development of ocean energy sources. Many projects are undertaken for Canadian industry.

Low Temperature Laboratory

This laboratory conducts research in the low-temperature thermodynamic field on engineering problems associated with low temperature, ice and snow. A large proportion of the work is carried out with industrial involvement. Test work is conducted in cold chambers, icing wind tunnels and a helicopter spray rig, for industry and on behalf of other countries.

Manufacturing Technology Centre

The centre develops new manufacturing processes, provides advice on adaptation and introduction of existing and new processes for the Canadian manufacturing industry, and designs and makes equipment for experimental scientific work in-house and for the transfer of technology to the industrial sector.

Manuals

- Manuals for the operation and maintenance of machine tools and manufacturing facilities

EDP Systems

- Numerically controlled machine tools are operated by EDP tapes (part programming)

Railway Laboratory

The laboratory's main areas of responsibility lie in the development of facilities, techniques, programs (computer models) and devices to aid in the understanding and prediction of the behaviour of railway vehicles; the development of mechanical, optical, or electronic instruments to measure variables or manipulate matter — particularly in the railway environment (formerly including mechanical aids to surgery and to the handicapped); and the provision of facilities, expertise and service in connection with the calibration of pressure sensing instruments. The laboratory will undertake, for a fee, the study and quantification of strength, safety, stability, dynamic response, longevity, vibration attenuation, loading restraint, and the passenger comfort of rail vehicles in relation to comparative or absolute standards in laboratory and field experiments.

Manuals

- AAR Recommended Procedures
- RTC Directives

- Standard Atmosphere Tables

Western Laboratory (Vancouver)

The laboratory specializes in three areas of mechanical engineering research that are of industrial or social importance: friction wear and lubrication (tribology) with major emphasis on the friction and wear of non-metallic materials and the wear of rails and wheels; development of low-cost computerized design and manufacturing programming systems; and research and development into small-scale, low-cost, socially and culturally appropriate mechanical technologies.

EDP Systems

- Laboratory rail- and wheel-wear data
- Software developed in laboratory for programming numerically controlled machine tools

Division of Microstructural Sciences

The division comprises five sections and supporting services.

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for the administration and operation of the division, by directing and correlating activities in the areas of policy, planning, program forecasting, estimates and contracts. The main functions of the division are to provide support in the physical sciences to aid Canadian industrial development; to conduct research in selected areas of physics applicable to long-term Canadian problems; and to perform basic and applied research to support these functions and gather knowledge.

National Aeronautical Establishment

This establishment is responsible for research and development on military and civil aviation, with particular reference to the support of the aviation industry and associated industries.

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for administering the Establishment and managing the scientific programs of work it undertakes. The office is also responsible for all external relationships, both national and international, that are within its mandate.

Flight Research Laboratory

The laboratory is responsible for the flight research program of the National Aeronautical Establishment. This includes research on flying qualities and control, operational problems, atmospheric phenomena, aeromagnetics, aerial applications, short take-off and landing (STOL) technology, accident investigations, aerial reforestation and studies for the Canadian Armed Forces. The laboratory acts as a research service to industry and to other government departments. In support of its research program, it operates a small fleet of research aircraft.

Manuals

- File Classification Index

High Speed Aerodynamics Laboratory

The laboratory is responsible for the maintenance, development and use of the five-foot supersonic wind tunnel on behalf of the Canadian aviation industry and the Department of National Defence. The internal research work is concerned with computational fluid dynamics, low-speed, high-lift wing systems, wings and bodies in transonic flow, flutter analysis and stores clearance. Work for external agencies consists of specific design development.

EDP Systems

- Aerodynamic data tapes given to clients under a contractual commitment are proprietary

Low Speed Aerodynamics Laboratory

This laboratory is responsible for low-speed fluid dynamics research and development pertaining to aircraft design and development, wind power generation, ground vehicle aerodynamics, wind effects on civil structures, urban wind climate, fluid control and measurement devices, wind tunnel development, and contract research for the aircraft industry and the Department of National Defence in the field of aerodynamics.

Public Safety Project Office

This office acts as the NRC management centre for research projects concerned with public safety, with particular reference to the needs of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police and the Solicitor General of Canada. Its activities are concerned with crime countermeasures, public and police personal safety, equipment improvements and the detection of explosive ordnance devices.

Structures and Materials Laboratory

The laboratory is responsible (with particular emphasis on the needs of the aviation industry and defence) for research and development work on the static and dynamic performance of structures and materials. Other subjects of on-going research include single-camera real-time photogrammetry, biomedical materials, aircraft flight load statistics, non-metallic composite materials, accident investigation, computational stress analysis, aeroacoustics, and a load and acceleration calibration service.

Space Technology Program Office

This office manages three space technology programs; the Canadarm Program and related Remote Manipulator System Technology Development Programs; the Canadian Astronaut Program; and the Space Station Feasibility Study Program. The function of the office is to define and control the activities carried out by various contractors, notably SPAR Aerospace, in relation to these programs, to manage all interactions with the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and participating Canadian government agencies, and all interdivisional involvements within the NRC. This office also defines and develops the experiments to be carried out by Canadian astronauts and ensures that their training program is complete.

Manuals

- Reference Manuals — NASA

Unsteady Aerodynamics Laboratory

The laboratory has responsibility for research on the dynamic stability of aircraft and missiles, the development of new wind-tunnel dynamic test equipment and techniques, and for research on wings and bodies at hypersonic speeds. It also has ongoing projects concerned with trace vapour detection in particular reference to explosive devices and aviation security.

Division of Physics

The division comprises ten sections and the Director's Office.

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for the administration and operation of the division by directing and correlating activities in the areas of policy, planning, program forecasting, estimates, calibration, contracts. It contributes to the main functions of the division, which are to provide services and support in the physical sciences to aid Canadian industrial development; to conduct research in selected areas of physics applicable to long-term Canadian problems; to conduct research directed toward the improvement of social conditions for Canadians; to provide national facilities to the Canadian scientific community; and to perform basic and applied research both to support these roles and in the pursuit of knowledge.

Acoustics Section

The section conducts research on acoustics in areas related to health, the environment and industrial technology.

Electrical and Time Standards

The section carries on research in the fields of direct current standards; rf and microwave standards; electrical instruments; reactance standards; Josephson effect; cesium beam primary frequency standards; hydrogen maser frequency standards; secondary frequency standards and time scales; frequency calibration facilities; also responsible for time dissemination and CHU shortwave station.

Heat and Thermometry

This section maintains, improves and disseminates Canadian temperature standards. It also supports industrial thermometry through consultation and occasional development of instruments for measuring temperature or temperature-related quantities; develops instruments for physical and biological measurements in the ocean and transfers the resulting technology to Canadian industry; operates a divisional computer service; and carries on research into computer systems.

High Energy Physics

This section conducts research on high energy physics.

Laser and Plasma Physics

The section works on high power laser development; excimer laser studies; generation and detection of ultrashort laser pulses; high power CO<sub>2</sub> laser-plasma interactions; laser-produced plasma diagnostics; visible, near infrared and X-ray streak camera development; and numerical studies of laser-plasma interactions.

Length and Mechanical Standards

This section conducts research into primary length standards; primary mass standards; length and mass secondary standards and derived measurement; laser frequency stabilization and measurement; and non-linear optical mixing.

Photometry and Radiometry

The section carries out research into photometric standards; colorimetric standards; performance characteristics of photoelectric receivers; spectrophotometry; spectroradiometry; absolute radiometry; reflectance standards; measurement of gloss; measurement of opacity; colour difference evaluations; colour vision; performance of optical systems; properties of optical materials and components; properties of photographic materials; design of optical systems; and solar simulation.

Photogrammetric Research

This section carries out research on analytical on-line photogrammetry; satellite photogrammetry; electronic photogrammetric control systems, automation; geodetic problems related to photogrammetry; computational programs; orthophoto and stereo-orthophoto techniques; basic geometry of aerial photographs; non-cartographic photogrammetry.

Materials Physics

The section performs research on crystal defects.

Ionizing Radiation Standards

This section develops and maintains standards for, and provides calibration services based on research into radioactivity standards; X-ray and gamma-ray exposure standards; absorbed dose calorimetry standards; and chemical dosimetry. In support of this it conducts research into radiation transport simulations; bremsstrahlung spectral measurements; radiation chemistry, and neutron dosimetry.

Plant Biotechnology Institute

The institute conducts research in plant cell technology, plant molecular genetics, and microbial productivity, bio-organic chemistry and plant products technology. It is made up of five sections and support services — the Administrative Office, Extramural Business Office, Library, Research Illustration Group, Plant Engineering Services, Purchasing and Materials Group, NMR Facility, and Mass Spectroscopy Facility. These are operated to assist the research programs of the laboratory and to provide scientific assistance to other research agencies, business and to public organizations.

Administrative Office

The Administrative Office is responsible for the operation of the division, including planning, policy, budget, contracts and personnel.

Plant Products Technology

This project develops new crop treatment and plant cell processes, from laboratory scale up to industrially applicable scale. Special interests are large-scale methods for growing plant cells, production of protein and starch from crops, cell production of alkaloids, and production of pharmaceuticals from plant cells.

Plant and Microbial Productivity

This project studies the biology, genetics and biochemistry of plants and micro-organisms. Special interests are the measurement of biochemical activity in plants, heritable energetic characters, cell growth and nutrition, plant-microbial symbiosis, photosynthesis and nitrogen fixation and energy use in green plants.

Bio-organic Chemistry

This project conducts research on the chemistry of cell regulants and on signal chemicals. Special interests are the analysis and synthesis of amino acids, proteins and nucleotides; the synthetic production and use of pheromones for insect pests; and on plant signal chemicals.

Plant Cell Technology

This project studies the biology and biochemistry of plant cells. Special interests include the study of plant tissue cultures, protoplasts, the production and propagation of superior plants, improvement of plant cell resistance to disease and stress, plant cell metabolism, molecular biology and cryobiology.

Plant Molecular Genetics

This project studies construction of use of RNA vectors for gene transfers in plants, DNA recombinant technology, genetic mapping and analysis, the introduction of foreign genes into plant cells, and gene expression.

VICE-PRESIDENT (TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER)

The Vice-President (Technology Transfer) has responsibility for the Division of Building Research (DBR), the Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information (CISTI), research journals, the NRC's Industrial Research Assistance Program (IRAP) and the Program for Industry/Laboratory Projects (PILP) which includes projects in other government laboratories. Other principal functions in this area involve the NRC's relations with industry in Canada and an Office for Industry Policy Analysis.

Division of Building Research

The division provides a research service to the construction industry in Canada. It is organized on a multidisciplinary basis to cover the subject areas of building services, building materials, structures, noise and vibration, fire, geotechnique, building performance, codes and standards, and information dissemination. A considerable amount of this information is published by the division on a continuing basis and is available from the Ottawa laboratories and the regional stations across Canada.

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for the direction and operation of the division by managing and correlating activities in the areas of policy and planning.

Administration

The section provides the Director's Office and the staff of the division with support services in the areas of personnel, finance, purchasing, shops and building maintenance, and registry.

Building Materials

The section provides basic information on the properties and behaviour of building materials, assists in the preparation of standards and specifications, develops test methods to evaluate the performance of various building materials and assists industry and other agencies in solving problems of national importance.

Building Performance

The section is primarily concerned with the development of information to aid the designer and builder in realizing practicable, cost-effective, occupant-safe and useful buildings. The range of activities necessary to achieve these objectives involves consideration of the design and construction process; observation and analysis of the operation, use and performance of actual buildings; and direct communication with the industry to promote the application of knowledge of buildings.

Building Structures

The objective of this section is to provide information on structural aspects that are common to all buildings, mainly to satisfy the needs of structural designers and building-code authorities. Studies of wind effects on full-scale and model-scale buildings and snow loads on roofs are given particular attention. Results of this work help in the continuing improvement of the design values used in the National Building Code and its supplements.

Codes and Standards

The group comprises three sections: the Codes Technical Section, which oversees the division's technical contributions to the committees responsible for the preparation of the National Building Code (NBC) and the National Fire Code (NFC), undertakes studies relating to the special needs of these codes, and provides technical assistance in the production of various code documents; the Codes Secretarial Service, which provides necessary secretarial support to the associate committee on the NBC, the associate committee on the NFC, the Canadian National Committee on Earthquake Engineering, and the auxiliary technical committees responsible to these associate committees; and editorial, translation, distribution and records units, which handle the production and distribution of the codes and their associated documents.

Building Services

The objective of this section is to provide the knowledge base required for the design and operation of building services, and the design of the building envelope for the control of heat and moisture. The building services aspect includes consideration of smoke control systems for tall buildings, aspects of the indoor environment, such as lighting and ventilation systems, and the application of advanced technology to the building industry. The building envelope considerations include evaluation and understanding of the thermal characteristics and performance of materials, components and systems, leading to standards, product development and proper design.

Fire Research

The section is responsible for conducting research aimed at reducing life and property losses by fire in Canada. High priority is given to subjects related to the National Building Code, because it is through building regulations that the greatest progress can be made towards the provision of fire safety.

Geotechnical Section

The section provides a research service to the construction industry of Canada in the use and behaviour of earth materials. Studies involve mineral and organic soils, peat, rock, permafrost, snow and ice, and the influence environmental factors and human activity have on these materials.

Instrumentation

The objectives of the unit are to provide expert advice and consultative services on instrumentation and system design to building research sections; to co-ordinate selection and purchasing of new equipment; and to provide technical support for the proper maintenance of instrumentation and related equipment.

Noise and Vibration

This section is concerned with problems of vibration and acoustics as they relate to buildings. Research proceeds at three levels: studies of basic physical processes of propagation of sound and vibration in buildings; studies of responses of people to sounds and vibrations in their environment and establishment of quantitative physical descriptors that correlate with human response; and development of standard methods of measurement of the requisite physical descriptors.

Regional Stations

The main objective of the regional stations is to provide technical information to the construction industry in the Atlantic, Prairie and British Columbia regions in connection with improved design, the construction and operation of buildings and other structures. This objective is pursued through applied research projects and technical information services. The stations provide a communication link between the design professions, construction agencies, users of buildings and the Building Research Centre in Ottawa.

Technical Information

This group has two main tasks: to provide library, editorial, drafting, photography and graphic art services to the division and to provide the construction industry with published information on building technology; and to promote technology transfer generally.

The library, which is a branch of CISTI, provides services to over 100 research staff of the Division of Building Research (DBR) and is available as a basic source of information for the construction industry. The publications unit is responsible for editing, processing and distributing all division publications. The graphics unit provides all drafting, photographic and graphic art services. Technical enquiries from the construction industry are answered by the technical information unit.

UFFI Unit

The objective of this unit is to provide the technical database required to effect a satisfactory resolution to the UFFI problem as it affects the habitability (indoor air quality), property value, structural integrity and occupant well-being of Canada's residential and/or non-industrial building stock.

Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information (CISTI)

The institute is Canada's national centre for scientific and technical information, consisting of a central facility and 15 branches that serve the laboratory divisions of the National Research Council.

Director's Office

The Director's Office is responsible for the administration and operation of the institute in fulfilling its mandate to provide the people and Government of Canada with scientific and technical information services.

Acquisitions Section

This section is responsible for acquiring, by purchase and exchange, all significant scientific, technical and biomedical information from worldwide sources. This includes books, periodicals, technical reports and conference proceedings in many languages and in different formats (e.g., printed or on film).

Branch Libraries

The 12 branch libraries provide scientific and technical information services to the various divisions of the National Research Council, supplementing the library resources and services of the main facility.

Cataloguing Section

This section is responsible for processing newly-received publications for the CISTI library by creating a computer-based descriptive record of each item. These records are then used by the public to identify and locate items of interest by means of a computer terminal. The records are also available on microfilm.

Manuals

- Anglo-American Cataloguing Rules

Document Delivery Section

The section lends books and provides photocopies of articles to clients in response to requests. It is also responsible for providing information on the availability of translations of scientific and technical articles from foreign languages, and of publications that are difficult to obtain, such as official publications of foreign government departments.

Manuals

- Interlibrary Loan Code
- Library Telecommunications Code

Health Sciences Resource Centre

The centre is responsible for providing a library reference service on health-related topics and for co-ordinating Canada's use of the U.S. National Library of Medicine computerized information service for medicine (Medline).

Information Services

The service provides scientific and technical information to the public in response to specific requests, using both computerized and manual searches of the literature. The section also operates a national on-line search capability for scientific and technical literature, (On-Line Enquiry System — CAN/OLE), as well as a national computerized current-awareness service (Selective Dissemination of Information — CAN/SDI), which regularly informs clients of the latest publications on a specified subject.

Manuals

- CAN/OLE User's Manual
- CAN/OLE Database Manual
- CAN/SDI Profile Design Manual

Publications Section

This section is responsible for the production of such CISTI publications as the "Union List of Scientific Serials", for use by libraries throughout Canada. It also produces publicity material describing the services offered by CISTI.

Scientific Numeric Databases

These databases allow scientists to access and manipulate such scientific numeric data as infrared spectral data, thermochemical data, and crystallographic data.

Industry Development Office

Industrial Research Assistance Program (IRAP)

Initiated in 1962, IRAP is the oldest continuous government program providing stimulus for industrial development and technological innovation. Through the system for IRAP contributions, NRC provides financial assistance to cover the costs of salaries for company research staff engaged in approved projects. Participating companies provide the research facilities, and other expenses involved in the project, and retain all titles and rights to the results of the jointly-funded research. The IRAP secretariat also administers the mini-IRAP program, and until their termination in March 1980, it administered the Scientific and Technical Employment Program (STEP) and the Scientific and Technical Employment Program Extension (STEPEX).

Manuals

- IRAP brochure describing the program and its "Conditions of Support"
- Mini-IRAP brochure

Industry Policy Analysis

This office carries out industry policy analysis and analysis of industry programs in anticipation of, and in response to, management requirements.

Program for Industry/Laboratory Projects (PILP)

The objective of the program is to bring about the application and use of scientific and engineering knowledge in situations in which significant economic and social benefits to Canada can be foreseen. It is a co-operative program between Canadian industry and the federal government, which offers financial contributions and assistance in the identification, development and marketing of technologies to which government scientific or engineering staff can make significant contributions. In addition, the unsolicited proposal program is administered by PILP on behalf of Supply and Services Canada. It provides for contracting out of projects of interest to NRC divisions.

Manuals

- NRC Financial Management Manual
- Computer Use Manual (in preparation)

EDP Systems

- Computer storage of historical and current data

Industrial Technology Advisory Service (IRAP-F)

The service provides scientific and technical information, advice, and assistance to the Canadian manufacturing industry to help solve technical problems, improve production operations, increase productivity, identify opportunities resulting from technological developments, and promote the utilization of research results in industry. Engineers are located across the country and provide direct in-plant, person-to-person contact with the firms — an essential element of successful technology transfer, particularly where smaller companies are involved. A central advisory service provides direct support to field staff by providing specialized knowledge and skills, facilitating access to NRC, federal, and other resources, and undertaking various field assignments.

EDP Systems

- Enquiry Index — an annual index prepared from a computerized listing of titles of enquiries answered by this unit

Field Advisory Service (IRAP-C)

The service provides scientific and technical information, advice and assistance to the Canadian manufacturing industry to help solve technical problems, improve production operations, increase productivity, develop new processes, products or markets, reduce costs and increase profits, and contribute to the economic and social development of the country. The engineers and scientists located across the country provide direct, in-plant, person-to-person contact with the firms — this is an essential element of successful technology transfer, particularly for small firms that have no engineering staff or other technical resources. (For field office locations, see Regional contacts at beginning of chapter.)

Manuals

- Diagnostique — A Procedure for Analyzing the Needs of the Small Manufacturing Enterprise

Research Journals

The NRC publishes primary journals of research in various disciplines as a service to the scientific and engineering communities in Canada. The journals contain original reports of research written by scientists in Canada and abroad.

The publishing office is responsible for copy processing, setting of specifications for typesetting and printing contracts, production management, quality control, marketing and financial administration for the journals.

Manuals

- Instruction manuals for copy-editors

VICE-PRESIDENT (FINANCE)

The Vice-President (Finance) is responsible for the organization of financial administration in the NRC and for ensuring the effectiveness of policies, systems and procedures including the appointment, classification, training and performance of employees with financial responsibilities.

Computation Centre

The centre is a branch within the National Research Council that provides data processing services in support of divisional and branch research and administrative activities on a full cost-recovery basis.

Chief's Office

The Chief's Office is responsible for the administration and operation of the branch through the formulation and direction of centre policy, planning, forecasting, service rate structures and contracting.

Customer Service Section

The section is responsible for the analysis and development of user-requested application programs, user education and general assistance in the use of the Computation Centre's facilities and implementation of purchased software products.

Manuals

- Technical reference manuals from hardware manufacturers, and suppliers' specifications on the command structure for the operating systems, compilers and assemblers

Systems Section

Section activities include the maintenance and implementation of operating systems and telecommunication software, the monitoring of hardware performance and the revision of software to obtain optimum hardware performance for the applications processed on the Computation Centre's computer system.

Operations Section

The section is responsible for the computer system operation, magnetic tape and disk library, and data-entry services.

VICE-PRESIDENT (PERSONNEL AND ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES)

The Vice-President (Personnel and Administrative Services) is responsible for the complete personnel function, including employment, collective bargaining and related personnel services. Other duties include all NRC central administrative services.

Research Projects Support Office

The office is composed of two operating sections and supporting services. Its function is to undertake, on behalf of laboratories and program offices, the administration and reporting of NRC research and development contracted out to industry or universities.

Classes of Records

NRC/EXE-005 Formerly Identified as: NRC-EX-10
President's Office

Description: Information on visits, lectures, gifts, interviews; correspondence with the Minister; outside enquiries on selection of staff; correspondence and minutes on board memberships.

NRC/EXE-010 Formerly Identified as: NRC-EX-20
Council Secretariat

Description: Documents on council membership, meetings and agenda; review and advisory committees of council; divisional advisory boards; follow-up of council decisions; and correspondence with the Minister's Office, the Privy Council Office, Members of Parliament and the Senate Committee on Science Policy. Information on legal advice, patents, audits, associate committees and archival material. Topics: General administration; National Research Council committees; memoranda to Cabinet and decisions; history and archives; legal services; audits; associate committees; official languages, access to information and privacy; and affirmative action.

NRC/EXE-015 Formerly Identified as: NRC-EX-30
Executive Vice-President

Description: Working papers, memoranda and correspondence with federal and provincial government departments, universities and industry on research policy and planning as it concerns the mandate of the National Research Council. Topics: Research policy and planning; Tactical Studies Group.

NRC/EXE-020 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PRIS-10
Public Relations and Information Services

Description: Information on general public information programs at the NRC. Topics: General administration; responses to enquiries from the media and general public; tours and visits, conferences and seminars; NRC publications, displays and exhibits; films and audio-visual material; graphics; photography; NRC open house.

NRC/EXE-025 Formerly Identified as: NRC-EXREL-10
International Relations

Description: Information on visits to and from outside organizations, both within Canada and abroad; passport procurements for NRC staff; responses to requests for financial assistance; correspondence regarding international scientific exchanges and technical assistance to developing countries. Topics: Administration; finance; committees; international scientific exchanges; countries.

NRC/ARL-030 Formerly Identified as: NRC-ARL-10
Director's Office

Description: Director's working files include material on the activities of projects, such as research and development and project planning; travel and conference files; NRC committees (e.g., Committee of Directors). Topics: General correspondence and files on research and development as it pertains to research projects; files by subject interest, e.g., peat, coal, aquaculture; general correspondence from various divisions within the NRC, by division; working files on Five-Year Plan; and forward planning.

NRC/ARL-035 Formerly Identified as: NRC-ARL-20
Administration

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, requests, minutes, and technical reports. Topics: Plant engineering; requests (analyses, chemicals and cultures, scientific information); cultural organizations (conferences and symposia meetings); scientific societies and institutes; committees (health and safety, scientific committees); Seaweed Culture Station files (basically engineering and maintenance); unpublished manuscripts; financial services; and personnel files.

NRC/ARL-040 Formerly Identified as: NRC-ARL-30
Analytical Methods and Services

Description: Information on scientific investigations and analyses and the management of the Marine Analytical Chemistry Standards Program and other analytical methods and services, including distribution of reference materials and reports. Topics: Research and development contracts; publications; mass spectral data; electron microscopy; X-ray diffraction; and electrophoresis. Special Access Note: Mass spectral data stored on 2T-12 sector discs (double density; 5 megabyte capacity), formatted for an INCOS data system.

NRC/ARL-045 Formerly Identified as: NRC-ARL-50
Marine Biosciences

Description: Research files of published and unpublished data, reprints and information relating to research on structure, taxonomy, genetics, biosynthesis, membrane components and marine natural products. Topics: General correspondence; seminars; chemicals and equipment; algal metabolites; hydrocarbons; fatty acids; sterols; carotenoids; isoprenoids; aromatics; toxins; drugs; cyclic peptides; tetrapyrroles; biosynthesis; <sup>13</sup>C nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) spectroscopy; mass spectrometry; chromatography; synthetic techniques; and chemotaxis.

NRC/ARL-050 Formerly Identified as: NRC-ARL-60
Biological Chemistry

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and technical reports on the development and application of nuclear magnetic resonance techniques and the use of stable isotopes for the solution of biological and chemical problems. Topics: Nuclear Magnetic Resonance (NMR); biological, synthetic and chemical applications; instrumentation techniques; theory; biosynthetic studies of natural products from algae, fungi, bacteria; chemical studies of natural products, organic and inorganic compounds.

NRC/ARL-055 Formerly Identified as: NRC-ARL-70
Industrial Materials and Processes

Description: Working files in areas of metallurgical chemistry, coal and peat. Topics: Correspondence; minutes and proceedings of meetings; research agreements or contracts; technical reports; and bibliographic material on metallurgical chemistry.

NRC/ARL-060 Formerly Identified as: NRC-ARL-90
Microbiology

Description: Correspondence and working papers on algology and microbiology. Working files on isolation, identification and ecology of soil fungi and lichens, structure determination and toxicity of fungal metabolites. Topics: Chemistry of lichen substances; taxonomy and distribution of peat mosses; infrared and mass spectra of lichen substances; nuclear magnetic resonance spectra; collection of peat mosses from Canada; taxonomy and ecology of soil fungi; production and isolation of fungal toxins; structure determinations; toxicity of fungal metabolites.

NATIONAL RESEARCH COUNCIL OF CANADA

NRC/BSC-065 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-10

Administration

Description: Documents on the operation of the individual laboratory sections such as project planning and reports, program forecasts, studies in industrial microbiology, travel and seminar information.

Topics: General correspondence, policy, visits, technical enquiries, administration and operation, technical support — e.g., supplies and equipment, and safety committee.

NRC/BSC-070 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-20

Cell Physiology

Description: Information on cell physiology, cell proliferation and biochemistry.

NRC/BSC-075 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-30

Animal Care and Research

Description: Information on the basic care and health of research animals and on immunological research in relation to animals. Topics: General correspondence and policy on animal care and research.

NRC/BSC-080 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-40

Microbiology

Description: Information on microbiology, research related to the production of fuels and feed stock from biomass (especially cellulose) and the storage of fruit and vegetables. Topics: General correspondence; fermentation processes and products; microbial physiology and metabolism; enzymology; transport phenomena; cell division; continuous culture; anaerobis; immobilized cells and enzymes; culture collection; celluloses; bioreactors; energy; methane; alcohol; liquid fuels; fruit and vegetable storage.

NRC/BSC-085 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-50

Biomathematics

Description: Correspondence and laboratory notebooks containing information on statistical analysis and mathematical modelling. Topics: Biomathematics; statistics; computer modelling; deconvolution.

NRC/BSC-090 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-60

Cell Biophysics

Description: Information on research activities in cellulose biosynthesis, methanogenic bacteria, macromolecules and biophysics generally. Topics: Biophysics; macromolecules; methanogenic bacteria; microfibrils; cellulose biosynthesis; electron microscopy.

NRC/BSC-095 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-70

Ecotoxicology

Description: Information on the mechanisms of action of toxic organometals at the tissue, cellular and subcellular levels and the movement of toxic chemicals through environmental pathways. Topics: Toxicity of organometals; environmental contaminants.

NRC/BSC-100 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-80

Animal Physiology

Description: Information on the neural and hormonal control of energy balance in mammals. Topics: Energy balance in mammals; obesity; brown adipose tissue.

NRC/BSC-105 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-90

Environmental Studies

Description: Working papers and bibliographic material in the areas of heavy metals, physical energy phenomena, pesticides, water, air, fluoride and biology generally, on which criteria and monographs are published. Topics: Correspondence, minutes and proceedings, membership, terms of reference of the Environmental Secretariat, the Associate Committee on Scientific Criteria and its subcommittees and working groups on physical energy phenomena, air, metals, water, pesticides, toxicology; inventory of pollution research in Canada and abroad; contract-based research proposals; research agreements or contracts; trace element metabolism; NRC-PCB Study (Regina). Retrievability: Research contracts broken down by company name.

NRC/BSC-110 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-100

Immunochemistry

Description: Information on immunology and immunochemistry. Topics: Antigens; antibody; pathogenic bacteria; hybridomas; diagnostics; vaccines.

NRC/BSC-115 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-110

Molecular Biochemistry

Description: Information on studies on the structure, interaction and dynamics of biologically active proteins. Topics: Enzymes; enzyme-substrate interaction; proteins; enzyme catalysis; Raman spectroscopy; fluorescence spectroscopy; circular dichroic spectroscopy.

NRC/BSC-120 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-120

Molecular Biophysics

Description: Information on research involving the use of NMR resonance and ESR techniques. Topics: Structure — function relations; cell membranes; metabolism; NMR spectroscopy.

NRC/BSC-125 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-130

Molecular Genetics

Description: Correspondence and memoranda relating to recombinant DNA, yeast genetics and protein sequencing. Topics: Genetic engineering; recombinant DNA; gene expression; protein secretion; enzyme production.

NRC/BSC-130 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BIOSCI-140

X-Ray Crystallography

Description: Information on crystal structures, X-ray analyses and protein work. Topics: X-ray crystallography; crystallographic computing. Storage Media: Computer printouts and X-ray films.

NRC/BRI-135 Formerly Identified as: NRC-BRI-10

Administration

Description: Material under control of this office includes documents relating to the operation of the individual laboratories such as space, policy planning, reports, travel, seminars, general information. Topics: General correspondence, policy, visits, seminars, staffing, administration, research and development studies, supplies, equipment.

NRC/CCS-140 Formerly Identified as: NRC-CCSS-10

Administration

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports related to project planning, program forecasts, international co-operation and the overall operation of the Canada Centre for Space Science. Topics: Committees — Advisory Group on Priorities, Consultative Committee on Auroral Observatory, joint range policy, Scientific Planning Group and teams; co-operation and liaison — countries (France, India, U.K., U.S.), international organizations (Cospar, NASA, UN), industries, universities; licences and permits; organization and planning; reports and publicity.

Scientific Planning and Evaluation

Description: Information pertaining to programs supported by CCSS funds, evaluation reports, records of planning and other meetings: general correspondence, minutes and proceedings, memberships, long-term planning and direction and international interactions. Topics: Canada Sounding Rocket Planning Group (CSRPG); plans for space science in Canada; satellite projects; Space Science Evaluation and Planning Group (SSEPG). Retrievability: Files arranged by subject, type of program, government department, university, company and country.

Instrument Development

Description: Information on the development of space science instruments: correspondence, memoranda, contracts, studies, planning reports related to administration, finance, equipment and supplies, and co-operation with other agencies. Topics: CANOPUS; Data Analysis Network; Energetic Ion Mass Spectrometer; Viking UV Imager; Waves in Space Plasma/High Frequency; Wide-Angle Michelson Doppler Imaging Interferometer.

NRC/CCS-155 Formerly Identified as: NRC-CCSS-40

Engineering Administration

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, technical reports, intergovernmental and interagency agreements, technical enquiries, operational plans and committee minutes on the operation and maintenance of space research facilities and the provision of engineering support for scientific rockets and balloons. Topics: Operations; balloon programs; data processing; eclipses; operation in other locations; range safety; satellites; support by other organizations; use of CCSS facilities.

Operational Engineering and Projects

Description: Information on the items required to provide support to the space science community: it consists of general correspondence, minutes of meetings, technical definitions, equipment performance reports (technical), engineering studies and data processing on topics such as rocket projects and telemetry.

Equipment and Facilities

Description: Information on the planning, equipping, manning and use of space science research facilities in Canada. Topics: Correspondence on administration and policy; technical enquiries and replies; contract documentation; intergovernmental agreements; hardware engineering and development; rocket, balloon and satellite programs; minutes of meetings, seminars; international meetings; operations; balloon programs — large, small balloons; data processing; eclipses; operation in other locations; range safety; satellites; support by other organizations; use of CCSS facilities.

Administration

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, and reports relating to the operation of the laboratory sections, and the provision of scientific assistance to business, the general public and other agencies. Topics: General files — correspondence, technical enquiries, visits, lectures, seminars, publications, inventions; tests for outsiders; research.

NRC/DCH-170 Formerly Identified as: NRC-CHEM-20

Analytical Chemistry

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and general enquiries on analytical methods and analysis problems. Topics: General correspondence; trace analysis — emission; X-ray; atomic absorption; organic and spark source mass spectrometry; inductively coupled plasma analysis.

NRC/DCH-175 Formerly Identified as: NRC-CHEM-30

Chemical Engineering — Spherical Agglomeration

Description: Reports, correspondence and memoranda on membrane separation processes, spherical agglomeration, particle size enlargement, beneficiation of coal, the upgrading of ores, and the application of the relevant technologies to industrial problems. Topics: General correspondence; reverse osmosis; ultrafiltration; recovery of coal fines; fluid-particle technology; emulsions; coal-oil mixtures.

Chemical Physics Spectroscopy

Description: Correspondence, reports and memoranda on semiconductors, electron spin resonance spectroscopy and transient phenomena. Topics: General correspondence; electronic properties; semiconductor films; photovoltaics; carrier generation; transport properties; sputtering.

NRC/DCH-185 Formerly Identified as: NRC-CHEM-50

Colloid and Clathrate Chemistry

Description: Memoranda, reports, general enquiries; requests from industry on separation problems; colloids; particles. Topics: General correspondence; spherical agglomeration; oil sands bitumen separation; dielectric properties; NMR; clathrate hydrates.

High Polymer Chemistry — Plastics

Description: General enquiries, reports and correspondence on polymer science, stereoregular polymers, plastics and rubbers. Topics: General correspondence; ionic polymerization mechanisms; block polymers; star polymers; characterization of stereoregular polymers; NMR; catalytic complexes.

Hydrocarbon Chemistry

Description: General correspondence, memoranda and reports on the autoxidation of liquid hydrocarbons and the efficacy of anti-oxidants. Topics: Hydrocarbon research; free radicals; chain reactions in the liquid phase; reaction-rate constants; ESR spectroscopy; the chemistry of free radicals in solution; Vitamin E.

Kinetics, Catalysis, ESR Spectroscopy

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports on chemisorption, catalysis, ESR spectroscopy and air pollution problems. Topics: General correspondence; hydrocarbon research; free radicals; ozone layer; photochemical smog; electron paramagnetic resonance; heterogeneous catalysis; fluorine-containing radicals; and carbonyl compounds.

Laser Chemistry

Description: General correspondence, memoranda, reports relating to laser applications and isotope separation. A significant portion of this information is contained in laboratory notebooks. Topics: General correspondence; industrial contracts; laser isotope separation; uses of lasers industry; metal atom reactions.

Metallic Corrosion and Oxidation

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports on metallic corrosion and oxidation, and replies to general and specific requests for assistance from industry and government on these subjects. Topics: General correspondence; corrosion of metals; formation of oxides on metals; electrochemistry; electron microscopy; Mossbauer spectroscopy; surface film characterization.

NRC/DCH-215 Formerly Identified as: NRC-CHEM-110

Molecular Spectroscopy

Description: Correspondence concerning the general administration of research activities, chemical synthesis, scientific collaboration and the publication of scientific reports. Topics: Carbene chemistry, free radical chemistry, organometallic chemistry, thermochemistry, kinetics, synthesis, deuterium labelling, steroids and alkaloids.

Photochemistry and Kinetics

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports on gas-phase kinetics; reactions of atoms, radicals and other transient species. Topics: General correspondence; research on mass spectroscopy; photochemistry; photophysics; infrared chemiluminescence; laser isotope separation.

NRC/DCH-230 Formerly Identified as: NRC-CHEM-140

Reaction Intermediates

Description: Correspondence, reports and memoranda relating to transient species, laser techniques and luminescent materials. A substantial amount of this information is contained in laboratory notebooks and journal publications. Topics: General correspondence; properties of reaction intermediates; laser techniques; fluorescence and phosphorescence.

Solid State Chemistry — Metals

Description: Correspondence and memoranda on metals, alloys, etc., their properties and characterization techniques. Topics: General correspondence; magnetism; metals and alloys; electrons in metals; amorphous metals; hydrides; thermodynamics; X-ray diffraction; crystallographic structures.

Textile Chemistry — Fiber Science

Description: Reports, correspondence and memoranda relating to research in textile chemistry, including general enquiries, requests for information and assistance from industry and other government departments. Topics: General (enquiries, visits, lectures, papers, publications, seminars); research in textile chemistry; textile research for companies, industry and government; polymer photochemistry; UV stabilization; morphology; X-ray diffraction; flammability; flame retardants.

Theoretical Chemistry

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports relating to the above research activities. Topics: General correspondence; dynamics of liquids and solids; structure-function relationships; biomathematics; radiationless transitions; vibronic coupling; molecular physics; condensation phenomena; resonance Raman scattering.

Computer Graphics

Description: Information on research projects in the following areas: computer graphics, image processing and computer vision, simulation and modelling, parallel system architecture, real-time sensory robotics, and application of artificial intelligence. Topics: Policy, general correspondence, image processing, data analysis, computer graphics and computer aided design, intelligent robotics, industrial activities.

NRC/DEE-260 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DEE-30

Electromagnetic Engineering

Description: Information on research projects related to fundamental and applied problems in electromagnetic radiation and antenna theory. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; television; precipitation radar; microwave heating and drying; hail research (Alberta); microwave and high-frequency measurements and standards; tests for outsiders.

NRC/DEE-265 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DEE-40

Electron Physics

Description: Records contain information on research projects related to surface science and ultrahigh vacuum, in particular, physical properties of surfaces, lanthanum hexaboride (as an electron emitter), microfabrication of electronic thin film devices, quantum electronics and laser technology as related to line width, optical memories and optical spectroscopy and liquid helium production. Some of this information is contained in laboratory notebooks. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; major projects on surface science; helium liquifier device; quantum electronics; surface physics; and ultra high vacuum.

Electronics Engineering

Description: Information on research projects related to instrumentation and software for intelligent robotic subsystems, sensor development, signal processing and photovoltaic systems. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; sensor development; signal processing; digital instrumentation; photovoltaic systems; fibre optic sensors; integrated optic sensors.

NRC/DEE-275 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DEE-60

Information Science

Description: Information on research projects related to computer-aided learning or training and the specialized equipment associated with this field. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; touch sensitive x-y encoder; information retrieval and documentation; thermal radiation detection; research on computer-aided learning; and research on CAD/CAM; Canadian Patents and Development Ltd.

Biomedical Engineering Research Program

Description: Information on research projects related to specialized instruments and techniques required in the medical field, such as the development of technical aids for the handicapped, and the measurement and study of the effects of ultrasound and electric current flow on body tissues. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; guiding devices for the blind; medical electronics; echoencephalography; aids to the handicapped; prosthetics and orthotics research; reference catalogue; ultrasound; communication aids; Rehabilitation International; body signals; biomedical engineering activities in Canada; Advisory Committee on Technical Assistance to the Handicapped; operation of rehabilitation technology unit.

NRC/DEE-285 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DEE-80

Power Engineering

Description: Information on research projects related to instrumentation and standards associated with the Canadian electrical power industry. Topics: Policy; general correspondence;

Description: General documentation on energy research and development within NRC, including planning documents, interdepartmental collaboration, public information, visits, seminars. Topics: Correspondence; policy; enquiries; visits; lectures; reviews; articles for publication; seminars; inventions; meetings; exhibits; reports; committees; research — in-house energy conservation program.

NRC/DEN-300 Formerly Identified as: NRC-ENERGY-20

Biomass Energy

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and reports on biomass energy research — agricultural sources, forest sources, harvesting technology, conversion technology, alternative liquid fuels. Topics: Enquiries, contractor workshops, ethanol, methanol, peat; contracts; contractors' reports; co-operation and liaison with industry.

Fusion Energy

Description: Working papers, correspondence, enquiries, related to all aspects of fusion energy research and development, especially to magnetic confinement technology of tokamak, fusion fuels (tritium) technology, and inertial confinement technology with lasers. Topics: Correspondence, reports, presentations, conferences, committees, interdepartmental liaison; fusion program IV.3; KMS Fusion Inc.; contractors' reports; laser fusion facility studies.

Solar Energy

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, reports, and contracts related to research on solar systems — thermal, photovoltaic, agricultural — and to specific solar components. Significant information is recorded in the form of contractor reports. Topics: Administration; federal-provincial agreements; fundamental studies; resource assessment; advanced scientific projects; industrial technology and product development; systems trials and demonstrations; agricultural applications; analysis and design methods; monitoring; tests and standards; information and liaison; Solar Purchase Program; heat pumps.

Wind Energy

Description: Working papers, correspondence, enquiries, contractor reports on all aspects of wind energy research and development, especially resource assessment, field trials and prototype development. Topics: Correspondence, reports and presentations, conferences, economics and wind energy, committees, interdepartmental liaison, unsolicited proposals and inventions; wind energy resource assessment; wind energy research (performance analyses, structural analyses, Atlantic Wind Test Site; environmental interaction, materials, standards); wind energy field trials; megawatt prototype (AEOLUS).

NRC/DEN-320 Formerly Identified as: NRC-ENERGY-60
Heat Pumps

Description: Correspondence, enquiries, contractors' reports, meeting, conferences, workshops, interdepartmental liaison, committees related to all aspects of heat pump research. Topic: Heat pump research.

NRC/DEN-325 Formerly Identified as: NRC-ENERGY-70
Hydrogen and Energy Storage

Description: Documentation on hydrogen and energy storage research and development, including committees, interdepartmental collaboration, federal-provincial agreements and international liaison. Topic: Correspondence, enquiries, inventions, reports, meetings, conferences, workshops; Hydrogen Industry Council / 1458-6; Hydrogen Research / 2458-5; Canadian Hydrogen Association / 1453-173 IEA (International Energy Agency) — Hydrogen / 1465-5-24; International Association for Hydrogen Energy / 1459-136; Advisory Committee on Hydrogen and Electrochemistry — Hydro Quebec / 1490-10-10; Proposed Institute of Electrochemistry / 9000-22.

NRC/DEN-330 Formerly Identified as: NRC-ENERGY-80
Peat Program

Description: Correspondence, enquiries, contractors' reports, meetings, conferences, workshops, committees related to all aspects of peat research. Topic: General correspondence; McNamara construction; Peat Forum.

NRC/HIA-335 Formerly Identified as: NRC-HIA-10
Administration

Description: Correspondence, memoranda pertaining to policies, contracts, contributions, special projects, program forecasts and other administrative matters as they apply to the operation of each laboratory section and the Canada-France-Hawaii Telescope. Topics: Administration (general correspondence, enquiries, visits, lectures, talks and papers, review of manuscripts, theses for outsiders, seminars and colloquia, unsolicited suggestions and ideas submitted to HIA, exhibits and displays); research — general; Canada-France-Hawaii Telescope (CFHT) Board of Directors; contracts with CFHT; CFHT Canadian Project Office; miscellaneous work done for outsiders.

NRC/HIA-340 Formerly Identified as: NRC-HIA-20
Astronomy

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and working papers connected to the topics listed below. Topics: Policy, correspondence; 46-meter telescope; long baseline interferometry; solar radio noise; joint solar observing programs; solar maximum year; requests for observing time on telescope (other than ARO); visits to ARO; long-range planning; meals and board; instrumentation; application for observing time; data processing; Ottawa River Solar Observatory.

Radio Astronomy

Description: Correspondence, memoranda and radio maps. Topics: General correspondence; operation and administration; fires and fire protection.

NRC/HIA-365 Formerly Identified as: NRC-HIA-70

Space Physics

Description: Information on basic research in space physics. Topics: General correspondence; auroral processes; Birkeland currents; cosmic rays; ionosphere; magnetosphere; space plasmas; McKay Street Cosmic Ray Laboratory.

NRC/HIA-370 Formerly Identified as: NRC-HIA-80

Spectroscopy

Description: General correspondence and information related to spectroscopic research. Topics: Policy; infrared spectra of polyatomic molecules; electronic spectra; vibrations in polyatomic molecules; spectra of molecular ions; laser-Stark and laser-Zeeman methods scanning infrared lasers; use of double resonance and two-photon spectroscopy.

NRC/HIA-375 Formerly Identified as: NRC-HIA-90

Spectroscopy of Larger Molecules

Description: Information on research as outlined above; this research is also published in recognized scientific journals. Topics: Electronic and infrared spectra; molecules; free radicals; effects of magnetic and electric fields; astrophysical applications; two-photon spectroscopy; saturated absorption spectroscopy; microwave-optical double resonance.

NRC/IMR-380 Formerly Identified as: NRC-LCM-10

Administration

Description: Documents on the operation of the individual laboratory sections such as project planning and reports, program forecasts, research and development on industrial materials, travel and seminar information, replies to technical enquiries, and records on technical support — i.e., supplies and equipment, safety committee. Topics: Administration; liaison (with associations, industries, foreign countries, universities, federal departments, and provinces); Government Industrial Assistance Programs; finance; budget; operations-general; projects and project evaluations; tests; and technology.

NRC/IMD-385 Formerly Identified as: NRC-IMD-10

Marine Transportation Technology

Description: Administration and operational files, general technical correspondence, working and correspondence files containing technical and administrative detail of marine transportation research studies and participation in societies, associations, conferences and government interdepartmental committees and working groups. Topics: Administration — policy, general correspondence, visits, lectures, exhibits; conferences and seminars; co-operation and liaison (with other government departments, universities, associations, clubs and societies, and foreign countries); buildings and properties; equipment and supplies; finance and personnel, operational — policy, general correspondence; research and development (general, for industry and for government).

Administration, Research, Testing

Description: Information and correspondence on the operation of the individual sections and their interactions with each other, private sector clients and other government departments; the planning, controlling and reporting of projects and programs; and the forecasting and use of financial, physical and human resources. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; enquiries; administration and operations of Western Laboratory; visits, lectures, papers and talks; review of manuscripts and theses of staff; articles for publication; seminars; laboratory orders; firms offering testing, shop work, manufacturing assistance and facilities; exhibits and displays; inventions submitted; newsletters; photographs and publicity; pollution — general correspondence; Alexander Graham Bell Museum, Baddeck, Nova Scotia; monuments; divisional project management system; finance policy; general finance correspondence; equipment and supplies by sections; research by subject; research collaboration with industry; tests.

NRC/DME-395 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DME-20

Systems Laboratory

Description: Information on the technology of computer modelling and simulation: facility development, hardware, software, methods and applications. Correspondence, memoranda and reports on the industrial and medical applications of automatic control and human factor studies information on computer modelling and simulation, distributed control and data highway development, communication characteristics of the human operator and collaborative studies with universities and government departments. Topics: General correspondence; technical enquiries; laboratory operation; digital and hybrid computing; trip reports by staff; research projects. Policy; technical enquiries; orthopedic and prosthetic appliances; heat exchange for brain cooling; specific control problems on copper refining; applications of fluid amplifiers; pattern recognition; effect of microwave radiation on birds; controlled wound healing; freeze-drying units; spinal cord cooling and monitoring; Transport Canada plate load test equipment; consultation with ND Directorate on support vehicles; Queen's University — interdisciplinary collaboration.

Engine Laboratory

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, reports, related to research on air cushion technology; energy conserving automotive power plants and fuels; aerodynamics and heat transfer in cooling of internal combustion engines; bearing design and operation, vibration prediction measurement techniques; gas turbine engines; aerodynamic theory and performance of turbo and reciprocating machinery, and on acoustics of machinery. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; enquiries; administration and operations; reports and publications; compressor design and performance of centrifugal compressor; engines — internal combustion; Vertical Take-Off and Landing (VTOL) fan-in-wing; VTOL propulsion tunnel; ceramic foam material; hybrid power plant system for automotive vehicles; air cushion hoverbed geriatric bed; icing research; fan testing rig

Low Temperature Laboratory

Description: Information on research related to engineering problems resulting from low temperature, snow and ice, primarily in the transportation field; also on test projects carried out for, or in collaboration with, industry, other government departments, and foreign government agencies. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; enquiries; operation and organization; research on icing of fishing vessels; icing protection helicopters; general aircraft icing problems; icing protection of instruments and controls; investigation of absorption refrigeration systems; research on cold starting of engines, icing detectors, railway and track switch protection, cold weather problems, snow removal methods and problems, thermal refrigeration cycles, adhesion and removal of ice substrates, heat pumps, and sea ice dynamics; tests for outsiders — in cold chamber, in high-speed icing wind tunnel, in low-speed icing wind tunnel, in helicopter spray rig; research and development.

NRC/DME-425 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DME-80
Designing and Manufacturing Technology

Description: Correspondence, reports, memoranda relating to information on the design of scientific and laboratory equipment, manufacturing methods and statistical information on machinery capabilities. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; enquiries; organization and administration; electrochemical machining; work orders; railway investigation — warning lights, roller test rig; machine work for outsiders; other design engineering; reinforced plastics technology; electron beam welding; laser beam welding; numerically controlled machine tools; electro-chemical machining; electrical discharge machining; steel heat treatment; precision gear design and manufacture; research and development — general correspondence.

NRC/DME-426 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DME-90
Railway Laboratory Research, Development, Tests and Calibration

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, reports, test work statements on the main areas of responsibility of the laboratory. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; enquiries; organization and administration; Committee on Train Dynamics and Lading Damage; development of tools to facilitate vascular orthopedic and plastic surgery; orthotic and prosthetic devices; development of aids to handicapped; gravity wave instrumentation; environment recording systems; pressure gauge calibrations; altimeters and airspeed; track simulator drive; rail car studies; railway computer modelling; VIA RDC Modernization Program; centre sill cracking in rotary dump iron ore cars; testing of subway cars.

NRC/DME-430 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DME-100
Tribology, Computerized Design and Manufacturing, and Mechanical Technologies

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, reports relating to research and development on the wear of materials (mainly in machinery), rails, wheels and bearings; computerized manufacturing; and small-scale agricultural and logging equipment. Topics: General administration — policy; correspondence; enquiries; administration and operations; visits; lectures; papers and talks; manuscript review by staff; articles for publication; seminars; workshops; inventions; photographs and publicity; research files — tribology; materials; instrumentation; numerically controlled machines; manufacturing processes; mechanics and machine design; appropriate technology; research and development for outsiders.

Administration

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, reports, statistics on the administration and operation of the division. Topics: Enquiries; visits to the division; visits and invitations to outside organizations; lectures, talks and papers presented by staff; review of manuscripts and theses; seminars and colloquia; inventions submitted to the division; patent and licensing activities; finance; equipment and supplies; work done for outsiders.

NRC/DMS-440 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DMS-20
Condensed Matter Theory

Topics: Quantum Hall effect; superconductivity; organic superconductors; density-functional theory of plasmas, metals and liquid metals; amorphous silicon; point-contact spectroscopy of metals; pair potentials in transition metals; dielectric function of the electron gas; ice.

NRC/DMS-445 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DMS-30
Quantum Microphysics

Topics: Transient electron and lattice dynamics in semiconductors; optical non-linear interactions at solids and surfaces; laser damage; quantized Hall effect and magneto-transport; magnons and phonons in mixed crystals; light scattering from surfaces; Raman spectroscopy of surfaces; ion and electron interactions with surfaces; solar thermal absorption.

NRC/DMS-450 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DMS-40

Electronic Structure and Calorimetry

Topics: Calorimetry, electronic structure of pure metals; electronic structure of dilute alloys; electronic structure of intermetallic compounds and ordered alloys; effects of hydrostatic pressure on electronic structure of metals.

NRC/DMS-455 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DMS-50

Molecular Beam Epitaxy

Topics: Molecular Beam Epitaxy equipment for the growth of III-V compounds and Group IV/Metals; superlattices, quantum wells; optical devices; X-ray mirrors; abrupt junctions; photoluminescence, Hall effect and other characterization techniques.

NRC/DMS-460 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DMS-60

Electron Physics

Description: This section of Electrical Engineering is also a member of this division. For information, refer to the description under "Electrical Engineering".

NRC/NAE-465 Formerly Identified as: NRC-NAE-10

Management

Description: The files contain material related to the orderly management of all programs and projects in the establishment, contracts and agreements relating to external commitments, correspondence with national and international clients, and material pertaining to NAE involvement in organizations devoted to the aeronautical sciences. Topics: Administration (general correspondence, national and international agreements and contracts, publications, technical enquiries, programs and projects, planning, conferences, laboratory operations, policy, aircraft accidents, AGARD, CAARC, publicity and inventions); research; tests and work done for outsiders.

Flight Research

Description: Design, operations and maintenance material on the aircraft in use; project files containing transactions on the individual research projects; material on international co-operative research arrangements; and records of projects involving other government departments and industry. Topics: Aircraft (by type); policy; general correspondence; military reconnaissance aircraft antisubmarine (MAD); development in airborne supply dropping; crash position indicator; computing facilities; advice and assistance on aircraft use in agriculture and forestry; forest fire control; air cushion vehicles; atmospheric turbulence; jet transport operating problems; airborne infrared techniques for resource survey; hail suppression techniques; airport fog dispersal; aerial spray systems and techniques; field experiments on drift; automobile crash detector, air data recorder playback; Vertical Take-Off and Landing (VTOL) and STOL projects; National Defence Convair 580 Project.

NRC/NAE-475 Formerly Identified as: NRC-NAE-30

High Speed Aerodynamics

Description: Files on internal research projects and incoming contracts that contain documentary material, both technical and contractual, that govern the work done under them. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; travel; conferences; equipment; Canadian sounding rockets; flow field survey about cones at supersonic speeds; five-foot wind tunnel; separation of the three dimensional laminar boundary layer on a flat plate; two-dimensional augmentor wing study in a five-foot wind tunnel; flutter analysis and stores clearance; wings and bodies in transonic flow; computational fluid dynamics; three-dimensional interaction; wind tunnel techniques.

Low Speed Aerodynamics

Description: Information on contracts and agreements with external agencies, military and civil; individual projects; management matters, meetings and conferences. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; internal research projects; non-aeronautical aerodynamics; fluidic devices; wind power generator; energy research and development; vehicle aerodynamics.

Public Safety Project Office

Description: Information on internal and external transactions concerning planning and projects, national and international crime countermeasures, individual projects, meetings, publications, contracts and policy. Topics: Administration; correspondence with outside organizations; operations; projects; committee study groups; crime countermeasures; fingerprinting; chemical agents; protective equipment; vapor detectors; image enhancement; patrol-car allocation; aviation security; missiles; emergency lighting; and radio-spectrum allocation.

Structures and Materials

Description: Information on internal research, external commitments, agreements with other agencies in government and industry, management matters, meetings and conferences. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; G-meters; structural fatigue; road accidents study group; composite materials; acoustic excitation of structures; orthopedic implants and biomedical materials; Ottawa-Carleton computer traffic control system; metallic materials; structural analysis; real-time photogrammetry; calibrations; impact strength of structures; crack propagation; and theory of structures.

Space Technology Program Office

Description: Information on the management of the three programs — international and national agreements, the control of prime contractor costing and finance, all technical research and development within the programs, interfacing with the Space Shuttle and its subsystems, NASA procurements offsets, post-delivery support, RMS technology developments, astronaut experiment definitions, astronaut training programs, space station feasibility studies. Topics: Policy and agreements; finance; shuttle operational flights; product assurance; materials; failure analysis; configuration management; Simfac; Remote Manipulator System; mechanical and electrical sub-systems; ground support equipment; CCTV and Lighting; schedules; Joint-Review Board; verification and tests; Astronaut program general correspondence; speaking engagements; equipment; training; space station studies; Canadian requirements studies; NASA studies.

Unsteady Aerodynamics

Description: Information on research conducted by the laboratory; includes documentary material on contract and co-operative research with the United States. Topics: Dynamic wind tunnel tests; helium hypersonic wind tunnel; oscillatory characteristics of wings and bodies; detection of explosives; trace vapor detection; techniques for dynamic testing.

NRC/DPH-505 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PH-10

Administration

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, reports, statistics on the administration and operation of the division. Topics: Enquiries; visits to the division; visits and invitations to outside organizations; lectures, talks and papers presented by staff; review of manuscripts and theses; seminars and colloquia; stores committee; lab orders; Newton apple tree; inventions submitted to the division; history project; patent and licensing activities; finance; equipment and supplies; work done for outsiders, NRC Advisory Board on TRIUMF.

Acoustics

Description: Information related to research on sound propagation and environmental studies; sound and vibration in relation to health; acoustical technology, devices, measurements and standards. Topics: Correspondence; couch noise; design and testing of ear defenders; design and calibration of circumaural earphones; noise survey in industrial plants; community noise (industrial, construction, transportation, domestic, outdoor sound propagation, noise legislation, committees on noise); exposure of man to noise; exposure of man to vibration, e.g., hand-arm vibration; microphone and sound level meter; sound reproduction; committee on hearing bioacoustics and biomechanics; seminar on noise and the community; technical planning and legislative control; advisory group on communicative disorders — U.S. National Institute of Health; specific projects — external and middle ear acoustics, earphone measurement techniques and hearing studies, hearing conservation techniques, effect of noise on sleeping persons, acoustical data processing, reduction of noise from small engines, and sound level measurement techniques.

NRC/DPH-515 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PH-30

Electrical and Time Standards

Description: Information related to research on physical standards of measurement (direct current, low-frequency alternating current, high-frequency alternating current); development of instruments and techniques of measurement; the international basis of time; primary frequency and time standards; and time dissemination. Topics: Correspondence; statistics in measurements; international intercomparisons of rf standards; research on standard frequency (NRC-CNRS co-operative work); talking clock; portable or flying clocks; commercial atomic clocks; daylight saving time; history of timekeeping; standard time zones; provincial legislation time zones; time signals requests; Bureau International de L'Heure; transmitter; antenna; licences; digital time and telephone dissemination; U.S.A. standard time and Daylight Saving Time (DST); satellite time dissemination; interference on infringement reports; Daylight Saving Time Act and Regulations.

Heat and Thermometry

Description: Information on thermometry and temperature standards, and oceanographic measurements and instrumentation. Topics: Correspondence; oceanography; photometry; heat and solid state thermometry; resistance thermometry; thermocouple thermometry; optical thermometry; thermometric fixed points; properties of thermometric materials; and temperature scales; CODATA task group on fundamental constants; International Committee on Thermometry.

NRC/DPH-525 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PH-50

High Energy Physics

Description: Information on interaction of heavy nuclei in emulsions; meson and baryon spectroscopy; rare decays of nuons and pions; and instrumentation for particle physics.

NRC/DPH-530 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PH-60

Laser and Plasma Physics

Description: Information on high-power pulsed CO<sub>2</sub> laser-plasma interaction studies; radiative interaction experiments; high-power laser development; and laser photochemistry.

NRC/DPH-535 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PH-70

Length and Mechanical Standards

Description: Information on length and mass standards and calibration; laser frequency standards and optical coatings and filters. Topics: Policy; correspondence; thin film coatings; optical thin films; ABC unification of engineering standards; measurement seminars; and hardness measurements.

Photometry and Radiometry

Description: Information on light and colour, optical instruments, and solar energy. Topics: Correspondence; colorimetry; photometry; calibration of aerial survey cameras; survey of tests on camera mounts; working group on optical properties of paper; National Bureau of Standards collaborative reference programs; seminar on colorimetry and photometry; Journal of Colour Research and Applications; Reflectance Spectroscopy Committee.

Photogrammetric Research

Description: Information on photogrammetric methods and techniques, aerial and space photogrammetry; engineering and medical photogrammetry; automation in photogrammetry and development of instruments. Topics: Correspondence; orthophoto system, photogrammetry, analytical methods in photogrammetry, ultrasonic techniques for medicine; development of an analytical stereo-plotter (The Stereorestimator); close-range applications of photogrammetry; symposium on modern technology for Cadastre.

NRC/DPH-550 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PH-100

Materials Physics

Description: Research on crystal defects. Topics: Correspondence; structure and properties of crystal defects; plastic deformation of metals and alloys; cyclic deformation; solution hardening; microstructure in deformation and fatigue; surface effects in crystal plasticity; thermodynamics of deformation; dislocation cores.

NRC/DPH-555 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PH-110

Ionizing Radiation Standards

Description: Information on radiation dosimetry; radioactivity; electron linear accelerator; Topics: Correspondence, linear accelerator group; radiation chemistry; pulse radiolysis; neutron measurements; radionuclide calibrations; radioisotopes licences; research hazards and protective measures in transportation of radioactive materials; dosimetry group.

NRC/PBI-560 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PBI-10

Support Services

Description: Information on on-going services to research inside and outside PBI. Records of the Administrative Office, the Library, the Research Illustration Group, the chemical analysis groups, Plant Engineering Services and Purchasing are included. Topics: Correspondence; personnel and budget documents; progress reports and records of research; published research papers; library books and journals; records of operation of magnetic resonance and mass spectroscopy; records of building facilities and equipment; purchasing orders.

Plant Products Technology

Description: Information related to research on fermentation processes for bacteria and plant cells; the processing of cereal and legume crops. Topics: Correspondence; fermentation; alkaloids; phased culture; protein and starch; utilization of crops.

NRC/PBI-570 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PBI-30

Plant Microbial Productivity

Description: Information on the biochemical function of lower organisms such as bacteria, fungi and algae; the degradation of wood by fungi; the conversion of carbon and atmospheric nitrogen to nutrient by plant-bacterial systems. Topics: Correspondence; contract documents; lignin and wood studies; nitrogen fixation; microbial biochemistry; blue-green algae and their metabolites; culture collection documents.

Bio-organic Chemistry

Description: Information on the chemistry of naturally occurring substances, mostly of plant origin; the synthesis and analysis of fatty acid relatives and of proteins and amino acids; the development of sex attractants for insect pests. Topics: Correspondence; analytical charts and documents; synthetic methods; analytical methods; labelled molecules; insect sex pheromones; chemical taxonomy; chromatographic methods; spectroscopy.

NRC/PBI-580 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PBI-50

Plant Cell Technology

Description: Information on cell processes in higher plants. Topics: Correspondence; production and manipulation of cell cultures; freeze-drying of plant tissues; regeneration of whole plants; fusion of cells; germplasm storage; hybridization; metabolism of cell cultures; and others.

NRC/PBI-585 Formerly Identified as: NRC-PBI-60

Plant Molecular Genetics

Description: Information on genetic-encoding molecules, on genomes, genes and gene traits; alteration and synthesis of gene fragments; vectors. Topics: Correspondence, charts and documents, methods, laboratory documents; contract documents.

NRC/TTR-590 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DBR-10

Director's Office

Description: Documents on the operation of the individual sections, advisory bodies, research and development studies and seminar or workshop information. Topics: The American Society for Testing and Materials; International Standards Organizations; CIB; Construction Industry Development Council; minutes of the Board of Directors; NRC five-year plan; sectional program and budget submissions; divisional annual reports; proceedings of council; research and development for engineering in cold regions; divisional planning committee notes; and Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation — Division of Building Research reports.

Building Materials

Description: Information on the characterization and evaluation of the performance of materials such as concrete, sealants, paints, plastics, roofing materials and clay brick through the use of chemical, physical and mineralogical techniques. Topics: The performance of clear and pigmented coatings; basic engineering properties of concrete; durability to frost-action in concrete and other porous materials; properties and performance of joint materials; characterization of building materials by their microstructure and composition; processes of degradation of organic building materials; performance of concretes as related to the chemical processes in cements; physical and mechanical properties of repair systems; performance of Canadian aggregate; performance of concrete in the presence of aggressive solutions; weathering factors and accelerated test methods for assessing durability of organic building materials; durability of cover and absorber materials for solar collectors; physics of coating formation and adhesion, and the durability of structural clay products.

Building Performance

Description: Information on the design and construction process and the observation and analysis of the operation, use and performance of actual buildings. Topics: Movement of people in buildings; occupancy classification and standards; development of building details; metric conversion for building design; user problems and activities; study of building-use information in the design process; occupant behaviour and building emergencies; development of design aids; and thermal upgrading of houses.

NRC/TTR-610 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DBR-50

Building Structures

Description: Information on the introduction of "limit states design" into Canadian structural codes and standards and the development of improved serviceability criteria based on risk considerations, including the investigation into the variability of masonry strength. Topics: Case histories of structural failures and problems due to differential movement in buildings; structural safety and serviceability; snow loads on roofs; wind effects on buildings and structures; failure of structures and progressive collapse; masonry research; wind tunnel studies of buildings; and others.

Building Services (New)

Description: Information on the evaluation of the thermal characteristics and performance of materials, components and systems leading to standards, product development and proper design. Topics: Energy calculations; energy auditing; lighting practice; efficient lighting energy use; smoke control in tall buildings; test methods and standards for active solar heating; passive solar heating; ventilation and air movement in buildings; thermal and hygric properties of materials, hermetically sealed multiple glazing; thermal performance of walls and ceilings; thermal performance of windows; airtightness of walls; advance technology in the building industry.

Fire Research

Description: Correspondence and laboratory data on the development and revision of standard methods of fire tests and research activities, which include fire performance on structural components, flammability of materials, products of combustion, growth of fire, and the influence of fire risks on the overall design of buildings. Topics: Thermal decomposition of polymers; behaviour of building components in fire; evaluation of fire behaviour of plastic components; flammability studies; fire performance information; production and movement of smoke in fire; fire protection features of buildings; development of fire; combustion of organic materials; toxicity of combustion products; fire resistance safety factors; restraint and fire severity; and commercial test reports.

Geotechnical Section

Description: Information on mineral soils, rock, permafrost, snow and ice, manuals on engineering practice, codes and standards. Topics: Deformation and stresses in soils; soil strength and rapid failures; deep foundations and excavations; regional soil conditions; frost action in soils; permafrost distribution and environmental studies; structures in permafrost; deformation and failure of fresh water ice; ice engineering; avalanche engineering; deformation and strength of

Description: Information on the division's calibration and standards facility, the instrument pool for loans, the maintenance and repair shop and the co-ordination and advisory services provided to the division.

NRC/TTR-640 Formerly Identified as: NRC-DBR-120

Noise and Vibration

Description: Information on field measurements of the sound absorption and transmission properties of buildings and building elements and research in vibration related to experimental studies of the response of actual structures under dynamic excitations, such as those provided by wind and road traffic. Topics: Development of impact test for floors; acoustical test methods; development of noise criteria; insulation of buildings from external noise; determination of dynamic response characteristics of structures; measurement of sound power of noise sources; outdoor noise propagation; reverberation room acoustics; vibration problems in buildings; earthquake engineering; and commercial test reports.

Regional Stations

Description: Correspondence and material on technical enquiries, lectures and seminars; information on the study of building materials and systems in real service or controlled laboratory environments at the Prairie Regional Station. Topics: Atlantic Station, Halifax — masonry studies in Atlantic Canada; technical enquiries; National Building Code; National Fire Code; field study reports. Prairie Station, Saskatoon — behaviour of flat roofing systems and components; shallow foundations on active subsoils; concrete in soils of high sulphate content; compression characteristics of glacial deposits in Western Canada; condensation in buildings; heat and moisture balance in buildings. B.C. Station, Vancouver — technical enquiries, National and Fire Codes; field study reports.

Technical Information

Description: Information on the activities of the Divisional Library, the Publications Unit, the Graphics Unit and the Technical Information Unit. Topics: Reference service; loans; information retrieval; periodical subscriptions; acquisitions; translation requests; abstracts, digests; Research News; Housing Notes; Canadian Building Series; Manual on Metric Building Drawing Practice; requests for information; preparation of publications and reports.

UFFI Unit

Description: These records and laboratory notebooks contain information on the chemical analysis of the foam, products used in its manufacture and those that evolved during its decomposition; the development of technique for monitoring the movement of these products within the building envelope; and other aspects related to the product. Topics: UFFI field investigations, development of remedial measures for homeowners, institutions and commercial establishments, materials, properties and emissions, development of tests to screen sample quality, field measurements of UFFI gases and particles, techniques for measuring formaldehyde and other gases in air, techniques for measuring particulate materials in air, and retrieval and dissemination of technical information related to UFFI.

NRC/TTR-660 Formerly Identified as: NRC-CISTI-10

Administration

Description: Correspondence and documents on the operation of the institute such as project planning and reports; program forecasts, agreements, finance. Topics: Administration (policy, general correspondence, enquiries, administration and operation, lectures and talks, seminars and colloquia, reference privileges, training program, interlibrary delivery systems); CISTI operations; translation services; equipment and supplies.

NRC/TTR-665 Formerly Identified as: NRC-CISTI-20

Acquisitions

Description: Records contain information related to acquiring publications for the CISTI library collection by purchase orders or exchange agreements — correspondence, invoices, payment records, processing services.

NRC/TTR-670 Formerly Identified as: NRC-CISTI-30

Branch Libraries

Description: Information on the internal operations of the branch library service to the NRC and to services extended to external organizations. Topics: Libraries (by name) — Administration, Aeronautical and Mechanical Engineering, Chemistry, Physics, Electrical Engineering, Building Research, Sussex Drive, Industrial Materials Research Institute, Dominion Astrophysical, Victoria, B.C., Dominion Radio Astrophysical, Penticton, B.C., Energy and Uplands Branches, Ottawa, Ont, Atlantic Research Branch, Halifax, N.S., Marine Dynamics Branch, St. John's, Nfld., Plant Biotechnology Branch, Saskatoon, Sask., Biotechnology Branch, Montréal, Qué.

Cataloguing

Description: Information on library automation systems, library computer applications, cataloguing rules, procedures and standards. Topics: CISTI Operations — (policy; general; correspondence; Dortmund Bibliotheks system (DOBIS).

Loans, Photocopies and Translations

Description: Correspondence and documents on the provision of loan and photocopy services outside the NRC and information on the availability of translations from foreign languages. Topics: Information Services — policy, correspondence, loan of CISTI books to outsiders, photocopy service, microfiche copies of technical reports.

Health Sciences Resource Centre

Description: General correspondence on the centre's library services, resources and the publications it produces. Topics: Policy; Health Science Serials on Order; Issue of Conference Proceedings in the Health Sciences; Advisory Committee to the Health Sciences Resource Centre; Survey Directory of Health Science Libraries in Canada; Canadian locations of journals indexed for Medline.

NRC/TTR-690 Formerly Identified as: NRC-CISTI-70

Information Services

Description: Correspondence with tape and database suppliers, and with clients on details of services available, payment procedures, etc.; also information on the marketing of CISTI services in Canada, the CAN/OLE, the CAN/SDI, and the Information Exchange Centre. Topics: Chemical Abstracts Services; Institute of Scientific Information; publications; CAN/SDI tape services; Information Exchange Centre; Reference Department; Knowledge Source Index; bibliographic databases.

Background

The Customs and Excise division of the Department of National Revenue collects revenue on both imported and domestic goods and controls the movement of international travellers and product shipments of every description. Collections in 1984-85 amounted to approximately $18 billion.

Laws and Regulations

- Customs Act
- Customs Tariff Act
- Special Import Measures Act
- Excise Act
- Excise Tax Act
- Customs and Excise Offshore Application Act

Overall Responsibilities

Customs is concerned primarily with the control of people and goods across Canada's international boundaries, which comprise not only 114 crossings on our 8,893-km frontier with the United States, but also 17 international airports and 176 other locations in Canada where Customs service is provided. The other main function of Customs is collecting revenue, mainly import duties and taxes, through the administration of the Customs Act, Customs Tariff Act, Special Import Measures Act and 61 other Acts of Parliament that touch on matters as varied as illicit narcotics and firearms, animal diseases, and fisheries protection.

Excise administers the Excise Act and Excise Tax Act and is primarily concerned with the licensing of manufacturers and wholesalers; collection of sales and excise taxes on domestic and imported goods; collection of taxes on energy products, mainly petroleum and natural gas, on behalf of the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources; regulatory control of breweries and distilleries; and collection of excise duties on spirits, beer and tobacco.

The Customs and Excise Offshore Application Act extends Customs and Excise jurisdiction beyond 12 nautical miles to the outer edge of the continental shelf or to 200 nautical miles, whichever is greater. Its impact is limited to the offshore, non-living, natural resource industries. All equipment, ships, drilling vessels, etc. operating in the defined area are now subject to Canadian Customs and Excise laws and regulations. Canadian manufacturers and suppliers to the offshore drilling rigs and related industries now have the same tariff and other protection as exists on the mainland.

Telephone: (613) 993-6220

Information Services

Customs and Excise recognizes that Canadians can comply with the law only when they know what is expected of them. For this reason, the department provides information and assistance to Canadians in several ways. The most convenient point of contact is one of the approximately 600 Customs and/or Excise offices throughout Canada, from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Victoria, British Columbia, and from Tuktoyaktuk, Northwest Territories, our most northern office, to Pelee Island, Ontario, our most southern office location. Local, district and regional Customs and Excise offices provide assistance and answer questions relating to Customs and Excise matters, in person, by telephone and by correspondence.

Major Publications

The following is a list of publications available free of charge from Customs and Excise offices or from our Public Relations Branch:

- Customs and Excise Organization Guide
- Did You Know That? — some statistics concerning Canada Customs
- Entering Canada to Study or to Work
- Exporting Goods to Canada by Mail
- For Exporters Mailing Goods to Canada
- I Declare — summarizes duty-free exemptions, customs reporting requirements and federal controls on certain goods
- Importing a Motor Vehicle into Canada
- Importing Goods into Canada?
- Thinking about Importing? What you should know
- Moving back to Canada
- Seasonal Residents
- Settling in Canada
- Value for Duty

Films and Video Cassettes

The following film and video cassettes are available on loan from our Public Relations Branch:

- A Convention in Canada — initiatives to facilitate holding a convention in Canada (video cassette)
- Customs and You — the role of Canada Customs (available on 16-mm film; also available on video cassette for the hearing impaired)

Other Publications

The quarterly newsletter: Excise News, provides up-to-date announcements about Excise policy and legislative changes, advertises other more specialized Excise publications available to the public, and lists all new Excise rulings. Copies of individual rulings are available on request from

Program Overview

The general mandate of the Department is established by the Department of National Revenue Act, which sets out a single program concerned principally with commodity taxation. As such, it is managed as a single program for greater organizational and financial efficiency and effectiveness. The Department's program is separated into three planning elements — Excise, Customs and Corporate Administration.

The Excise Planning Element is made up of six planning sub-elements: tax information; revenue collections; verification and enforcement; excise duty; policy and systems; and program management and support.

The Customs Planning Element is made up of five planning sub-elements: port operations; regional appraisals and adjustments; interpretative policy determinations and appeals; program development and systems maintenance; and program management and support.

The Corporate Administration Planning Element is comprised of activities related to corporate management, personnel administration, audit and evaluation, public relations, and the deputy minister's secretariat.

EXCISE PLANNING ELEMENT

Excise Branch

This branch is responsible for the licensing of firms required to pay sales and excise taxes, air transportation tax, natural gas and gas liquids tax, and telecommunications programming services tax and excise duties; the supervision and control of the manufacture of products subject to excise duties (e.g., beer, liquor, cigarettes) or where excisable goods are used in the manufacture of products (e.g., cosmetics); the determination of the classification and value of goods for establishing tax liability; the assessment and collection of sales and excise taxes, air transportation tax, natural gas and gas liquids tax, and telecommunications programming services tax and excise duties; the audit of books and records of firms licensed under the Excise Act and the Excise Tax Act and providing general direction to nine Regional Excise Offices.

Excise Regional Operations

The nine regional Excise offices provide direct local contact for the public and the business communities with the Department; enforce legislation in the areas of assessment, collection, and refund of all excise and sales taxes and duties; provide interpretation of rulings; perform licensee identification and investigations; conduct audits; and collect all monies owing. A regional office comprises the following five sub-planning elements: tax information; revenue collections, verification and enforcement; excise duty; and program management and support.

Tax Information Sub-Element

This sub-element reviews licence applications; conducts licence investigations; issues and cancels licences; establishes administrative procedures for new licensees; determines and disseminates to taxpayers the Department's interpretation related to the classification and value for tax of goods, either by responding to individual requests or through general information bulletins.

Manuals

- Tax Interpretations Procedures Manual

Revenue Collections Sub-Element

This sub-element processes tax returns; receives, deposits and accounts for revenue; administers penalties for late payment; pursues delinquent taxpayers to obtain outstanding returns and/or payment; and deposits monies in a central government account.

Manuals

- Excise Collections Policy and Procedures Manual

Verification and Enforcement Sub-Element

This sub-element conducts audits and verification activities to verify correct determination of taxes; verifies claims for refunds related to the Excise Act and the Excise Tax Act, including the Gasoline Excise Tax Refund Regulations; and requisitions refund cheques.

Manuals

- Audit Manual
- Excise Gasoline Tax Refunds Procedures Manual

Excise Duty Sub-Element

This sub-element conducts audits and verification activities to verify correct determination of duties; and engages in monitoring and verification of operations in distilleries, breweries and tobacco manufacturers.

Manuals

- Excise Duty Policy and Procedures Manual

Policy and Systems Sub-Element

This sub-element interprets applicable legislative provisions and develops programs, systems, and policies with respect to excise tax administration in general, and reviews and advises on issues related to litigation.

Program Management and Support Sub-Element

This sub-element provides executive direction and general administrative support to the planning element.

CUSTOMS PLANNING ELEMENT

Customs is primarily concerned with exercising control over the movement of people, goods and conveyances crossing Canada's border. It is made up of five planning sub-elements: port operations; regional appraisals and adjustments; interpretative policy determinations and appeals; program development and systems maintenance; and program management and support.

The various sub-elements fall under the purview of either, or both, Field Operations Branch and Customs Programs Branch. Field Operations is responsible for two sub-elements: port operations and regional appraisals and adjustments. Customs Programs is also responsible for two sub-elements: interpretative policy determination and appeals, and for program development and systems maintenance. The fifth sub-element, program management support, is shared by both Field Operations and Customs Programs.

Field Operations Branch

This branch is responsible for operating the systems and procedures relating to the assessment and collection of import duties and taxes, and the examination and release of goods, persons and vehicles entering Canada. It is divided into twelve regions, each with its own headquarters headed by a regional collector.

Port Operations Sub-Element

The objective of this component is to administer all relevant legislative and administrative requirements related to the international movement of people, goods and conveyances at the point and time of entry or exit, including the classification of all goods; the assessment, collection and control of related customs duties, taxes and other levies; the application of relevant provisions of statutes and regulations on behalf of other departments and agencies and referral to them as appropriate; the collection of import, export and international movement data; and the prohibition of entry or exit as appropriate.

Regional Appraisal and Adjustment Sub-Element

The objective of this component is to ensure, subsequent to preliminary appraisal of goods, that legislative and administrative requirements relevant to importations have been satisfied through reviews, rulings and appeals; to administer the tariff relief provisions of the Customs Tariff, Orders-in-Council and all relevant regulations; to investigate and, when warranted, recommend or undertake prosecution regarding cases of non-compliance with statutes and regulations administered by Customs.

Customs Regional Operations

Through varying numbers of ports, outposts, reporting stations and enforcement officers, the regions implement the various programs developed to control international movement of people, goods and conveyances. They also provide a direct and convenient local contact for the public and business communities in providing the full range of customs services. Regional offices are located in Halifax, Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Windsor, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Vancouver.

Customs Headquarters Operations

This component of the Field Operations Branch is located in Ottawa and is responsible for providing co-ordination and liaison between the Customs Programs and Field Operations branches; providing advice to the Assistant Deputy Minister, Field Operations, on the use of field resources, and assessing the impact of new programs on these resources; co-ordinating the specialized intelligence and investigation activities to ensure compliance with Customs and Excise and related laws, governing the international movement of people, goods and conveyances.

Investigations Division

The Investigations Division is responsible for the direction of a program of audits and investigations of importer and transportation company activities for compliance, in order to ensure conformity with or to discover violations or fraudulent activities against the laws, acts or regulations administered or enforced by Customs and Excise in respect of goods imported into, or exported from Canada; the provision of the investigative capability to act upon information, regarding alleged or known infractions, obtained from various operational sources.

Program Management and Support Sub-Element

The objective of this component is to provide management direction, planning co-ordination and central administrative services to all of the components of the Customs Planning Element. This planning element is a responsibility of both Field Operations Headquarters and Customs Programs.

Inspection and Interdiction Division

The Inspection and Interdiction Division provides a support service to the Assistant Deputy Minister, Field Operations, regional line management, and Customs officers by directing the operation of the integrated intelligence system for Customs. This is accomplished through co-operation with Customs agencies of foreign countries and other international organizations and with domestic law enforcement agencies at the federal, provincial and municipal level. This information is supportive of the department's ability to isolate patterns and trends on known or suspected Customs violations and violators. This information is primarily used to notify Customs Offices of those likely to circumvent the Acts and regulations the department administers. It includes information on individuals and companies who are suspected of or who have committed previous infractions, and general information profiling high-risk commodities and methods of operation.

Manuals

- Intelligence Officers' Manual
- Intelligence Officers' Training Manual (Basic Course)

Operational Support Division

The Operational Support Division is responsible for the analysis and evaluation of the efficiency, effectiveness and responsiveness of field resource utilization; developing and managing a comprehensive information system on all aspects of the execution of the programs of Customs; administration of the Customs Uniform and Capital Construction Programs; interpretation of overdue accounts-receivable policy and controlling its application at the regional level; and provision of planning and resource analysis for the Field Operations Branch and administrative services for its headquarters component.

Field Liaison Division

The Field Liaison Division is responsible for the provision of support services to the Assistant Deputy Minister, Field Operations, and to regional line management in order to promote consistency of operational activities in the field, to provide for field input into policy and procedural development, and to serve as a catalyst for resolution of operational problems. Consults with all other branches to resolve operational problems and provides assistance in implementing new programs, reviewing audit observations, and monitoring field activities.

Customs Programs Branch

Customs Programs is responsible for maintaining and controlling administrative programs and operational systems pertaining to the international movement of people, goods and conveyances; and enforcing the regulations of other departments and agencies as they pertain to such movement. It is divided into six major divisions: Tariff Programs, Assessment Programs, Adjudications, Operational Policy and Systems Development, Program Development, and Management Systems and Services.

Tariff Programs Division

This division is responsible for the development of national policies, systems and procedures concerning tariff classification, tariff status and tariff relief. This includes administrative policy, systems and procedures on the tariff itself, individual tariff items (except returning Canadians and settlers), the Made-in-Canada system, the end-use system, prohibited importations (except firearms), the refunds system, drawbacks and remissions. Legislation administered includes the Customs tariff (except the provision for subsidized goods and surtax) and Schedules A, B and C thereto, the appeal provisions of the Customs Act, other provisions of the Customs Act relating to drawbacks, and many standing and special Orders-in-Council relating to the remission of duty or exemption from prohibition on imported goods, particularly, the Machinery Remission program, the Auto-Pact, Temporary Entry, Inward Processing, Canadian Goods Abroad Remission Order, Articles for Special Use Remission Order, Obsolete or Surplus Goods Remission Order, Goods Not as Ordered Remission Order.

The division is also responsible for administrative policy, systems and procedures in respect of the appeal provisions in the Customs Act and for the processing and settlement of appeals in respect to tariff classification, tariff status and tariff relief matters.

It is divided into five directorates: Tariff Policy and Systems Development; Primary Industries, Industrial and Consumer Goods, Machinery and Transportation; and Prohibited Importations and Administrative Services.

Tariff Policy and Systems Development Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the development of national administrative policies and systems concerning tariff classification, tariff status, drawbacks, refunds and remissions issues. The directorate consists of a Policy Review and Systems Unit with policy specialists in the primary functions of tariff classification, tariff status and appeals, and drawbacks, refunds and remissions. The directorate is responsible for staffing the position of Secretary to the Interdepartmental Remission Committee and providing representation on this committee for the Department of National Revenue. Examples of major activities with national implications carried out in this directorate include performing an independent policy review function when departmental decisions or tariff policy is challenged; co-ordinating divisional input and representation at interdepartmental or international forums; developing policies, systems and procedures to ensure effective application of end-use tariffs and developing complex or major policies which cross industry-sector boundaries; liaising with and co-ordinating reports, returns, documents, etc. for all inter- and intra-departmental contacts, e.g., Department of Finance; External Affairs; Department of Regional Industrial Expansion; Assessment Programs; Audit and Evaluation; and Excise, to ensure that Customs and Excise concerns are taken into account when other legislation is being developed.

Primary Industries, Industrial and Consumer Goods, and Machinery and Transportation Directorates

These directorates are known collectively as the Industry Group and are responsible for: the development and implementation of administrative policies, programs and guidelines in respect of tariff classification and tariff relief matters; the functional guidance of Customs personnel in the field; and developing and maintaining contact with and providing protection, assistance and advice to the Canadian business community.

In addition, the directorates are responsible for verifying and ensuring compliance with the policies of the Tariff Programs Division. This involves the monitoring of tariff program activities in the field, the processing in headquarters of formal and informal appeals of decisions, policies and rulings, and the conduct of cases appealed to the Tariff Board or the Federal or Supreme Court.

Primary Industries is responsible for developing policies, programs, guidelines and directives pertaining to tariff classification and tariff relief issues concerning animal and vegetable products; chemicals, plastics and allied products; and wood and paper products imported for production by Canadian industry.

Industrial and Consumer Goods is responsible for developing policies, programs, guidelines and directives pertaining to tariff classification and tariff relief issues concerning mineral, glass, stone and metal products; textiles, leather and clothing products; health and education products; toys and sporting goods; and specialty products imported for production by Canadian industry.

Machinery and Transportation is responsible for developing policies, programs, guidelines and directives on tariff classification and tariff relief issues concerning imported machinery and electrical products, motor and other vehicles, and ships and aircraft products for Canadian industry. In addition, the directorate provides technical expertise on administrative matters pertaining to the Machinery and Equipment Advisory Board and various industrial incentive programs (remissions).

Prohibited Importations and Administrative Services Directorate

This directorate consists of three main sub-units: Administrative Support; Technical Reference Systems; and Prohibited Importations.

Administrative Support is responsible for all administrative support activities, such as co-ordinating and assembling divisional plans, budgets, staffing, accommodation, reception, maintenance of directives, tariff management information systems, tariff research, documentation, verification of debts to the Crown, authorization of set-off requests for drawbacks, refunds, and the co-ordination of quality control support measures (monitoring).

Technical Reference Systems is responsible for the provision and maintenance of technical indices related to tariff classification and tariff relief matters (e.g., tariff classification, prohibited goods, consumable goods rulings indices). Files are arranged by commodity and exporter.

Prohibited Importations is responsible for the headquarters administration of Schedule C of the Customs Tariff as it relates to importations of prohibited goods of a treasonable, seditious, or that are deemed "obscene" under subsection 281.3(8) of the Criminal Code. The unit is concerned with rulings, appeals to the deputy minister, and ministerial correspondence.

Assessment Programs Division

This division is responsible for the administration of the Department's anti-dumping, countervail and surtax programs as well as the administration of the valuation provisions of the Customs Act at headquarters. This concurrent administration largely involves the conduct of investigations relating to imported goods, the assessment of applicable duties and the processing of statutory appeals from decisions relating to such duties. The division is comprised of three major areas: Analysis and Investigations, Enforcement and Appeals, and Program Administration.

Analysis and Investigation Directorates

There are four analysis and investigation directorates each, in turn, possessing three discrete operational "units". Defined on a commodity basis, these directorates are responsible for all facets of anti-dumping and countervail investigations into allegations pertaining to dumped or subsidized imports, the conduct of value for duty investigations and the conduct of studies relating to specific industry sectors sensitive to import competition.

Manuals

- Assessment Programs Manual, Part IV
- Valuation Procedures Manual

Enforcement and Appeals Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the enforcement of anti-dumping and countervail rulings subsequent to an injury finding by the Canadian Import Tribunal, as well as the enforcement of countervail and surtax Orders-in-Council. The directorate is similarly charged with the enforcement of program rulings respecting value for duty. The disposition of appeals against valuation, anti-dumping and countervail rulings is also administered by this area.

Program Administration Directorate

This directorate is responsible for developing and maintaining programs, systems, policies and procedures pertaining to all legislation for all divisional anti-dumping, countervail and surtax, and valuation matters. It is also responsible for administrative matters, such as staffing for the division as a whole, and the co-ordination of overseas foreign office operations.

Adjudications Division

This division is responsible for ensuring that the forfeiture provisions of the Customs Act are applied in a uniform and equitable manner across Canada; that the public is afforded a high degree of protection from unnecessary seizure action; that a claimant is given the opportunity to make representations pursuant to Section 161 of the Customs Act; to ensure that decisions rendered under Section 163 of the Customs Act are in accordance with law, equity and jurisprudence and are defensible before the Federal Court. The division is responsible for initiating collection of unpaid assessments when a debt has been established in the Federal Court.

Operational Policy and Systems Development

This division is responsible for the development of departmental policies, priorities, systems and procedures respecting declarations, claims, licensing, intelligence, border patrol, bonded warehouse and carrier inspections, goods examination, secondary examination of travellers, audits, investigations, seizure adjudications and assessment appeals. Functional direction is provided to the public and to field personnel on related legislative and administrative requirements. This division is also responsible for the design, development, support during implementation, and on-going maintenance and control of major Customs automated systems, as well as the licensing of Customs House brokers, bonded carriers, post audit carriers and sufferance warehouses. It is divided into seven major directorates: Commercial Traffic Control, Passenger Programs, Postal and Courier Programs, Automated Systems Development, Maintenance and Control, New Customs System Task Force, Commercial Entry Systems, and Commercial Verification and Enforcement.

Commercial Traffic Control Directorate

This directorate is responsible for controlling the movement of goods and vehicles entering, exiting and transiting Canada, until the requirements of the various departmental programs have been met and the goods and vehicles have been properly acquitted for Customs purposes.

Passenger Programs Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the development of policy, systems and procedures relating to the clearance and processing of travellers entering Canada by all modes of transportation, and the functional direction of all Customs inspectors at all ports of entry with respect to procedures, enforcement techniques and training.

Manuals

- Customs Seizure Enforcement Manual

Postal and Courier Programs Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the control of mechanical, non-mechanical, automated and non-automated Customs, postal and courier operations in areas such as the report, control, examination, enforcement, documentation and release of all postal and courier shipments. The directorate also ensures all corporate-level liaison with Canada Post Corporation.

Automated Systems Development, Maintenance and Control Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the maintenance and control of Customs automated systems in the commercial, passenger and postal streams, for the enhancement of these systems and for the development and implementation of selected new automated systems. This responsibility includes controlling, planning, testing, approving and scheduling all changes to existing automated systems; updating system files and documentation; resolving system problems and providing liaison between computer specialists and user personnel. The directorate is also responsible for annually preparing the Customs Automation Strategy which is an overall plan for Customs automated development.

New Customs Commercial System Task Force

The task force is responsible for the development and implementation of the New Customs Commercial System (NCCS), which will facilitate compliance with departmentally administered legislation. NCCS will improve service to the importing community by permitting the release of goods on minimum documentation; transmission of cargo, release and entry data from importers, brokers, and carriers direct to Customs; and the presentation of entries and payment of duties and taxes on a periodic basis. NCCS will also enable the Department to more effectively detect members of the importing community who are not complying with legislation through the utilization of audit and computer-supported techniques such as micrographic document storage and retrieval.

Commercial Entry Systems Directorate

This directorate is responsible for policies and procedures relating to the entry and release of commercial goods into Canada, the export of commercial goods from Canada, and the licensing of Customs brokers and application of special service charges and hours of service at Customs ports; and providing interpretation and clarification on policies, guidelines, instructions and procedures to the business community.

Commercial Verification and Enforcement Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the development, implementation and maintenance of policies and procedures for all verification and enforcement activities relative to commercial importations and exportations, including activities under Customs legislation as well as the Acts of other departments and agencies for which Customs has been given administrative responsibility.

Legislative Affairs Division

This division is responsible for the maintenance of Customs legislative base and legislative projects arising from Canada's participation in the world trading community.

Management Systems and Services Division

The division is responsible for branch planning, programming, co-ordination and management systems development.

CORPORATE ADMINISTRATION PLANNING ELEMENT

This element provides overall management direction, planning co-ordination and central administrative support services to other departmental activities, by conducting research, analysis, evaluations and audits, and by supplying such services as finance, administration, personnel and planning co-ordination and control. This element consists of Corporate Management, Personnel Administration, Audit and Evaluation, Public Relations and the Departmental and International Affairs Division.

Corporate Management Branch

The assistant deputy minister, Corporate Management Branch, is the departmental comptroller for Customs and Excise. The integration of operational planning and control, with financial planning and control, provides a single focus and authority for the management control and management support processes. It also provides a cohesive approach to the management of departmental affairs, a single point of direction and authority for the establishment of corporate plans, and a focal point for the determination of priorities and resource allocations. It is responsible for the executive direction in the following areas: financial administration, planning, performance measurement, information management, management consulting, performance/operational analysis, contracting, all aspects of electronic data processing, laboratory and scientific research and analysis, and all aspects of general administration.

Systems Planning and Development Directorate

The directorate functions as an integral part of the Customs and Excise Department. It assists the Department with its mandate of assessment, collection and control of duties and taxes on imported and domestically produced goods, and by exercising control over the international movement of persons and goods. Its specific mandate is to prepare policy guidelines, strategic plans and operational plans for the provision of automated systems for the department. The directorate operates its own computer centre, consisting of three large-scale systems with five front-end computers, all of which are linked to some 400 terminals in more than 30 locations across Canada. A fourth mainframe is used primarily as a bridge from existing facilities to a more modern technological base as well as providing a facility for approved systems development.

In addition, the directorate provides a department-wide general consulting service and supports departmental users of micro-computers through the services of a central information centre.

Manuals

- Automation Strategy Review
- Configuration Control Manual

Corporate Planning Directorate

The directorate has full responsibility for the co-ordination and development of the departmental strategic, operational and budget year plans as well as for the development and implementation of related policies, systems and guidelines. It is responsible for the provision of functional direction to other organizational units of the Department in the production of their input to corporate plans. It is responsible for assessing performance against plans and for reporting performance results to management.

Manuals

- Multi-Year Operational Planning Guide
- Project Management Policy and Procedures
- Planning in Customs and Excise
- Statement of Operating Principles

Finance Directorate

The directorate is responsible for developing and implementing departmental policies and procedures and for developing policy and guidelines concerning revenues, accounts receivable and deletion of debts; for directing the operation and control of budgeting, accounting, and financial reporting operations; for developing, publishing and maintaining the departmental financial management manual; for monitoring the effectiveness of financial operations; and for reporting in public accounts.

Manuals

- Departmental Financial Management Manual

Laboratory and Scientific Services Directorate

The directorate is responsible for the provision, on a Department-wide basis, of analytical and scientific advisory services with respect to imported industrial products, domestic goods subject to excise duties, and technical terminology of legislation and international trade nomenclature systems; research and development into new scientific equipment, methodology and contraband detection systems; and functional direction, advice and support services in the areas of the Departmental Metric Conversion Program and the acquisition of laboratory and scientific services.

Personnel Administration Branch

Director General

The Director General is responsible for providing management direction to all the components of the Personnel Administration sub-elements.

Staffing Directorate

The directorate is responsible for providing all levels of management with staffing service and functional advice on all aspects of the staffing function, so as to ensure that highly competent employees are selected and recruited effectively and efficiently. It is also responsible for monitoring the administration of staffing delegation throughout the department so as to ensure that operational needs are met and that the integrity of the Public Service Employment Act, Central Agency requirements, and departmental policies and priorities are respected.

Planning and Program Development Directorate

The directorate is responsible for providing departmental management, at all levels, with advice and assistance concerning human resources planning, equal opportunity/affirmative action programs to encourage active management commitment to and support of objectives geared to increase the participation and representation of special interest groups; and a personnel data system. It co-ordinates the application of departmental management systems within the Personnel Administration Branch (such as planning, performance measurement and financial systems). The directorate provides national co-ordination and headquarters service for the Employee Assistance Program.

Employee Relations Directorate

The directorate is responsible for providing departmental management, at all levels, with advice and assistance concerning the application and interpretation of collective agreements, the principles and procedures for handling grievances, the union-management meeting process and the areas of discipline, managerial and confidential exclusions, designation, health and safety, and pay and benefits. It provides pay and benefits service to headquarters' employees. It also administers long service, incentive awards, and the communications programs.

Customs and Excise College

The Customs and Excise College provides both centralized and decentralized training and development for departmental human resources in response to training needs identified in the Departmental Training Plan.

Official Languages Directorate

The directorate provides management and employees with functional direction and guidance to enable them to carry out their official language responsibilities and to facilitate the achievement of both government and departmental objectives for the attainment of a significant degree of institutional bilingualism in three areas — service to the public, language of work, and full participation — while maintaining compliance with central agencies' requirements.

Organization and Classification Directorate

The directorate is responsible for providing management at all levels directly, or through functional direction of regional specialists, with classification services for those groups and levels delegated to the Department, and advice to management and liaison with the central agency in respect to those groups and levels not delegated to the Department. It provides a direct classification service, for senior regional positions and all positions in those regions lacking an accredited officer, to classify and review all national jobs (approximately one-half of the Department's positions). It also provides management at all levels with an organization design consulting service, advice and assistance in the preparation of all organization change submissions, and advice to senior management on the appropriateness of proposed organization changes, to ensure sound organization structuring and effective monitoring of same while respecting the departmental organization philosophy and organization policies, principles and practices.

Manuals

- The Departmental Personnel Manual

Audit and Evaluation Branch

The branch is responsible for conducting periodic, independent and objective audits and evaluations for the Deputy Minister on all aspects of departmental endeavour, and for making recommendations to management on the activities reviewed. Program Evaluation assesses program components to determine the adequacy of their objectives and design, and their results, both intended and unintended. Audit assesses the efficiency, economy and effectiveness of internal management policies, practices and controls.

The branch has four operational audit divisions executing comprehensive audits, and a program evaluation division executing evaluations. In addition, a fifth division is engaged in research and development to improve audit techniques and provide branch administrative services.

Manuals

- Internal Auditor's Manual
- Program Evaluator's Manual

Public Relations Branch

The branch is responsible for the development of a public relations strategy and for the provision of services to managers and staff in such matters as communicating with the public, media relations, and production for print, displays, exhibits, film, radio, television and advertising.

The branch also provides directly to the public, information that will foster compliance with the laws and regulations administered by the Customs and Excise component of the Department.

Departmental and International Affairs Division

The division operates in direct support of the Minister and deputy minister, and uses its co-ordinating abilities to help provide more efficient management of the Department's internal and international affairs, and to facilitate communications with the public, Members of Parliament, parliamentary committees and other government agencies.

Secretariat

Some of the major duties of the secretariat include administration of the Access to Information Act, Privacy Act and Canadian Human Rights Act; preparation of briefs for the Minister; control, review and analysis of cabinet documents, Orders-in-Council, Treasury Board submissions; preparation of replies to parliamentary questions and motions; control and monitoring of ministerial and deputy ministerial correspondence; assurance of an accurate flow of timely information to the Minister on public issues; preparation of the annual review and other papers, an example during 1984-85 being a Customs Excise document for inclusion in the regulatory agendas published by the Canada Gazette. The agendas provide the public with early notice of proposed or contemplated changes in legislation and regulations.

International Affairs Directorate

The directorate acts as liaison between the Department and international organizations specializing in comparative studies of administrative and technical questions related to Customs; co-ordinates the Department's participation at the international organizations; co-ordinates the bilateral Customs agreements between the different countries, and administers the Department's visits and external contacts policies.

Overall Responsibilities

National Revenue (Taxation) is responsible for the administration and collection of individual and corporate income tax under the Income Tax Act. It collects provincial income tax from individuals for all provinces except Québec, and from corporations for all provinces except Québec, Ontario and Alberta. It also collects contributions under the Canada Pension Plan, premiums under the Unemployment Insurance Act, and taxes under the Petroleum and Gas Revenue Tax Act.

The Department's two main objectives are to collect taxes, Canada Pension Plan contributions and Unemployment Insurance premiums imposed under law, by encouraging voluntary compliance and by deterring tax evasion and tax avoidance; and to maintain public confidence in the integrity of the tax system by administering tax and related legislation fairly, uniformly and courteously as stated in the Declaration of Taxpayer Rights.

Many people assume that the Department that collects federal taxes also establishes the provisions of the Income Tax Act. National Revenue Taxation administers the tax laws passed by Parliament, but the Department of Finance initiates the government's tax policy.

Canada operates a self-assessment income tax system under which its citizens individually calculate the taxes they must pay according to the law. The Department is responsible for verifying the accuracy of taxpayer's returns.

If a taxpayer feels the law is not being correctly applied, he or she can dispute his or her tax assessment through the Department's appeal system and, if appropriate, through the courts.

Organization

At head office there are three assistant deputy ministers who administer three separate functions: Legislation, Policy and Systems, and Management Services. They report directly to the Deputy Minister. Also reporting directly are the director general of Appeals, a special advisor and the director of Legal Services who is employed by the Department of Justice as an advisor to the deputy minister. In addition, four regional assistant deputy ministers, responsible for the operational direction of district taxation offices and taxation centres, report directly to the deputy minister. The other branches are headed by directors general or directors reporting to their respective assistant deputy ministers.

Key Contacts

Taxation recognizes that taxpayers can comply with the law only when they know what is expected of them. For this reason, the Department provides information and assistance to taxpayers in several ways. The most convenient point of contact is one of the 30 district taxation offices and four sub-offices. District office staff provide assistance and answer tax questions over the counter, by telephone and by correspondence.

Public Relations Officers

In each of the district taxation offices there is a permanent or part-time public relations officer (PRO), depending on the size of the area served. The PRO is involved with most of the programs and services described below, working directly with the taxpaying public, with community leaders and organizations, and with local media.

Community Programs

Volunteer Program

The Volunteer Program assists taxpayers who cannot complete their own returns because of age, ill health, language or other difficulties. This is a community program in which district office staff train community group representatives and other interested individuals to complete basic tax returns. These volunteers then assist other taxpayers free-of-charge.

Teaching Taxes

This program helps teachers at the secondary and community college level give basic tax instruction. Students learn to prepare accurate returns and also acquire general knowledge of Canada's taxation system.

Rural Tax Scheme

This is a kit of information prepared for the farming community and distributed through the district offices to agricultural organizations or individuals.

Media Information

A wide range of tax information material is prepared for newspapers, radio and television each year. The Department provides an income tax resource kit to both daily and weekly newspapers as well as a foreign-language media kit in Canada. Brief public service announcements giving answers to common taxpayer questions or information on changes in tax law are distributed to radio and television stations during the filing season. In addition, the Department offers ongoing access to specific information through press releases, news briefs, speeches, interviews, and explanations of recent (or soon to be held) events related to taxpayers.

Films and Videos

Taxation has produced several programs on film and video cassette which are available in both official languages and may be borrowed from local offices of the National Film Board.

- Tax: The Outcome of Income (the historical evolution of Canadian income tax)
- Tax is Not A Four Letter Word (an animated film about tax collection)
- Meet the Martins (a message about completing tax returns correctly)
- A Choice of Two and The Sloane Affair (about corporate corruption and tax evasion)

In addition, 30-minute television programs are produced in English and French to assist the taxpayer with common questions and errors during the filing season.

Major Publications

The Department issues a variety of publications and forms, which are available free from the district taxation offices.

- Inside Taxation, the annual review, gives a broad overview of Taxation's philosophy, organization and operations. It also provides statistical and other detailed information.

Tax Guides

The Income Tax Guide that accompanies each tax return is the most important source of taxpayer information. However, other guides are produced for specific groups of taxpayers, such as

- Installment Guide for Individuals
- Farmer's Income Tax Guide
- Fisherman's Income Tax Guide

Technical Publications

Information circulars and interpretation bulletins, issued as the occasion demands, cover administrative matters and interpretations of the laws the Department administers. These series are of a technical nature and are used primarily by accountants, lawyers and other tax specialists. Annual indexes to the circulars and bulletins are available.

The Department also publishes an annual in-depth analysis of tax returns called Taxation Statistics. The latest edition provides statistics for the prior taxation year and is available through Supply and Services Canada or from bookstores authorized to sell government publications.

Access Procedures

The Access and Privacy Division is the organization responsible for administering the Access to Information and Privacy legislation for the Department. It provides advice on the interpretation and application of the law, regulations and procedures. It plans, organizes, directs and monitors national operations pertaining to the processing of requests for information pursuant to this legislation.

Although a single Minister presides over both Taxation, and Customs and Excise, for Access to Information and Privacy purposes, the departments are considered separate entities.

Therefore, formal access requests should clearly specify the Department — Taxation or Customs and Excise — from which information is being sought.

Taxation access requests should be directed to

Management Controls Directorate

The directorate provides an internal consulting group that conducts evaluations and studies for departmental clients to improve their management practices and methods; a management information system that captures time utilization leave and production data for the use of managers throughout the Department; and a liaison role with organizations such as the Auditor General and the Comptroller General.

The directorate is comprised of two divisions: Internal Consulting and Management Information Systems.

Internal Consulting and Operational Audit Division

This division provides an internal consulting service comprising a group of management specialists responsible for improving the effectiveness, efficiency and economy of the Department's operations. Projects arise from managers who desire an independent review of an activity for which they are responsible and for which improvements are indicated to be necessary.

Manuals

- Taxation Operations Manual, Part 01 — Department Objectives and Policies

Management Information Systems Division

This division provides managers throughout the Department with information to assist them in their planning, controlling, monitoring and operational decision-making functions as well as with information to meet central agency requirements. The function is carried out through the development, implementation and maintenance of computer systems designed to provide specific data and to integrate the data gathered through progressively higher levels of summarization to meet the needs of first-line supervisors up to the most senior level of corporate management.

Manuals

- Taxation Operations Manual, Part 50 — Time and Data Reporting
- Taxation Operations Manual, Part 82 — Personnel Records and Budget Systems Procedures

Internal Audit and Evaluation Branch

The branch conducts independent appraisals of the departmental activities, provides objective analyses and makes recommendations to all levels of management about the activities reviewed. This enables the Department to evaluate the economy, efficiency and effectiveness of the application of departmental policies, programs and procedures, as well as to assess the effectiveness of security measures in the protection of federal funds, property and the confidentiality of information. The function of this branch includes program evaluations to assess the continued relevance, impact and effectiveness of all departmental programs and internal audits which analyze and investigate the efficiency of all departmental operations.

The branch is also responsible for functional direction of operational audit units reporting to directors of district offices and taxation centres. This functional responsibility includes the planning, implementation, and monitoring of the Department's operational audit policies. Operational Audit provides assessments of individual field office compliance with policies and procedures to senior managers in field offices.

Manuals

- Taxation Operations Manual, Part 92 — Operational Audit
- Staff bulletins — contain procedures and work instructions for branch staff

Information Services Branch

The branch formulates public relations policies for the Department and provides information on its policies, programs and activities to the general public, the news media and organizations and individuals with a special interest in taxation. A broad variety of publications, audio-visual programs and media information covering a range of tax topics is produced and revised each year. The branch counsels the Department on information and public relations matters generally and advises management on possible public and media reaction to its programs and procedures. It also provides guidance to district office public relations officers.

Manuals

- Taxation Operations Manual, Part 91 — describes the Department's public relations policy and branch program responsibilities for publications, audio-visual material, advertising, public enquiries, media relations, prosecutions publicity and public speaking engagements
- Information Checklist — a directory of information programs, services and materials revised and distributed annually to public relations officers to help them select appropriate materials when planning local information activities

Legislation Branch

The Legislation Branch comprises 10 divisions of which two form the Corporate Rulings Directorate and two the Non-corporate Rulings and Publications Directorate. The other five divisions are Registration, Current Amendments, Regulations, Provincial and International Relations, and Statistics.

The assistant deputy minister of the Legislation Branch has accountability for interpreting the Income Tax Act, the Canada Pension Plan and the Unemployment Insurance Act and Regulations under them; for issuing interpretive publications and giving interpretations and binding rulings to satisfy the needs of departmental staff and the taxpaying public; for obtaining changes to the law to remove anomalies; for ensuring that amendments to the law proposed by other departments can be administered, and that they reflect government policy; for registering charities and deferred income plans and ensuring that they comply with the law; for administering agreements with other countries and the provinces; and for a statistical service which compiles income tax return data for the use of both the public and private sectors, and services departmental managers.

Corporate Rulings Directorate

This directorate is responsible for issuing authoritative advance income tax rulings and technical interpretations of the Income Tax Act and Regulations and related legislation to all incorporated taxpayers and to district offices to ensure uniform application of the law to all incorporated taxpayers; for review of departmental forms, returns, circulars, and bulletins directed to corporations, to ensure they conform with the Act; for the review and recommendation to accept or appeal adverse court decisions concerning corporate taxpayers that, if accepted, would result in significant change in interpretation of the law.

Speciality Corporations Rulings Division

This division deals with certain corporate taxpayers involved in the mining, oil and forest industries, and with respect to corporate reorganizations. It provides replies to technical enquiries from these taxpayers, their advisers and the district offices, and binding advance tax rulings, technical recommendations and interpretations on proposed assessments. The division is responsible for recommendations to accept or appeal adverse court decisions concerning these taxpayers, and it also provides technical reviews of publications and forms directed to them.

Corporate Rulings Division

This division deals with certain corporate taxpayers involved in the merchandising, manufacturing, and construction industries and in the services industries, public utilities and exempt corporations. It provides replies to technical enquiries from these taxpayers, their advisers and the district offices, and binding advance tax rulings and technical recommendations on proposed assessments. The division is responsible for recommendations to accept or appeal adverse court decisions concerning these taxpayers, and it also provides technical reviews of publications and forms directed to them.

Bilingual Services and Finance Division

This division deals with certain corporate taxpayers involved in the financial industries and with all corporate taxpayers where the language of request is French. It provides replies to technical enquiries from these taxpayers, their advisers and the district offices, and binding advance tax rulings and technical recommendations on proposed amendments. The division is responsible for recommendations to accept or appeal adverse court decisions concerning these taxpayers and it also provides technical reviews of publications and forms directed to them.

Non-corporate Rulings and Publications Directorate

This directorate is responsible for issuing authoritative advance income tax rulings and technical interpretations of the Income Tax

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL REVENUE (TAXATION)

Act and Regulations and related legislation to taxpayers other than corporations and to district offices; for technical review of departmental returns and forms intended for non-corporate taxpayers to ensure they conform with the Act; for the review and recommendation to accept or appeal adverse court decisions concerning non-corporate taxpayers that, if accepted, would result in significant change in interpretation of the law; for preparation of all interpretation bulletins and review of certain technical publications; for provision of a general information and advice service to district offices and taxation centres (the Hotline); and for chairing the Tax Remission Committee, under the provisions of the Financial Administration Act.

Non-corporate Rulings Division

This division provides replies to technical enquiries, binding advance rulings and technical recommendations on proposed assessments concerning non-corporate taxpayers. It also provides the Hotline service to answer enquiries received from district offices and taxation centres concerning all types of taxpayers. The division is responsible for recommendations to accept or appeal adverse court decisions, and it also provides technical reviews of returns and forms directed to them.

Publications Division

This division prepares and revises interpretation bulletins and certain information circulars and edits tax information pamphlets and certain internal technical memoranda. Such interpretation bulletins, information circulars and tax information pamphlets provide technical information to the public and departmental staff.

Registration Division

This division controls registration for taxation purposes of employees' pension plans, deferred profit-sharing plans, supplementary unemployment benefit plans, retirement savings plans, retirement income funds, home ownership savings plans, registered investments and charitable organizations. It controls issuing of certificates and letters of exemption to non-resident trusts or organizations and the filing of returns by agents of political parties and candidates.

Manuals

- Procedural Manuals — contain policy, guidelines and instructions for registration, revocation, annulment and administrative activities of the division

Current Amendments Division

This division recommends amendments to the Income Tax Act to facilitate its administration by the Department and reviews and advises on the administrative feasibility of all suggested amendments, including those proposed by the Department of Finance.

Regulations Division

This division drafts amendments to Regulations for specified parts of the Canada Pension Plan and the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1971 and to administrative provisions of Regulations under the Income Tax Act; and reviews and advises on the administrative feasibility of all suggested amendments to Regulations under the Income Tax Act and the Petroleum and Gas Revenue Tax Act.

Provincial and International Relations Division

This division provides internal and external advice on problems in provincial and international tax law and obtains solutions to these problems; represents the Department at negotiations on tax treaties and international social security agreements, and at meetings on federal-provincial taxation problems; controls the exchange of confidential information between the Department and provincial governments, territories or tax treaty partners; and researches proposed amendments to the law, treaties and provincial or territorial tax agreements involving international, non-resident and provincial legislation to ensure that amendments proposed by other divisions and departments can be administered.

Manuals

- Taxation Operations Manual, Part 90 — contains information on income tax conventions with foreign governments and also touches on provincial matters

Statistical Services Division

This division provides statistical information compiled from income tax returns for use by policy and program analysts in both the public and private sectors; technical support to the Department in the area of statistics; a forecasting service in support of departmental planning activities; and mathematical models for use in policy analysis. It is also responsible for ways to generate information on non-compliance with tax laws in various segments of the Canadian population; develops information systems and optimization models for program planning, evaluation and control; and conducts operations research and computer simulations to make best use of human and financial resources in certain departmental operations.

Manuals

- Taxation Operations Manual, Part 07 — contains clerical instructions for collecting information about taxpayers from individual returns for statistical tabulation and modelling purposes
- Taxation Operations Manual, Part 04 — contains instructions for collecting tax filer information from corporation tax returns for statistical tabulation and modelling purposes

Policy and Systems Branch

This branch is comprised of the following three directorates: Verification and Collections, Audit, and Systems. It works closely with district offices and taxation centres on program matters and provides operational advice to the regional assistant deputy ministers.

The branch is accountable for formulation of national policy and programs governing collection of tax, Unemployment Insurance premiums and Canada Pension Plan contributions, and the filing and assessing of returns; for compliance and enforcement programs; and design and operation of computer and manual processing systems. The branch is also responsible for communicating with and accounting to the public and other government departments, as required by the federal and provincial income tax acts, foreign tax agreements, the Canada Pension Plan, Unemployment Insurance Act and other related statutes.

Verification and Collections Directorate

This directorate is responsible for policies, national programs and techniques governing deductions at source for income tax, Canada Pension Plan contributions and Unemployment Insurance premiums, and monthly and quarterly remittances made by corporations, trusts and individuals. It is also responsible for policies on the assessment of income tax returns, the collection of taxes and the filing of returns.

This organization comprises the Assessing, Accounting and Collections, and Taxroll divisions.

Systems Directorate

The directorate is responsible for all departmental data processing equipment, including micro-computers, and related applications, telecommunications and systems software. It conducts feasibility studies, develops and maintains computer systems and writes procedural instructions in support of departmental programs, and operates the main computer installation and associated communications networks. Some electronic data processing (EDP) services are provided to other federal departments and other levels of government.

This organization comprises the Computer Services, Tax Systems and Information Systems divisions and the Financial and Administrative Services sector, which looks after all EDP requirements.

Computer Services Division

The division operates and develops the Department's central computer installation and associated national communications networks. It also provides functional direction on matters relating to data processing operations to the district offices and taxation centres.

Tax Systems Division

This division is responsible for the implementation and maintenance of electronic data processing systems and procedures that process data extracted from tax returns; the provision of documentation and operating instructions; the development of standards and guidelines for program development; and maintenance of functions, including analysis, design, testing, quality assurance and proper response to problems. The division is also responsible for the provision of similar systems services to certain other federal departments and other levels of government.

Information Systems Division

This division is responsible for the implementation and maintenance of the electronic data processing systems and procedures for the processing of administrative information for the Department; for the design and administration of departmental databases; for the provision of documentation and operating instructions; for the development of standards and guidelines for program development and maintenance functions, including analysis, design, testing, quality assurance, proper responses to problems; for the development and operation of an information centre of electronic data processing staff to facilitate quicker user access to data; and to provide similar systems services to certain other federal departments and other levels of government.

Appeals Branch

The branch establishes policy and procedures for consideration and disposition of notices of objection to assessments under the Income Tax Act and the Petroleum and Gas Revenue Tax Act and for the determination of questions under the Canada Pension Plan and Unemployment Insurance Act. It plans, organizes, directs, implements and controls national programs, and instructs the Department of Justice on conducting appeals to the Pension Appeals Board, the Tax Court of Canada, the Federal Court and the Supreme Court. The appeals activity is kept separate from audit work. The Department recognizes that to be equitable and objective, the officers who exercise the appeals function should not be those who were responsible for the original assessments.

The Appeals Branch comprises the Policy and Programs Division, the Appeals and Referrals Division, and the Canada Pension Plan and Unemployment Insurance (CPP/UI) Determination and Appeals Division.

Manuals

- Taxation Operations Manual, Part 70 — contains policies and procedures for consideration and disposal of objections and for the conduct of appeals

Description: Information on taxroll objectives, work programs, budgets and administrative policy, program and achievement reports, monitoring statistics, analysis of taxroll activity, long-term strategic planning and evaluation of taxation centre and district office multi-year operational plan taxroll operations. Topics: Estimates and budgets (program forecast), time production codes, manpower utilization, signing authorities, workload planning and resource allocation, taxroll head office strategic planning, district offices and taxation centres.

RCT/PSB-190 Formerly Identified as: RCT-370

Audit Programs — Planning, Development and Control of Programs; Resource Allocation

Description: Information on audit organization, objectives, coverage, work programs, allocation of resources and budget preparation and administrative policy. Topics: Planning and development of national audit programs; allocation of resources and budget preparation; instructions for processing completed audits and recording results; district office organization for audit positions; liaison with other head office divisions and district offices; tax statistics and corporate histories of public corporations; audit statistics of large corporations.

RCT/PSB-195 Formerly Identified as: RCT-380

Audit File Selection and Computer Application

Description: Information on the planning and control of national audit file selection programs; computer-based audit selection systems (Comscreen); computerized audit reporting systems; program tests in district offices and assistance provided to audit on computer applications; computer-assisted audit programs. Topics: Selection of files for audit by manual screening; selection of files for audit by computer screenings; development of computerized file selection methods; comparative analyses of computer and non-computer selection processes; planning development and control of computer systems for recording audit results (T20ST system); statistical sampling techniques for use on tax audits; computer-assisted audit techniques.

Non-compliance Research — Audit Projects Development and Co-ordination

Description: Information on the reporting and co-ordination of audit projects on a national scale; research and identification of areas suitable for project activity; development of sources of information; collection, analysis, evaluation and dissemination of economic data on specific groups or classes of taxpayers; authorized exchanges of information. Topics: Audit techniques on specific projects; results information on each project on national, regional and district office basis; sources and types of information; exchanges of information with other government institutions.

Audit Quality Review and Technical Enquiries

Description: Information on the review of completed audits by district offices to ensure high quality audits; special studies to monitor returns assessed to ensure uniform application of the legislation administered by the Department. Topics: Analyses of auditors' reports; studies to detect trends in audit approaches and techniques; evaluation of review procedures in district offices.

Audit Operations Evaluation

Description: Information on audit production reports; analysis of audit results; and evaluation of district office audit operations. Topics: Evaluation criteria; functional audits and reports; statistical analyses of audit production reports; follow-up of management audit reports relating to audit operations.

Audit Research

Description: Information on the development of guidelines and techniques used to audit individuals, trusts, plans, business operations and specialized industries. Topics: Audit techniques for small, medium and large businesses; studies of specific industries, industry-wide tax audits; inter-company pricing referrals; industry specialist program.

RCT/PSB-220 Formerly Identified as: RCT-430

Technical Applications, Reassessing Policies and Procedures

Accounting and T2 (Corporation Tax Return) Processing

Description: Information on the development, implementation and maintenance of all departmental electronic data processing accounting systems and procedures as well as T2 corporation tax return processing and gasoline excise tax return processing. Topics: Operational and administrative communications with the various head office divisions that have functional authority for the systems developed for them; computerized and manual (PAYDAC) deductions at source from individuals for income tax, Canada Pension Plan and unemployment insurance; computerized and manual quarterly tax remittances from both individuals and corporations and collection action on tax owing; initial assessment and reassessment of corporation tax returns (T2 corporation master file).

T1 (Individual Income Tax Return) Databases

Description: Documentation in the form of database schemas, models and descriptions applicable to databases for T1 individual income tax return processing systems, financial input processing, and RAPID databases, as well as on-line program technical and quality assurance records. Topics: DDE — direct data entry systems; FIP — financial input processing; RAPID — rapid information for districts database; Personal Information Bank RCT/P-PU-045; database administration; quality assurance; common facilities; other miscellaneous programs.

General Sector and Information Centre

Description: Documentation of several taxation data and information processing systems and the Information Centre, as well as technical programming standards and guidelines. Documentation is principally in the form of program listings and run books intended to support maintenance and operation. Topics: Information processing system (IPS) — T4 data capture; RAPID — rapid information for districts; enquiry programs for field offices into on-line tax data; Infocentre — development project to facilitate end-user access to data; technical services — use of programming techniques and utilities; operational record of file back-ups; library changes and also mass storage requirements; special projects — miscellaneous systems and programs such as Personal Information Bank RCT/P-PU-100 Taxation Centres Recruiting System.

Information Systems

Description: Information on the development, implementation and maintenance of a wide range of departmental information and administrative EDP (electronic data processing) systems (mainly statistical in nature), which are intended to enhance management effectiveness. In addition, a system is provided to give field personnel direct on-line access to computer-based accounting, assessment and personnel files. Topics: Operational and administrative communications to and from the various head office divisions that have functional authority for the systems developed for them; computerized and manual management information systems; personnel and leave systems; gas tax rebate system; and also T4 and other information slip systems.

RCT/APP-300 Formerly Identified as: RCT-590

Programs Management

Description: Information on policies, procedures, budgets, work programs and statistical controls and the monitoring and evaluation of district office and taxation centre appeals divisions. Topics: Program and activity structure; delegation of authority; communications to field offices; work programs; training; budgets; work flow studies; forms and form letters; statistics on intake, production, workload and resources; seminars; conferences and meetings; program performance evaluations; projects.

Referrals — Objections

Description: Information on the research and resolution of technical and complex matters referred by district office and taxation centre appeals divisions; on procedural instructions; on projects; and on statistics on intake, production and workload. Topics: Procedural instructions; individual income tax returns (RCT/P-PU-005); petroleum and gas revenue tax returns (RCT/P-PU-010); corporation and trust income tax returns; adverse decisions and statistics.

Appeals and Adverse Decisions

Description: Information on instructions and assistance to the Department of Justice on the conduct of appeals to the courts; on consideration of adverse decisions; on procedural instructions; and on statistics on intake, production and workload. Topics: Procedural instructions; individual income tax returns (RCT/P-PU-005); petroleum and gas revenue tax returns (RCT/P-PU-010); corporation and trust income tax returns; adverse decisions and statistics.

RCT/APP-315 Formerly Identified as: RCT-620

Determinations and Appeals

Description: Information on determination requests related to coverage and assessments payable by employers under the Unemployment Insurance Act and the Canada Pension Plan, and income tax assessments under objection on related matters. Topics: File contents may include the application and reasons for appeal, related documents from the district offices, Unemployment Insurance Commission, Pension Appeals Board, Department of Justice, Tax Court of Canada, Federal Court and/or Supreme Court. Retrievability: Case files are created and filed by taxpayer name. (Records in this class contain information relating to Personal Information Bank RCT/P-PU-075 Appeals Regarding the Canada Pension Plan, and Unemployment Insurance Act, 1971, and RCT/P-PU-080 Appeals Regarding Insurable Employment.)

RCT/MSB-320 Formerly Identified as: RCT-930

Revenue Reporting

Description: Information on the analysis, distribution and reporting of tax revenue, such as federal and provincial income taxes, Canada Pension Plan contributions and Unemployment Insurance premiums. Topics: Assessed revenue (taxes for which an assessment notice is issued), such as federal-provincial tax sharing, Canada Pension Plan, Unemployment Insurance, royalty tax rebates, unemployment insurance benefit repayments; settlement of tax deductions with the province of Québec; petroleum and gas revenue tax, cash revenue, including reconciliation with the statement of collections from Supply and Services; tax deductions settlements with the Bank of Canada; Canada Pension Plan and Unemployment Insurance transfer schedules; unclaimed cheque suspense account; cancelled cheques other than unclaimed cheque suspense; annual reconciliation of cash in transit; duplicate refund cheque data; accounts receivable as per public accounts; miscellaneous claims against the Crown.

Background

The Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council (NSERC) is a departmental Crown corporation established on May 1, 1978. Its purpose is to promote and assist research in the natural sciences and engineering, other than the health sciences, and to advise the Minister of State for Science and Technology on such research.

Laws and Regulations

- Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council Act

Overall Responsibilities

The Council is responsible for the management and administration of the Program of Scholarships and Grants in Aid of Research. These grants and scholarships are intended primarily for university researchers and graduate students. The objectives of the program are to promote and support the development and maintenance of research in the natural sciences and engineering and to ensure the provision of highly qualified manpower in these areas. Accordingly, the Council supports excellence in research for the creation of new knowledge in the natural sciences and engineering, promotes and supports the development of research in selected fields of regional and national importance and assists in the provision and development of highly qualified manpower.

The fields of research supported by the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council currently include, but are not necessarily limited to, agriculture, astronomy, biology, biotechnology, chemistry, communications, computing and information science, energy, engineering, environmental toxicology, food science, forestry, geography (physical), geology, industrial processes, kinesiology, materials sciences, mathematics (pure and applied), metallurgy, meteorology, nuclear sciences, oceanography, physics, psychology, space research and the statistical sciences.

The program of Scholarships and Grants in Aid of Research is divided into the six broad activities described below.

Research Manpower Awards

These awards offer a wide range of awards, scholarships and fellowships to undergraduate and graduate students, postdoctoral fellows, scientists and engineers in universities and industry for advanced study, research or professional development. They are tenable in universities, industrial firms and other institutions in Canada and abroad.

Research Grants

Research grants are awarded to individuals and groups for research expenses in support of a spectrum of research activities. Grant applications are adjudicated by experts on the basis of the research excellence of the applicants, the quality of the research proposals and, in some programs, the relevance of research projects to selected areas of national concern.

Research Infrastructure Grants

These grants are awarded to individuals, groups and institutions to support the acquisition of research equipment and the development of special research facilities; they also promote and support the effective use, operation and maintenance of research facilities.

University-Industry Program

The University-Industry Program supports a wide range of research and development activities that promote collaboration between university researchers and Canadian industry. The program, which represents a major expansion of NSERC's initiatives in university-industry co-operation, combines existing, expanded and new program elements under four major components: co-operative research and development activities, scholarships and fellowships, university-industry links, and the Canadian Microelectronics Corporation.

Developmental Grants

Developmental grants support selected manpower, infrastructure and research initiatives negotiated with individuals, groups and institutions. They ensure a balanced development of the research and research-training capability in selected regions, institutions, disciplines or professions.

General Research Support

This type of assistance includes grants to university presidents in support of local research, research infrastructure, manpower and other research-related activities. It also includes grants to support national and international scientific and engineering conferences, bilateral exchanges, international exchanges and international collaborative research projects, publications of scientific and engineering journals and original research manuscripts, promotional activities, travel and other miscellaneous activities.

Other Programs

The Council also administers a number of programs on behalf of other agencies. These include NATO Science Fellowships, CIDA-NSERC Research Associateships, Fellowships in Meteorology and Atmospheric Sciences (on behalf of Environment Canada) and Visiting Fellowships in Canadian Government Laboratories (on behalf of all federal departments and agencies participating in the program).

Organization

The Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council is a Council composed of 22 members, appointed by the Governor-in-Council, who meet regularly to establish broad policies and provide guidance to its officers. The Council is headed by a President who is supported by a staff of 148 professionals and support personnel.

The Council operates through a system of committees (whose members are selected from the academic, governmental or industrial sectors) that advise on policies and programs, or review applications for grants and scholarships. Advisory committees are composed of both Council and non-Council members while selection committees are composed of experts in the areas under their purview and do not include Council members.

Key Contacts

Additional information on NSERC operations, committees or activities can be obtained by contacting the Communications Directorate at (613) 995-5992.

Background

The Northern Canada Power Commission is a federal Crown corporation which operates under authority of the Northern Canada Power Commission Act. It is concerned with planning, constructing and managing public utilities, primarily electrical, on a commercial basis. For this purpose, it is empowered to survey utility requirements and construct utility plants in the Northwest Territories, the Yukon Territory and, subject to the approval of the Governor-in-Council, elsewhere in Canada.

Overall Responsibilities

The Commission is the principal producer of electricity north of 60° and operates the main transmission networks in the Yukon and the Northwest Territories. Heat, water and sewage service utilities are operated at Inuvik, N.W.T. Wholesale heat supply is provided to the government of the Northwest Territories for distribution at Frobisher Bay. Residual heat recovery systems are operated at several locations.

The Commission's head office is located in Edmonton, Alberta. Regional offices are located in the territorial capitals of Yellowknife, Northwest Territories and Whitehorse Yukon Territory. It is a requirement of the Act that operations of the Commission shall be self-sustaining within each rate zone as defined in the Act. Consequently, rates charged for utilities supplied must provide sufficient revenue to cover interest and principal payments on loans made to the Commission, operating, maintenance, administrative and all other expenses and contingency allowances. A 1975 amendment to the Act enables the Commission to charge rates for utilities on a zone basis to cover the costs outlined above.

Background

The Northern Pipeline Agency (NPA) was created with the proclamation of the Northern Pipeline Act in April 1978, to oversee planning and construction of the Canadian portion of the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline Project by the Foothills Group of Companies.

Overall Responsibilities

The Agency's mandate is twofold. It is required to regulate the project and to streamline and expedite the approvals process. It is also responsible for ensuring that the pipeline system yields the maximum economic and industrial benefit for Canadians with the least amount of social and environmental disruption. The Act directs the Agency specifically to take account of the local and regional interests of residents, particularly native residents, in areas through which the pipeline will pass.

The Agency was designed to act as a single window in all dealings between federal authorities and the Foothills Group of Companies and in relationships involving provincial and territorial governments in Canada, and the Government of the United States. In keeping with the Act, many regulatory powers of other federal departments and agencies related to the pipeline project have been delegated to the Agency. One exception involves responsibilities reserved exclusively to the National Energy Board or shared between the Board and the Agency. A member of the Board serves as its designated officer within the Agency to exercise certain powers of the Board with respect to the project.

In addition, the Agency works closely with other arms of the federal government and other levels of government in Canada to co-ordinate the wide range of activities that come within the respective jurisdictions. These contacts are supplemented by quarterly meetings of the Federal-Provincial-Territorial Consultative Council, established under the Act.

Office of the Commissioner

As agency headquarters, the office provides support to both the Minister and the Commissioner. It is responsible for development of, and consultation on major policy issues with the United States, the provinces and federal departments and agencies concerning the planning and construction of the Canadian portion of the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline Project.

Office of the Administrator

This unit exercises such powers and performs such duties and functions as the Minister may specify. It oversees and develops the operational (as opposed to the strict policy) functions of the Agency and deals day to day with operating staff in Calgary, Whitehorse and Vancouver; with the Foothills Group of Companies in Calgary; and through regional administrators in Whitehorse and Vancouver, with the governments of the Yukon Territory and British Columbia. It is also responsible for all matters, external and internal, pertaining to the operational role of the Northern Pipeline Agency, including personnel Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline Project public hearings, and public and media relations.

Office of the Designated Officer

This unit carries out all the responsibilities specifically required under the Northern Pipeline Act, such as the terms and conditions of the pipeline certificates (the issue of formal communications with the companies in the form of orders, directives and approvals) as well as those delegated under certain sections of the National Energy Board Act. This unit brings to the Agency all of the powers, duties and functions of the National Energy Board in matters of planning, design, construction and inspection of the pipeline. It also administers the Agency's field surveillance program and provides direction to surveillance teams to ensure compliance with social, economic and environmental terms and conditions as required under the Act.

Manuals

- Schedule III to the Northern Pipeline Act
- Engineering and Technical Orders
- Socio-economic Terms and Conditions
- Environmental Terms and Conditions
- Designated Items — Procurement Program

Policy and Programs Unit

This unit is responsible for most aspects of the Agency's operational role not assigned by statute to the deputy administrator and designated officer, and for contributing to those orders, directions and approvals for the designated officer requiring the Minister's concurrence. It is also responsible for socioeconomic and environmental matters, industrial benefits, relationships with federal, provincial and territorial government departments, and manpower planning and logistical matters related to the project. It holds special policy responsibilities for the internal planning and administration of the Agency in financial management and administration.

Manuals

- Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline Project Report on Transportation and Logistics — August 1, 1980, and March 1, 1981; also February 27, 1981
- Alaska Highway Pipeline Project, Logistics — August 1980

Socio-economic and Environment Unit

This unit acts as liaison with various public interest groups and territorial, provincial and federal bodies; advises on socioeconomic and environmental policies and procedures; administers terms and conditions; carries out socioeconomic and environmental surveillance and monitoring to minimize the negative effects and maximize the benefits of construction and operation of the pipeline. It also advises the Northern Pipeline Agency, federal, provincial and territorial government departments, community and native groups, and confers with the owners, contractors, and unions on matters related to the avoidance and resolution of labour disputes on the project.

NORTHERN PIPELINE AGENCY

Scheduling and Regulatory Unit

This unit oversees the project scheduling and cost control procedures involved in building the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline, including scheduling, critical path planning, and cost review and monitoring. It is also involved in the major areas of project scheduling, project progress information centre and surveillance proceedings, right-of-way responsibilities delegated by the National Energy Board as well as the issue of permits and orders to ensure correct technical content.

Manuals

- Reports of Non-compliance Issued to Foothills by Surveillance Officers
- Station Construction Reports

- Final Design Cost Estimate Phase I, Eastern Leg — December 1980
- Final Design Cost Estimate Prebuild, Western Leg Re-submission — September 1980
- 1982 Operations and Maintenance Expense Budget, Zone 7 and 8

Engineering Design Unit

This unit has the responsibility for design review and ensuring that appropriate methods are followed by the pipeline engineering section with each company of the Foothills Group. It is also responsible for the approval of all engineering design of the pipeline as well as providing direction to personnel who will ensure that the Company conforms with the engineering requirements, orders, specifications and terms and conditions in the construction of the pipeline.

Manuals

- Stress Analyses, Frost Heave, Settlement, Muskeg, Pipe Stability, Earthquake

NORTHWEST TERRITORIES WATER BOARD

Chapter 74

Background

The Northwest Territories Water Board was established under Section 7 of the Northern Inland Waters Act, which was proclaimed on February 28, 1972. The Northern Inland Waters Regulations were promulgated on September 14, 1972. Two amendments to the Regulations have been made since: one on January 15, 1974, and the other on July 17, 1975.

The Board consists of not fewer than three and not more than nine members appointed by the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. It is made up of at least one nominee from those departments of the Government of Canada which, in the opinion of the Governor-in-Council, are most directly concerned with the management of the water resources in the Northwest Territories; and at least six persons named by the Commissioner-in-Council of the Northwest Territories. The Board held its founding meeting in Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, on April 18, 1972.

Overall Responsibilities

The Board provides for the conservation, development and use of the water resources of the Northwest Territories in a manner that will provide the optimum benefit for all Canadians, and for the residents of the Territories in particular. Under the Act, an application must be made to the Board and either an Authorization or Licence issued prior to the use of any waters or disposal of any water-borne waste.

The requirement for application applies equally to departments and agencies of the federal government. The only exclusions are the use of water for domestic purposes, for extinguishing a fire, or on an emergency basis, for controlling or preventing a flood.

Organization

Professional and technical staff is provided by the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. It is headed by the controller, and includes the supervisor of pollution control, the supervisor of licensing and approvals, a hydrologist and a biologist. Technical and administrative support staff assist these professionals in carrying on the Board activities. A Technical Advisory Committee was established on October 17, 1973, to provide a forum for the discussion of technical matters related to applications for use of water.

Background

As a result of recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor-in-Council, and was proclaimed on February 1, 1972. The Act created four pilotage regions with specific Authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four Pilotage Authorities — Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific — are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The Pacific Pilotage Authority was incorporated as a Schedule D Crown corporation within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act.

Laws and Regulations

- Canada Shipping Act
- Pilotage Act
- General Pilotage Regulations
- Pacific Pilotage Regulations
- Authority By-laws

Overall Responsibilities

The role of the Authority is to establish, operate, maintain and administer, in the interests of safety, an efficient and economical pilotage service within its geographical boundaries — all coastal waters of British Columbia and the Fraser River. As a further goal, the Authority prescribes tariffs of pilotage charges that are to be fair, reasonable and consistent with providing sufficient revenues to permit the Authority to operate on a self-sustaining financial basis.

Organization

The Pacific Pilotage Authority consists of a chairman and six members appointed by the Governor-in-Council. The Authority's head office is located in Vancouver, British Columbia. All management services, administrative, personnel, financial, contracts and purchasing, are provided by the Vancouver office.

Background

This tribunal was constituted by the Parliament of Canada pursuant to an agreement with the government of Québec whereby it is responsible for the hearing of appeals which arise from decisions of the Minister of National Revenue and the Minister of National Health and Welfare under the Canada Pension Plan (CPP); from decisions of the Minister of Revenue of Québec, and in some circumstances, from decisions of La Commission des Affaires Sociales under the Québec Pension Plan (QPP).

The Access to Information Act does not apply to any material held by the Board which has to do with appeals arising under the Québec Pension Plan. The enquirer in such cases should be directed to the pertinent officials of that province.

All decisions of this Board with respect to the Canada or Québec Pension Plan are available to the public as published in full by the Commerce Clearing House (CCH) Canadian Employment Benefits and Pension Guide Reports, Vol. II, pages 5951 (et seq.) Both these documents and the decisions of the Board are held by the department involved. Any enquiries should be directed to them.

Background

When the responsibilities of Clerk of the Privy Council were defined in 1935, the duties included the preparation of Orders and Minutes of Council and general overseeing and direction of the Office of the Privy Council. The increase in the work of the Cabinet as a result of the Second World War made it necessary to make provision for a Secretary to the Cabinet. The Secretary was to collect and organize agenda for Cabinet meetings, provide the information and materials necessary for the Cabinet deliberations and prepare the results for communication to the departments concerned.

The Privy Council Office (PCO) came into being as a result of an Order-in-Council in 1940, which added the duties of Secretary to the Cabinet to those of Clerk of the Privy Council. Today, the PCO acts as a central agency providing a link between the Prime Minister, the Cabinet and the public service. The Office provides essential services to the Prime Minister, Cabinet, and Cabinet committees.

Laws and Regulations

- Minutes of Council (PC 3374, October 25, 1935)
- Order-in-Council (PC 1940-1121E, March 25, 1940)

Overall Responsibilities

The Privy Council Office has two main functions. One has to do with the operation of the Queen's Privy Council of Canada and primarily involves advice to the Governor General and the production of Orders-in-Council. The second has to do with the operation of Cabinet and the committees of Cabinet.

For the purpose of the Financial Administration Act, the Privy Council Office is regarded as a department of government under the direction of the Prime Minister. The Clerk of the Privy Council/Secretary to the Cabinet, under whose direction the Privy Council Office's functions are carried out, is considered a deputy head taking precedence among the chief officers of the public service.

The Privy Council Office provides secretariat support for Cabinet and the committees of Cabinet to facilitate the collective decision-making of Cabinet, and assists the exercise of the prerogatives of the Prime Minister, including the organization and processes of government and the appointment of senior officials to government positions.

The overall responsibilities of the Office may be summarized as follows:

- the co-ordination and provision of material related to the meetings of Cabinet and Committees of Cabinet for the use of the Prime Minister and the chairmen of committees;
- liaison with departments and agencies of government on Cabinet matters;
- undertaking of special studies on matters of current public policy concern as required; this includes participation in interdepartmental committees of officials through the provision of chairmen, members and secretaries and the preparation of papers for, and on behalf of, such committees;
- support and advice to the Prime Minister on prime ministerial prerogatives, and responsibilities for the organization of the Government of Canada;
- advice to the Prime Minister on national security and intelligence matters, as well as the preparation of emergency planning in anticipation of national disasters or other emergencies requiring support of the responsible civilian authority;
- the examination of submissions to the Governor-in-Council to ensure conformity with policy and legal requirements, and the preparation of draft orders; and
- duties related to regulations made under the Statutory Instruments

Act including the examination revisions, registration and preparation for publication of federal statutory regulations in Part II of the Canada Gazette.

Organization

The Privy Council Office is separated into two main branches: Plans and Operations. The Plans Branch assists the Prime Minister in defining the objectives and priorities of the government as well as determining the appropriateness of departmental mandates within the government. The Operations Branch is responsible for managing the business of Cabinet and Cabinet committees. Each committee has a corresponding secretariat that provides research and operational support. Most of these secretariats are in the Privy Council Office. As the concerns of Cabinet change, so do the Cabinet committees. As a result, the number and titles of the secretariats within the Privy Council Office are also subject to change.

The Senior Personnel Secretariat serves as the personnel section for the selection and appointment of senior officers in Governor-in-Council positions. The Prime Minister's responsibility for the safeguarding of the integrity of the nation is supported by the Security and Intelligence Secretariat.

The Orders-in-Council section provides documentary and legal support to the Governor-in-Council.

FEDERAL-PROVINCIAL RELATIONS OFFICE

Background

The Federal-Provincial Relations Office (FPRO) was established on January 15, 1975, by An Act Respecting the Office of the Secretary to the Cabinet for Federal-Provincial Relations and Respecting the Clerk of the Privy Council. The unit had previously functioned as the Federal-Provincial Relations Secretariat in the Privy Council Office. It is headed by the Secretary to the Cabinet for Federal-Provincial Relations who, supported by two deputy secretaries, reports directly to the Prime Minister.

Organization

The FPRO has five principal components: a secretariat responsible for liaison with the provinces, a secretariat responsible for policy development, two additional secretariats dealing with economic and social policy and programs, and an Office of Aboriginal Constitutional Affairs.

Overall Responsibilities

The functions of the FPRO are to advise and assist the Prime Minister regarding overall responsibility for federal-provincial relations, to provide the Cabinet with assistance in examining federal-provincial issues of current and long-term concern, and to promote and facilitate federal-provincial co-operation and consultation. The FPRO also provides assistance to federal ministers, departments and agencies in the conduct of their relations with provincial governments.

Access Procedures

The Access and Privacy Co-ordinator for the Privy Council Office oversees both the access to information and the privacy of information functions. Requests for access to records under the Access to Information Act should be sent to

Classes of Records

Privy Council Office

The files held by the Privy Council Office are organized under broad subject headings. The information they contain deals with specific issues of interest to the government from time to time. Much of the material on these files originates in other government departments. Requests for general information should be referred to the government department having the greatest interest in the subject matter.

It should be noted that Orders-in-Council are published in Part II of the Canada Gazette and are therefore records in the public domain. Requests for this material should not be made under the provisions of the Access to Information Act.

Exclusion or Exemption of Records

Under the Access to Information Act, a class of records is excluded from the provisions of the Act under Section 69. The records are referred to as confidences of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada. In addition, records that contain advice or recommendations may be exempted by a government institution pursuant to Section 21. Both these sections refer to records that are less than 20 years old.

The files held by the Federal-Provincial Relations Office are organized under broad subject headings. The information they hold deals with specific issues of interest to the government from time to time. Much of the material on these files originates in other government departments. Requests for general information should be referred to the government department having the greatest interest in the subject matter.

Exclusion or Exemption of Records

Under the Access to Information Act, a class of records is excluded from the provisions of the Act under Section 69. The records are referred to as confidences of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada. In addition, records that contain information whose release could be injurious to the conduct by the Government of Canada of federal-provincial affairs may be exempted by a government institution pursuant to Sections 21 and 14.

PUBLIC ARCHIVES

PUBLIC ARCHIVES

Overall Responsibilities

Public Archives Canada (PAC) has a dual role. First, as a research institution, it is responsible for acquiring, from any source, all significant archival material of every kind, nature and description on all aspects of Canadian life, and for providing suitable research services and facilities to make this material available to the public.

This broad mandate obliges the Public Archives to preserve material both from the private sector and federal government institutions. The classes of records described in this publication, however, do not include material placed in the Public Archives by persons or organizations other than government institutions. Access conditions for collections acquired from the private sector are normally established by negotiation between the donor and the Public Archives.

The Public Archives plays an equally important role in the efficient management of federal government records. In addition to contributing to overall efficiency, these activities provide for the preservation of an administrative memory by documenting current and former government activities.

Laws and Regulations

- Public Archives Act (1912)

Organization

The Public Archives is directed by the Dominion Archivist, who is the deputy head, supported by an assistant dominion archivist and four directors-general heading the three operational branches and the administration branch. The Dominion Archivist reports to the Minister of Communications.

The Archives Branch consists of eight divisions: Federal Archives; National Film, Television and Sound Archives; National Map Collection; Manuscripts Division; Machine-Readable Archives; National Photography Collection; Picture Division; and Public Archives Library. The branch also maintains offices in London and Paris.

The Records Management Branch consists of: Central Microfilm Operations; Federal Records Centres Division; National Personnel Records Centre; Office of Micrographic Standards and Reprographic Development; and the Records Management and Micrographic Systems Division. The branch also maintains federal records centres in the following cities: Halifax, Montréal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver.

The Conservation and Technical Services Branch consists of: Optical Disc Advisory Services; Photography Services; Picture Conservation; and the Records Conservation Division.

Departmental Administration is responsible for such services as finance, personnel and general administration.

Dominion Archivist's Office

The Dominion Archivist is ultimately responsible for all activities of the Public Archives. He or she also participates nationally and internationally in various committees, associations and councils. The assistant dominion archivist assists the Dominion Archivist, particularly in the historical documents, records management and conservation functions.

ARCHIVES BRANCH

The branch is responsible for the acquisition, organization and preservation of historical material from government institutions as well as from private individuals and organizations; and providing access to historical government records, research facilities, advice, assistance and reference service to government departments and the various research communities.

Federal Archives Division

This division is responsible for the acquisition, selection, custody and preservation of the textual historical records created and received by the departments and agencies of the Government of Canada and their predecessors, and for making these records available for reference and research purposes.

Manuals

- Federal Archives Division Procedure Manual

National Film, Television and Sound Archives Division

The main function of this division is the acquisition and custody of historically significant audio and audio-visual records such as films, videotapes and sound recordings from the private sector and government institutions. Reference services are available to government institutions and the general public.

Manuals

- Internal Cataloguing Procedure Manual

National Map Collection

The main function of the division is the acquisition and custody of historically significant cartographic and architectural records, mostly from federal government institutions. The division also collects historical material from the general public. Reference services are available to government departments and the general public.

Manuals

- Internal Procedures Manual — guidelines on the acquisition, appraisal, selection, classification, and accessioning of maps received from government departments

Manuscript Division

This division is responsible for the acquisition, selection, organization, description, storage and preservation of nationally significant and historically valuable private manuscripts, corporate records and non-federal government records. It also serves government agencies and the public by making these records available to researchers, performing research and providing information and advice.

Manuals

- Manuscript Division Procedures Manual

Machine-Readable Archives Division

This division appraises, acquires, controls and makes available for research historically valuable machine-readable (EDP) records produced in the public sector, and those of national significance produced in the private sector. It also assists in the development and promotion of data archival techniques in other organizations.

Manuals

- Policies and Procedures Manual

National Photography Collection Division

The division collects, organizes, preserves and makes available selected photographic collections to the public.

Manuals

- Guide to Photo Control Procedures and Methods
- Descriptive and Subject Cataloguing at the National Photography Collection
- Thesaurus of Cataloguing Terms

Picture Division

The main function of the division is the acquisition and custody of historically significant pictorial and iconographical records, mostly from the private sector. Reference services are available to government departments and the general public.

Public Archives Library Division

The main function of the division is the acquisition and custody of historically significant collections of books and other publications from government institutions and the private sector. It serves as the departmental reference library for the other divisions on their archival projects and operations. Services are available to government institutions and the general public.

Manuals

- Internal Procedural Manuals on Acquisition, Loans and Cataloguing

London and Paris Offices

The function of these offices is to identify, evaluate and arrange for the acquisition or copying of archival material relevant to Canada (manuscripts, maps, paintings, prints, photographs or publications) in England, France and the surrounding countries; and to answer research enquiries and provide a reference service.

RECORDS MANAGEMENT BRANCH

The function of this branch is to provide a comprehensive service in records management, primarily to federal government departments and agencies in Ottawa and in larger metropolitan centres across Canada. This service includes records centre storage and reference facilities, advice and assistance in records scheduling and disposal, the provision of training courses, printed standards and guides on records management, conduct of surveys and evaluations, assistance for internal audit staff at institutions in the auditing of records management functions, provision of micrographic operational services and assistance in other aspects of records management, including the federal government's Essential Records Program.

Manuals

- Records Management: Organization and Procedures

Central Microfilm Operations

This division provides a complete micrographic operational service to government departments and agencies on a cost-recovery basis. This includes all microforms, with special capacity in the area of microfiche and computer output microfilm.

Federal Records Centres Division

This division provides safe and economical storage facilities for dormant records, essential records and active computer tapes of federal government departments and agencies in regions where the federal government has its major concentrations of activity. Centres are located in the following cities: Halifax, Montréal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver.

National Personnel Records Centre

The functions of the National Personnel Records Centre (NPRC) are to provide storage and reference services, to federal departments and agencies and the general public, on personnel and personnel-related records of former civilian and military federal employees and former members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; and to assume on behalf of the Dominion Archivist the responsibilities defined in current privacy legislation for all personnel records under NPRC control.

Office of Micrographic Standards and Reprographic Development

The office co-ordinates activities for the development of national micrographic standards and provides a referral centre in the field of reprography.

Records Management and Micrographic Systems Division

This division is responsible for advising, training, and assisting government institutions in the management of their records and the use of micrographics; for evaluating and monitoring the effectiveness of records management in government institutions; for undertaking and promoting research into technological developments; and for ensuring the effective scheduling (for retention and disposal) of government records.

CONSERVATION AND TECHNICAL SERVICES BRANCH

This branch is responsible for picture and records conservation for the Public Archives, including photography services, computer systems development, and the training of qualified conservators.

Optical Disc Advisory Services

This section provides advisory services to the Public Archives in the research, design, development and implementation of optical disc storage and retrieval systems.

Photography Services Division

This division is responsible for photographic services to the Public Archives, and to the researchers who use the facilities.

Picture Conservation Division

This division is responsible for the conservation and restoration of historical and rare documents (principally oil paintings, fine art on paper, medals and photographic materials) for the Public Archives.

Records Conservation Division

This division is responsible for the conservation and restoration of historical and rare books, manuscripts, maps, atlases, posters and other paper and leatherbound archival material. It also provides a training program to develop qualified Canadian conservators.

Chapter 79

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

Background

The Public Service Commission (PSC) is a politically independent agency accountable to Parliament for the administration of the Public Service Employment Act.

The jurisdictional powers of the PSC rest with three commissioners — one chairman and two members. They are appointed by the Governor-in-Council for a ten-year term and have the status of deputy head. Together, the commissioners set the overall policy in accordance with the Public Service Employment Act. A majority of the commissioners constitutes a quorum. The chairman is chief executive officer.

The PSC, as it is known today, evolved gradually from the Civil Service Commission (CSC), which was established in 1908 under the Civil Service Amendment Act. This Act introduced the principle of merit as established by competition. However, it did not apply to positions outside of Ottawa. The Civil Service Act of 1918 placed the entire Public Service under the CSC. The Civil Service Act of 1962 preserved the independence of the Civil Service Commission and maintained the fundamental principles of the merit system.

The Public Service Employment Act of 1967 reaffirmed the merit principle and changed the name of the Civil Service Commission to the Public Service Commission (PSC). The PSC's main task became staffing and the Commission was allowed to delegate staffing authority and power to departments. The PSC retained full responsibility for administering the appeals system. The Commission's responsibility for pay and classification and conditions of employment was transferred to the Treasury Board of Canada.

Overall Responsibilities

The primary responsibility of the Public Service Commission today is to ensure that the merit principle, as determined by the Commission, is upheld in public service staffing operations. This is accomplished through:

- the appointment or provision for the appointment of qualified persons to or from within the Public Service;
- the development and administration of processes and standards for selection of candidates for positions in the Public Service;
- the operation of an appeals system for appointments and demotions or releases for incompetency or incapacity; and
- the conduct of audits to evaluate the manner in which staffing authority has been exercised.

The Public Service Employment Act also provides for the Public Service Commission to:

- promote the participation of women, francophones, native people and other under-represented groups in the Public Service;
- ensure that physically and mentally handicapped persons are given effective equality of opportunity to compete for positions in the Public Service;
- provide professional leadership in facilitating, stimulating and operating programs of development and training, including language training and services, to bring about improvements in the skills and qualifications of public service employees;
- maintain an effective appeals mechanism for employees of the Public Service with respect to appointments, releases and demotions;
- investigate complaints of inequity and unfairness in employment under the Public Service Employment Act; and
- make decisions on allegations of political partisanship.

Members of the public seeking information about various PSC programs, services and policies are encouraged to telephone the Information centre at (613) 996-5010. The centre is located in Ottawa at 300 Laurier Avenue West (West Tower, L'Esplanade Laurier).

Appeals and Investigations Branch

The branch establishes independent boards to hear appeals by public servants against alleged breaches of the Public Service Employment Act and Regulations, including cases taken to the Federal Court of Canada. It also investigates complaints alleging discrimination on non-proscribed grounds, harassment, unfair administrative treatment on the job, questionable staffing activities and other complaints on personnel matters.

Executive Secretariat

The chairman and commissioners' offices have the overall responsibility for PSC policy in accordance with the Public Service Employment Act. The executive secretariat provides advice and assistance in the co-ordination of policy submissions from organizational components of the PSC. Accordingly, it develops and organizes policies affecting more than one organizational component of the PSC; administers Sections 21, 31, 32, and 39 of the Public Service Employment Act; provides replies to ministerial and parliamentary enquiries; and regulates the flow of documentation to and from the PSC.

Audit Branch

The branch conducts audits of delegated and non-delegated staffing activities and other personnel management functions, as delegated by the Treasury Board of Canada, to assess the management of staffing and other personnel management systems, including the assessment of the effectiveness and impact of policies, practices, procedures and regulations on these systems. These audits are carried out on a cyclical basis in all departments and agencies that come under the Public Service Employment Act. The results are used by the Commission to determine the content and duration of the instruments for delegation of staffing authority and to account to Parliament each year on the state of staffing delegation under Section 45 of the Act, and by the Treasury Board of Canada to assess the administration of its personnel management policies and systems.

Management Category Programs Branch

The branch, under the Public Service Employment Act and the Commission's policies, establishes policies and systems for the recruitment and selection of individuals for management category positions in the Public Service; performs planning, counselling and staffing for the management category; is responsible for the Interchange Canada and International Assignments Programs, Career Assignment Program management category, resource planning and analysis, and policy and systems development.

Staff Development Branch

The branch provides executive, professional, managerial and supervisory training to public servants throughout Canada, in response to departmental demand, by providing individualized learning activities, standard courses or training events custom-designed to suit the specific job requirements of a particular department or group of departments.

Manuals

- Staff Development Branch Policies and Procedures Manual

Language Training Program Branch

The branch provides basic language training to employees on the Commission's or client's premises; designs and conducts specialized and developmental courses for departments and agencies; and gives advice and assistance to clients in various areas of language training such as the development of teaching materials to meet specific needs, program evaluation, needs analysis, consultation, testing and orientation of language trainees.

Corporate Systems and Services Branch

This branch designs, promotes, implements and co-ordinates management systems in the Commission. It ensures that internal Commission policies and systems are consistent with central agency requirements, directs the acquisition and management of the Commission's resources, and provides services to other branches through the following directorates: Administration, Information and Management Systems, Corporate Systems and Analysis, Finance, Public Affairs, Personnel, Internal Audit, and Regional Services.

PUBLIC SERVICE STAFF RELATIONS BOARD

Background

The Public Service Staff Relations Board (PSSRB) was established in 1967 by the Public Service Staff Relations Act as amended. The Board is designated as a department, within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act (Order in Council 1967-635, April 4, 1967), and reports to Parliament through a minister of the Crown other than a member of the Treasury Board as designated by the Governor-in-Council. At present, the minister responsible is the President of the Privy Council.

Prior to October 1, 1975, arbitration and adjudication were separate institutions under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, drawing administrative and support services from the Board. Amendments to the Act effective October 1, 1975 placed these functions within the responsibility of the Board.

Laws and Regulations

- Public Service Staff Relations Act
- Public Service Staff Relations Board Regulations and Rules of Procedure

Overall Responsibilities

The Board administers the Public Service Staff Relations Act which established a system of collective bargaining, a grievance process and an adjudication procedure for the federal public service (as defined in that Act). These responsibilities include such matters as determination of bargaining units, certification and decertification of bargaining agents, arbitration of interest disputes, adjudication of rights disputes and generally the provision of an administrative structure within which the rights and responsibilities of the employers and employees in the federal public service may be exercised or enforced.

Organization

Pursuant to amendments to the Public Service Staff Relations Act which were proclaimed effective October 1, 1975, the Board is composed of "...a Chairman, a Vice-Chairman, not less than three Deputy Chairmen and such other full-time and part-time members as the Governor-in-Council considers necessary to discharge the responsibilities of the Board." With the 1975 amendments, the Board became a public member board in which each member represents only the public interest. Previously, employee and employer interests were represented on the Board by equal numbers of part-time members and only the chairman, vice-chairman and the deputy chairmen were full-time members. All appointments are for periods not exceeding seven years, with the exception of the chairman, vice-chairman and deputy chairmen, whose appointments are for periods not exceeding ten years. Part-time members are appointed either for the purpose of adjudicating upon grievances which have been referred to adjudication or for chairing divisions of the Board which have been assigned responsibility for the issue of arbitration awards.

Pay Research Bureau

This bureau is responsible for obtaining information on rates of pay, employee earnings, conditions of employment and related practices, prevailing both inside and outside the public service, to meet the needs of the parties bargaining in the federal public service. It is also responsible for developing and maintaining a data bank of up-to-date data and conducting research studies to support the processes of collective bargaining in the Public Service of Canada. It provides information on compensation and related matters in the federal public service to industry, provincial and municipal governments, bargaining agents and other organizations, when to do so is in the public interest.

Secretary Registrar's Office

The secretary registrar is responsible for the development of an effective system for the processing of all proceedings coming before the Board under the provisions of the Act and its regulations. This includes, in addition to an individual case registration and file system for each type of proceeding, the provision of support services for Board meetings and hearings throughout Canada such as hearing accommodations, clerical and secretarial assistance, recording and transcribing facilities and arrangements for court reporters.

Office of Mediation Services

The Office assists the employers and bargaining agents in resolving their disputes when impasses occur in negotiating collective agreements. It also assists in the resolution of differences when employees have been suggested for managerial or confidential positions, and when employees are suggested for positions in connection with the provisions of the Act relating to the safety or security of the public. In addition, it endeavours to settle complaints alleging violations of certain sections of the Act or Regulations.

Manuals

- Office of Mediation Procedures — Conciliation Boards, Mediators, Conciliators

Legal Services

This unit provides advice and recommendations on the statutory and regulatory powers of the Board, provides the chairman and Board with legal opinions and advice on matters referred to them, keeps abreast of legal developments, particularly as they may affect labor legislation in general and the Public Service Staff Relations Act in particular. It also represents the Board before the Federal Court.

Background

The Department of Public Works (Public Works Canada) was established in 1867 by an Act respecting the public works of Canada (SC 1867-68 c.12). Before that time, public works were carried on in the Province of Canada by the Commissioner of Public Works who controlled canals, works in navigable waters, harbours, lighthouses, beacons and buoys, slides and booms, roads and bridges, public buildings, and provincial vessels.

Laws and Regulations

Public Works Canada administers the following statutes, in whole or in part:

- Bridges Act, RSC 1970, c.B-10 (See also Table of Public Statutes, except Fort Falls Bridge Authority)
- Dry Docks Subsidies Act, RSC 1970, c.D-9
- Expropriation Act, RSC 1970, c.16 (1st supp.)
- Government Harbours and Piers Act, RSC 1970, c.G.-9 (s.5)
- Government Property Traffic Act, RSC 1970, c.G.-10
- Government Works Tolls Act, RSC 1970, c.G-13
- Kingsmere Park Act, RSC 1952, c.161
- Laurier House Act, RSC 1952, c.163
- Official Residences Act, RSC 1970, c.P-20 (2nd supp.) — an Act to amend the Prime Minister's Residence Act
- Ottawa River Act, RSC 1870, c.24
- Public Works Act, RSC 1970, c.P-38, amended in 1977, c.28
- Surplus Crown Assets Act, RSC 260, s.1, c.S-20
- Trans-Canada Highway Act, RSC 1970, c.T-12
- Municipal Grants Act, RSC 1970, c.182, 5.1
- Municipal Grants Act, RSC 1980

Overall Responsibilities

Public Works Canada is responsible for the management of real property for the Government of Canada and the provision of planning, design, construction and realty services to government institutions, departments and agencies, while contributing to the government's wider social, economic and environmental objectives.

The Department builds, purchases and disposes of land and other real property, rents premises, and maintains, improves and manages properties owned or leased by the Government of Canada. It also provides marine facilities, roads, bridges and public utilities as required by other federal government programs.

Program Structure

A significantly revised program activity structure has been introduced for 1985-1986. The number of programs has been reduced from seven to five, each of which relates directly to the role expected of the Department in relation to the several activities in which the Department is involved. These are as follows:

The Services Program fulfills the common service role to provide a wide range of professional, technical, and operational services required by the government in relation to the acquisition, management, and operation of real property.

The Accommodation Program fulfills the common service role to provide the full range of office and other forms of accommodation required to support the operations of government.

The Government Realty Assets Support Program provides a central capability for the government to achieve wider social, economic and environmental objectives related to real property.

The Marine Transportation and Related Engineering Works Program provides specific marine works and related infrastructure to facilitate marine transportation and related economic and social development goals.

The Land Transportation and Other Engineering Works Program provides highways, bridges and other engineering works to facilitate land transportation and related economic and social development goals.

Organization

Public Works Canada is a highly decentralized department, delivering service to other federal government departments from six regional offices. There are also several district offices located in each region, which provide local service to the Department's clients and the public. The regional offices are located in Halifax (Atlantic Region); Montréal (Québec Region); Ottawa (National Capital Region); Toronto (Ontario Region); Edmonton (Western Region); and Vancouver (Pacific Region). They carry out the Department's program delivery responsibilities and services in the areas of planning, property administration, real estate services, contract policy and administration, design and construction, and finance and administration.

Public Relations and Information Centre

Traditionally, Public Works Canada has provided information directly to the public through its Public Relations and Information Centre. Requests for information usually reach the Department in the form of telephone, personal or written enquiries.

Telephone enquiries are handled by the recipient of the call or referred to a qualified official. Managers are held responsible for the quality and accuracy of information released. Telephone enquiries are generally quick, definite questions on precise topical problems which can be answered within the scope of a conversation. Complex or highly technical questions are referred for reply to specialists within the Department. Should an enquiry require considerable research, the information will be forwarded when available, usually by mail.

Persons wishing to conduct their own research are usually referred to the Public Relations and Information Centre which ensures the required information is available and arranges contacts within the Department.

Information Research and Library Services

The public is invited to use the library for research during normal business hours. If the requested information is not available in the Public Works Canada collection, the user will be directed to other sources of information accessible to the Department.

Written enquiries of a general nature are routed through the Public Relations and Information Centre, which may forward them to appropriate departmental officials for reply. Specific enquiries are routed directly to appropriate officials. If lengthy delays are foreseen in responding, the correspondent is notified by an interim reply. The final response is made as soon as the requisite information becomes available.

The existing system of informal access has been in use for several years and has proven efficient and capable of handling all enquiries. The public is encouraged to contact Public Works Canada for information within the Department's sphere of responsibility through headquarters, or the regional and district offices listed below.

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY BRANCH

Administrative Policy and Services Directorate

The directorate is responsible for the provision of all administrative support policies and services such as materiel management, information research and library services, word processing, records management, forms, manuals and directives control, parliamentary returns, executive correspondence control security, safety, in-house energy conservation program, and suggestion award program. See

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS

PWC/PWC-005, PWC/PWC-055, PWC/PWC-070 and PWC/PWC-075.

Emergency Preparedness Directorate

This directorate provides plans and preparations for the control and regulation of construction, and the allocation of engineering and construction resources throughout Canada; plans and arranges to protect the population from the wartime effects of radioactive fallout and other weapons' effects; and provides emergency government facilities and readiness plans (in peacetime and war). See PWC/PWC-010.

CORPORATE AFFAIRS

Corporate Policy and Strategic Planning Directorate

The directorate develops and co-ordinates departmental policies and strategic plans, investigates and makes recommendations on policy areas, and determines their impact on the Department.

Corporate Planning Systems and Control Directorate

This directorate organizes, develops, co-ordinates and evaluates the departmental planning process. This includes the setting of management planning timetables, plan formats, organization responsibilities and the quality control of plans. The directorate also carries out reviews of organizational roles and structure and is responsible for preparing the departmental systems plan, which outlines the priorities for corporate systems development. Further, it provides secretariat services for the systems development committee and the project delivery systems (PDS) steering committee.

Program Evaluation Directorate

The directorate's prime objective is to assist the deputy minister and other senior managers to decide on resource allocation and the management, delivery, design and impact of departmental programs. This is accomplished by conducting periodic evaluation studies of departmental programs and activities.

Management Consulting Services Directorate

This directorate provides internal management consultant services for the Department in response to specific requests from senior management; supports the development, integration, implementation and maintenance of departmental corporate management policies, systems, procedures and planning capabilities through its consultative role; manages and controls the Department's use of "external management consultant" resources, including managing the funds for acquiring outside consultant services; leads task forces and participates on special projects designated by the deputy minister or the executive committee.

Personnel Branch

This branch consists of five directorates: Personnel Planning and Systems; Education, Training and Development; Staff Relations; Personnel Operations; and Affirmative Action and Official Languages. It provides national policy and services in the areas of staffing, classifications, career planning, training and development, human resources planning and other areas concerning personnel. The branch also provides special services to the Equal Opportunity Programs Directorate. It maintains the personnel management systems (PMS) and the official languages information systems (OLIS).

REALTY BRANCH

Property Administration — Accommodation Services Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the space planning, management and marketing of Public Works-controlled accommodation. It helps the Treasury Board of Canada develop and monitor accommodation policies and standards, and ensures the maximization of revenues from Public Works' real property portfolio. It is also responsible for the leasing of space from the private sector as required by the government. See the following classes of records: PWC/PWC-005, PWC/PWC-040 and PWC/PWC-065.

Property Management Directorate

The directorate is responsible for the full range of tenant services such as energy conservation, physical security and fire safety programs, signage, priority use of fuels, general maintenance and service contracts. In consultation with the Contract Policy and Administration Directorate it develops procedures for inviting and processing quotations and tenders for work in existing Crown-owned and leased buildings. See PWC/PWC-040 and PWC/PWC-065.

Facilities Maintenance Policy Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the establishment and monitoring of policies, guidelines, standards and programs as they relate to the building maintenance services of Public Works Canada facilities. These services include electrical, mechanical, energy conservation, architectural, structural and general building maintenance such as cleaning services. See the following classes of records: PWC/PWC-005, PWC/PWC-040, and PWC/PWC-065 and all operational classes.

Real Estate Services — Property Development Directorate

The directorate is responsible for identification of realty development opportunities through "highest and best use" analysis and for the development of optimum solutions that contribute to the realization of the opportunities identified. In addition, the directorate is responsible for the interpretation and application of the Federal Land Management (FLM) principles within the Department. To meet its responsibilities on a national basis the directorate establishes policies, guidelines and procedures governing all real property transactions, including changes in use. See PWC/PWC-045, PWC/PWC-050 and PWC/PWC-085.

Implementation Directorate

This directorate is functionally responsible for services in the fields of real estate acquisition, appraisal and disposal as they relate to the Government Land Purchase Regulations, Contracts Regulations, Clauses, Government Lands Leasing and Licensing Regulations, the Federal Expropriation Act, the Surplus Crown Assets Act, Public Works Act and the Public Lands Grants Act. This directorate is also responsible for the formulation of policies and procedures followed by the Department in carrying out these services, as well as being a liaison between the Treasury Board of Canada, the Privy Council Office and the regions in matters concerning departmental functions. See PWC/PWC-045 and PWC/PWC-085.

Resources and Standards Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the planning, development and maintenance of the departmental property inventory and the provision of legal land survey services. These services are required for the appraisal, expropriation, acquisition and disposal functions of the Department. See PWC/PWC-045, PWC/PWC-060 and PWC/PWC-085.

Municipal Grants Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the administration of the payment of grants to municipal, school, provincial and territorial taxing authorities in lieu of a real property tax for a taxation year and in lieu of a frontage or area tax on federal property situated within the area in which the taxing authority has the power to levy and collect the real property, frontage or area tax. Such federal properties are exempt from municipal taxation pursuant to Section 125 of the British North America Act. See PWC/PWC-045.

Crown Corporation Directorate

The directorate is responsible for liaison between Public Works Canada and the Crown corporations for which the Minister of Public Works is responsible.

IMPAC/REVENUE DEPENDENCY BRANCH

This branch leads and co-ordinates departmental activities related to the Comptroller General's improved management practices and controls (IMPAC) plan; the introduction of charging other government departments for Public Works accommodation plus professional and technical services; and the conversion of Public Works to operating in a revenue-dependent mode of management. The project issues statements of principles and goals, calls for annual departmental work plans by functions and regions, directs and co-ordinates activities in support of IMPAC and Revenue Dependency work plans, and acts as secretariat to the executive steering committee (Public Works approval body).

Operations Branch

Operational Services Directorate

This directorate monitors departmental operations, maintains liaison with clients, responds to clients' problems and needs, assists regions in dealing with headquarters functions, client headquarters and central agencies, and provides operationally oriented guidance to regional management. See the following classes of records: PWC/PWC-005, PWC/PWC-025, PWC/PWC-030, PWC/PWC-040, PWC/PWC-045, PWC/PWC-055 and PWC/PWC-065.

Contract Policy and Administration Directorate

The directorate is responsible for the development, recommendation and implementation of guidelines and procedures as they relate to the management and administration of all types of Public Works contracts. See PWC/PWC-005, PWC/PWC-030 and PWC/PWC-065.

Operational Planning Directorate

This directorate is divided into three units: (1) Planning Analysis, which formulates the Department's multi-year operation plan, budget-year operational plan and current-year operational plan, monitors activities and develops strategies for each Public Works program, and provides ad hoc program analysis on request from the Minister and executive committee; (2) Performance Analysis, which develops and implements an operations performance indicators system in support of both regional and national operations, and measures and reports on the performance of operational plans and programs; and (3) Systems Support, which directs the development and implementation of the systems to provide the information required for the management of the national and regional operations of the department, and the delivery of client program requirements. See PWC/PWC-030 and PWC/PWC-040.

DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION BRANCH

Special Services Directorate

This directorate provides branch professional staff with advice and support in the areas of management practices, financial and personnel planning, business systems and general administration.

Design and Construction Services Directorate

Transportation Division

This division is responsible for all activities of a national scale relating to transportation works, such as transportation structures (bridges) and highways, under the jurisdiction of Public Works Canada. It is also responsible for the planning and implementation of technical and administrative policies, standards and guidelines relating to the field of transportation as it pertains to the Department. See PWC/PWC-025 and PWC/PWC-030.

Marine Division

The division is responsible for all aspects of marine construction, design, planning and engineering as required by Public Works Canada. It is also responsible for the development and co-ordination of the marine works programs funded by this and other government departments. See PWC/PWC-025 and PWC/PWC-030.

Environmental Design Division

The division provides professional services and support to Public Works Canada regional offices and other government departments in the fields of planning, urban design, landscape architecture, environmental analysis and the conservation of heritage structures. See PWC/PWC-025 and PWC/PWC-030.

Buildings Division

This division's responsibility is to establish a centre for the building product line in the branch and the Department through the provision of professional advice and support to regions, other branches, the Department executive and other government departments. This responsibility requires the development of practical and functional knowledge and suitable processes for its application; the assessment of product line organization and resources; and the monitoring of programs to ensure the achievement of satisfactory levels of building quality. See PWC/PWC-025 and PWC/PWC-030.

Consultant Services Division

The division is responsible for the negotiation of approvals through the Treasury Board of Canada; for entry into contract; and development of new contracts in the fields of engineering, architecture, construction and special consulting services. See PWC/PWC-025 and PWC/PWC-030.

Technology Development Division

This division manages special projects related to energy conservation, standards, systems, government master specification development, technological planning, and technical documentation. See PWC/PWC-020, PWC/PWC-025, PWC/PWC-030 and PWC/PWC-055.

Engineering Technology Division

This division provides expertise in the fields of thermography and civil, electrical and mechanical engineering. See PWC/PWC-025, PWC/PWC-030 and PWC/PWC-055.

Architectural and Building Sciences Division

This division is charged with maintaining an adequate knowledge base in two areas: the building enclosure and the interior environment. To this end, it identifies and acquires the most appropriate and up-to-date technology for the design, construction, operation and maintenance of facilities. See PWC/PWC-025 and PWC/PWC-030.

Project Management Technology Division

The division has the prime responsibility and accountability for the acquisition, development and application of technologies and training related to project management, cost planning, construction specifications, scheduling, and construction quality assurance in the Public Works' fields related to design and construction. See PWC/PWC-025 and PWC/PWC-030.

PUBLIC RELATIONS AND INFORMATION CENTRE

The centre is responsible for developing public awareness and understanding of the roles, missions, and activities of Public Work Canada; maintaining responsive relations with the Minister's office; developing, implementing, maintaining and evaluating communications programs and mechanisms addressed to Public Works clients, and public and internal users; assessing public feedback to public relations and information services activities; maintaining effective relations and communications with the media; maintaining liaison with public affairs and information services divisions in other government departments; and for advising on the implementation of the federal identity program.

The Commissioner's office is responsible for all fire prevention and fire safety programs for federal government properties, including fire and explosion investigations; fire safety and property evacuation training for government employees; determination of fire protection engineering standards for building construction; advice to other government departments on related design, specifications and engineering standards; research in the fire protection field; the monitoring and evaluation of the Fire Commissioner's functions nationally and directing regional actions; correlation and distribution of federal government fire loss statistics; and maintenance of liaison with national professional and technical fire protection associations. See PWC/PWC-035.

FINANCE AND ADMINISTRATION BRANCH

Financial Services Division

The division directs departmental financial planning; resource negotiations with the Treasury Board of Canada; resource allocations; budgetary control and reporting; cash management and financial analysis.

Corporate Finance Division

The division processes, records and reports on the Department's financial transactions and accounting activities; develops, coordinates, monitors and evaluates departmental management accounting systems and structures, including a full cost disclosure system, in compliance with central agency and departmental policy or directives; supports all Public Works travel and relocation programs and (in conjunction with personnel) the pay administration system; produces public accounts year-end submissions; and ensures accountability for non-budget fiscal accounts. The division provides related policy advice and feasibility assessments for departmental, interdepartmental and central agency committees.

Informatics Services Directorate

The directorate is responsible for provision of a full range of electronic data processing (EDP) and computer systems services to support all activities of the Department. It is responsible for the centralized development of all systems serving common national requirements, the management of departmental databases, and central planning and control of all EDP in the Department. The directorate also provides technical computing services in support of the Department's professional and technical program and management science services to support departmental planners, analysts and managers.

DEPARTMENT OF REGIONAL INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION

Background

The Department of Regional Industrial Expansion (DRIE) was created in December, 1983, through the amalgamation of elements of the former Departments of Industry, Trade and Commerce and Regional Economic Expansion. DRIE was established to address the government's key priority of economic renewal, and was given the mandate of increasing the economic prosperity of Canadians in all provinces and stimulating regional industrial expansion. When the Ministry of State for Economic and Regional Development was disbanded in July, 1984, the Regional and Project Co-ordination Branch and the Federal Economic Development Co-ordinators were transferred to DRIE.

The Department's objective is to increase overall industrial, commercial and tourism activity in all parts of Canada in an environment that is stable and responsive to the expressed needs of business. This objective is achieved by working with business and labour, other governments and the academic community; providing financial, marketing and other technical information to businesses; and, where necessary, extending direct financial assistance.

The Department acts to foster a climate which encourages firms to be more internationally competitive by developing new products, processes, and services; by establishing the capacity to produce these goods and services; by marketing these goods and services at home and abroad; and by restructuring the firms' activities to adjust to changing market conditions.

Overall Responsibilities

The following is a list of major programs administered by the Department:

Industrial and Regional Development Program (IRDP): The core program of DRIE, it provides assistance to business and non-profit organizations through contributions, repayable contributions and loan guarantees.

Tourism Canada (Canadian Government Office of Tourism — CGOT): This program promotes Canada's tourism industry abroad and in the domestic market and assists the industry in improving its product and competitiveness.

Defence Industry Productivity Program (DIPP): This program provides financial assistance to industrial firms involved in the production of defence or defence-related products for export.

Program for Export Market Development (PEMD): Delivered by the Department on behalf of the Department of External Affairs, it provides incentives for Canadian firms to enter or expand foreign markets.

Special ARDA (Agricultural and Rural Development Act): This program was designed to help residents of remote and northern areas (in particular, those of Indian and Inuit ancestry) to start, expand or modernize commercial ventures employing native people and to improve incomes in such primary activities as hunting, trapping, fishing and forestry. (Applies only in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Yukon and Northwest Territories.)

Native Economic Development Program (NEDP): A four-year federal program to aid the economic development of native people, the $345 million fund will be managed by a board comprised of a majority of native persons with business experience who will advise ministers concerning policy and operational matters and make recommendations on individual applications for assistance from the fund.

Western Transportation Industrial Development Program (WTID): WTID is a federal government initiative designed to assist business in western Canada to take advantage of the economic opportunities resulting from the decision to revise the Crow's Nest Pass rate and expand the western railway system. It is a five-year program expiring on March 31, 1988 which provides assistance to companies engaged in manufacturing, processing and related activities to reap the benefits of increased investment in railway capacity.

Economic Regional Development Agreements (ERDA): These federal-provincial agreements are administered at the regional level and enquiries should be referred to the regional communications offices.

Key Contacts

The Department of Regional Industrial Expansion makes information available to the public on a continuing basis through the following channels. These channels should be used for informal requests for information i.e. not formal requests for records under the Access to Information Act. Chief among the informal channels of communications are

DEPARTMENT OF REGIONAL INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION

- Departmental officials who regularly and informally provide information to business clientele and the news media.
- The Communications Branch, which provides a focal point for relaying information about DRIE programs, policies and projects to the business community and the general public; provides films, visual materials and publications on DRIE programs and services; co-ordinates the activities of regional communications services and provides specialized assistance to these offices as required; and maintains contact with other federal institutions, and other levels of government and the private sector.

Due to the amalgamation referred to in the background section, the management of departmental records is still in a transition phase. To reflect this, the information holdings are displayed in three sets; the first set is a description of the branches, offices, and classes of records for the present Department of Regional Industrial Expansion which comprise the records of the three integrated institutions; the second set is the records of the former Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce; the third set is the records of the former Department of Regional Economic Expansion. Some of these latter records have not yet been integrated. Please proceed by first reviewing the classes of records in the first set for Regional Industrial Expansion, which will refer to the appropriate records in the second and third sets which have not yet been integrated.

CONSUMER GOODS, SERVICES AND RESOURCE PROCESSING

This organization gathers and analyzes information on industry; provides policy advice concerning three industry sectors (resource processing, consumer goods, foods and chemicals); and co-ordinates departmental responsibility for industrial adjustment programs.

EDP Systems

- Demand study of Canadian health product markets system: This system was developed for the health care products division for data collection and reporting on four major product groups.

Market Development Branch

This branch identifies and analyzes current and new market opportunities in all sectors and regions of Canada, develops a complementary program of domestic marketing activities through the marketing element of the Industrial and Regional Development Program (IRDP) and conducts other special measures to increase the overall share of Canadian products in the domestic market.

Manuals

- Import Analysis Methodology for Project Managers

EDP Systems

- Business opportunities sourcing system (BOSS): This system is designed to locate information about Canadian companies and their products. It can be used to identify a Canadian manufacturer and/or supplier of a specific product or to find accurate, up-to-date information about Canadian manufacturers and international trading houses. Information about Canadian service industries will soon be added to the system.
- Establishment system: The establishment system maintains tombstone information about any external agency dealing with the Department. This information is considered unique to an establishment, and is utilized by departmental programs and branches interfacing with the system.
- Import analysis management information system (IAMIS): This system is a management tool used to provide accurate and timely information concerning projects undertaken by the import analysis division personnel.
- Import commodity system: A system is in place to mechanize the processing of customs documents in response to requests for commodity studies. Trade patterns of specific items are coded, key entered, placed on a computer file, analyzed and printed in a variety of formats so that a thorough evaluation may be undertaken.

- Import replacement reporting system: The import replacement division prepares industry sector profiles of imports at the request of various companies or agencies. When a request is approved and work is to commence, the work of developing the profile is called a project.

Policy, Planning and Analysis Branch

This branch initiates, and assists with, the analysis needed to form government policies concerning consumer goods, services and resource processing (CGSRP) industries.

EDP Systems

- Capacity utilization system: This system calculates on a quarterly basis rates of capacity utilization by sector.
- Key business ratios project: This system develops financial data for selected corporations. Using the credit rating service, financial ratios are produced on an annual basis.
- MIT/BIRCH study: This system analyzes and generates reports concerning the Dun and Bradstreet Micro database at its current state of development.
- Trade sector analysis system: The purpose of this system is to develop a user operated, flexible system for processing trade data, to respond to specific requests for profile analysis.
- Trade Sector Designation System.

Office of Industrial Adjustment

This office develops and implements policies and programs to assist the adjustment and renewal of Canadian manufacturing and processing industries, with emphasis on the textile, clothing and footwear industries; analyzes and evaluates applications under the Department's funded programs for consumer goods, services and resource processing sectors; and promotes industrial design to improve economic performance.

EDP Systems

- Canadian econometric processing system: The Canadian econometric model for structural analysis is a detailed sectoral model of the Canadian economy which focuses in particular on the market performance of the main industries and commodities.
- Canadian Explorer Model 2 development: This system represents a long-range structural simulation model of the Canadian economy. The system utilizes data from Canadian structural accounts (input/output model) and information from the Economic Council and Cansim/Candide to develop a mechanism for evaluating long-range sectoral and macro-event impacts. An economy-based structure is in place to analyze the impact of various macro activities and their interaction in the Canadian marketplace.
- Design Canada mailing list system: This is a standard mailing labels system providing lists of persons or companies that Design Canada contacts on a regular basis. The file contains many lists of addresses, suitably coded so that selections can be made. Typical persons on the list are designers, engineers, architects and their firms. Various types of reports are produced by classification and country, indicating types of publications and newsletters required.
- Information system for apparel and textile industries: This system provides the Textiles and Consumer Products Branch with a monthly report on the performance of imports into Canada at the seven-digit CITC level. The CITC is a further breakdown of the five-digit MCC (Import Commodity Classification).
- Textiles and consumer products system: This system reports monthly on import commodity classified and export commodity classified data supplied by Statistics Canada. The data pertains solely to textile and consumer products of concern to the branch. The data received is used to update the Department's master files and reports are produced showing performance figures for the data requested and various codes, the performance of imported commodities under restraint, and trade summaries showing balance of demand.

- Textiles and consumer products system one: This system is designed to provide reports showing performance figures for the data requested and various codes, the performance of imported commodities under restraint, and trade summaries showing balance of demand.
- Textiles and consumer products system two: This system is designed to produce reports showing performance figures for the data requested and various codes, the performance of imported commodities under restraint, and trade summaries showing balance of demand.

Resource Processing Industries Branch

The branch provides government liaison with the chemicals, forest products, and metals and minerals industries; forms policy recommendations and administers programs (either directly or in conjunction with regional offices) affecting the three sectors; consults and works with companies and trade associations.

Manuals

- Generalized Return on Capital Employed
- Generalized Discounted Cash Flow Return on Capital Employed

EDP Systems

- General competitiveness model: A computer model was conceived, designed, developed, and implemented to measure, on an industrial basis, the level of operational competitiveness within which firms are operating and the degree of their economic stability. A computer system houses the model, which performs a variety of simulations and statistical analyses (e.g., financial return on capital calculations and discounted cash flow situations) and has the capability, through generalized software, to act on data from other industries.

Food and Consumer Products Industries Branch

This branch provides overall economic development in the Canadian food and consumer products industries; and forms a focal point on policy issues which impact on these industries.

EDP Systems

- Food and consumer products (FCP) information system: The purpose of this system is to automate three tasks comprising industry-related, correspondence and project-related data.
- Nutritive processing information system: This system maintains a complete financial information system on the Canada/Alberta subsidiary agreement on nutritive processing assistance.

Service Industries Branch

This branch provides departmental liaison with construction and consulting services, wholesale and retail organizations and other merchandising operations, transportation services, trading houses, computer services and other services to business; and provides expertise to form policy and implement and deliver appropriate programs.

EDP Systems

- CANSIM database for the trade sector: This system maintains and processes various statistics on establishments which reside in the wholesale/retail classification for "Line of Business," selects and stores Cansim and user-supplied data, processes the data in a variety of ways, and reports the data for various periods in a variety of formats.

CAPITAL AND INDUSTRIAL GOODS

This organization promotes regionally balanced development of internationally competitive, adaptable enterprises in the capital and industrial goods sectors (automotive, marine, rail, electronics, aerospace, machinery, and electrical equipment).

It also provides a focal point in the Department and in the government for key, cross-sectoral activities of particular importance to capital and industrial goods industries, namely: industrial innovation, regional and industrial benefits from major capital projects, and regional and industrial benefits from major Crown procurement.

Office of Industrial and Regional Benefits

This office encourages the development of major Canadian projects in a manner that provides the maximum opportunity for Canadian suppliers of goods and services to participate competitively.

EDP Systems

- East coast exploration databases system: The purpose of this system is to determine demand and supply of Canadian goods that go into projects, generally offshore exploration and development.

Policy, Planning and Control Branch

The branch advises the assistant deputy minister on industrial trade and other economic policies being developed in this Department and other federal departments; develops, analyzes and makes recommendations on policies affecting various regions and industrial sectors; co-ordinates strategic and operational planning and assists with the management and control of financial and human resources; co-ordinates the program management function for the Defence Industry Productivity Program (DIPP) and provides secretariat services to the DIPP Advisory Committee.

Manuals

- Defence Industry Productivity Program — Administrative Directive and Program Criteria.

EDP Systems

- Defence industry productivity system: This system provides commitment and expenditure information for companies receiving assistance under the Defence Industry Productivity Program.

Automotive Marine and Rail Branch

This branch forms sectoral policies; and plans and executes programs and services to promote the establishment, improvement, efficiency and export market growth of the automotive, marine, rail and urban industry sectors.

Manuals

- Guidelines to Shipbuilders — Canadian Content
- Guidelines to Shipbuilders — Contribution for Performance Improvement

EDP Systems

- Canadian patrol frigate monitoring system: This system is designed to address all specific requirements of the Canadian Patrol Frigate (CPF) monitoring system and to allow the capability to monitor the program and ensure that achievement is tracked against industrial benefit commitments (of foreign suppliers) in order to measure contractor performance against contractual obligation.
- Computer system selection system: This system is designed to automate eight tasks comprising industry-related data and project-related data.

Machinery and Electrical Equipment Branch

This branch is responsible for policies and action plans to promote the growth and international competitiveness of the machinery and electrical equipment industries; provides a sectoral focus for trade promotion activities and regional delivery of incentive programs; and chairs an inter-departmental board responsible for the Machinery Tariff Program.

Manuals

- MACH — Machinery Program

EDP Systems

- Machinery program control system: This system assists in the processing of applications under the machinery equipment duty remission program.

Electronics and Aerospace Branch

This branch promotes the development and expansion of viable business in the electronics and aerospace sectors by formulating sectoral policies and implementing government programs and services; it also counsels and advises on all matters relating to these sectors.

EDP Systems

- Aerospace offset monitoring system: This is an industrial benefits management system containing information on claim data arising from major aerospace contracts. Lockheed and McDonnell Douglas submit magnetic tapes of offset claim data which are input to the system.
- Electrical and electronic database: This system is run once per year as the yearly Dun and Bradstreet file is received. Canadian companies in the electrical and electronic industries are selected and statistical reports are produced to aid the branch in industrial analysis. The same system is also used for computer software companies.

Office of Industrial Innovation

This office is responsible for matters concerning industrial innovation and the application of science and technology in support of the regional and industrial objectives of the Department.

Emergency Planning Branch

This branch oversees emergency planning for the National Emergency Agency.

Machinery and Equipment Advisory Board

The Machinery and Equipment Advisory Program encourages the expansion and efficiency of Canadian manufacturing by providing a reasonable measure of tariff protection to machinery manufacturers, while also enabling users of machinery to obtain remission of duty on imported capital equipment which is not available from Canadian production.

TOURISM CANADA

This organization provides advice on policy and operational matters relating to the development and promotion of tourism in Canada.

It administers federal tourism programs in consultation with regional offices and the Department of External Affairs, and represents federal interests in domestic and international tourism organizations.

---

Tourism Development

This branch analyzes, and seeks to improve, the competitiveness of Canada's tourism industry, and works with the private sector and the provinces to form tourism development programs.

Tourism Marketing

This branch establishes, develops and implements the principal federal government policies for the marketing of tourism both within and outside Canada; provides leadership in the co-ordination of federal, other government and private sector tourism marketing activities in order to optimize tourist revenues, enhance the tourism industry's contribution to the national economy and reduce Canada's tourism deficit; aims to increase spending by U.S. and overseas visitors; and encourages Canadians to travel in Canada.

Corporate Affairs

This branch provides program direction, planning and evaluation; policy development; information services research and analysis; and co-ordination of government and industry relations.

Manuals

- Tourism Manual

EDP Systems

- Accommodations inventory system: With the formal acceptance of the recommendations contained in the feasibility study, the development of a computer system to accommodate the data collected in 1980 by the Office of Tourism was initiated. Accommodations, attractions and events collected in 1980, with the provision to add recreation and handicapped facilities data in 1981, will be used to form a database on inventory to respond to requests for information. The facility will exist for economic modelling, forecasting expenditures based on occupancy rates, statistical analysis based on capacities, policy planning and providing marketing support. Linkages with package tours and the meetings and incentives systems will also exist.
- Bulk and mode system: This system maintains the records of quantities of travel publications that are shipped in bulk or on a regular basis to various organizations. Reports are produced monthly and distributed to managers.
- Canadian Government Office of Tourism letter writer: This system enables the production of personalized letters in support of the Office of Tourism direct mail campaigns designed to promote Canada to United States citizens. It involves processing of mailing lists obtained from over 30 suppliers and the production of computerized letters.
- Canadian Government Office of Tourism stock inventory system: This system is used by the Office of Tourism to maintain its inventory of publications and brochures which promote tourism in Canada. Monthly reports are sent to the managers responsible for printing and issuing the documents.
- Canadian Government Office of Tourism travel trade system: The Office of Tourism marketing branch uses direct mail sent to private homes and travel agencies as part of its advertising. The travel trade system deals with the portion of direct mail sent to the travel agencies. The travel trade system maintains an accurate and up-to-date master file for Canadian, American, and foreign travel trade agencies, which have been categorized by location and type of operation.
- Canadian tracking survey system: This system reports on the results of a survey of travellers taken at terminals in eight major Canadian cities. The information collected is used for planning and tourism promotion by all levels of government.
- Canadian Travel Survey analysis: An effective tool to measure the demand for tourism at various times, the Canadian Travel Survey is operated by Statistics Canada on a quarterly basis. The survey concerns itself with social and economic data involving package tours, and various expenditures of a selected sample of Canadian households (appended to the labour force survey) which have been weighted to estimate Canadian travel over a given time period.
- Canadian Government Office of Tourism (CGOT) computerized address system: This system is controlled by CGOT and is used as a mailing list system for that area. The files attached to this system will contain names, addresses and business types used to produce mailing lists and/or labels for CGOT.
- Canadian Government Office of Tourism statistical reporting system: This system provides the Office of Tourism with monthly statistics showing the effectiveness of their travel promotions within the United States, by promotion and by geographic area.
- Daily work tourism system: The purpose of this system is to process mail enquiries from the public regarding travel in Canada. These enquiries are either unsolicited, or generated by direct mail campaigns or advertising in various media.
- Direct mail campaign system: This system enables the production of personalized letters or labels in support of the Office of Tourism's direct mail campaign. This involves the conversion of various purchased mail lists and the production of personalized campaign cards or letters.
- Meeting incentive travel information system: This system provides information for the marketing efforts of the CGOT on meetings and incentive travel buyers.
- Package tour inventory system: The package tour inventory was introduced by the Office of Tourism to provide statistical reports for tourism marketing activities, policy development and the monitoring of CGOT performance in terms of marketing results.
- Product market match model: This system is part of a process to develop a tourism analysis and planning capability which is to be initially available to the government and eventually to the private sector.
- Promotional marketing system: The purpose of this system is to assist in the capture and reporting of statistics gathered in the promotional marketing of tourism in Canada. The system also stores information relating to the program campaigns and sources involved in promotional marketing.
- Rendez-vous-Canada: This system schedules and produces appointment guides for individual delegates attending the annual market place sponsored by the CGOT. Statistical reports are also produced to allow analysis of scheduling effectiveness.
- Tour Canada schedule system: The Tourcan schedule system is designed to enable the Office of Tourism to produce a computerized seller/buyer appointment schedule.
- Tourism forecast system: A requirement to develop an improved mechanism for forecasting tourism activities led to the development of a modelling package to be used to estimate the volume and value of the travel trade.
- Tourism impact/expenditure models system: Using occupancy rate statistics and the cost per room figures, provincial data is collected and evaluated through the computer modelling process to evaluate tourism on a provincial basis.
- Tourism reference and data centre: This is a library inventory and information system.
- Tourism resource inventory system: This provides a system for collection, retention, maintenance, retrieval and reporting of the accommodation, attraction and event tourism data.
- Travel recontact system: This system establishes and retains the name and address of people who have made enquiries about travel in Canada. These enquiries are categorized by geographic location and type of interest of the enquirer. The system then develops a master file of all recipients of information. These names and addresses are saved in case the CGOT wishes to send the person information on another tourist attraction. A monthly file of CGOT statistics is also produced.

Small Business and Special Projects

- This organization provides project analysis and conducts negotiations for the largest, most expensive, complex and sensitive projects requiring departmental financial support.

It provides advice, staff support and assistance in the co-ordination and management of the Minister's responsibilities for Crown corporations and Crown investments.

Through the Small Business Secretariat, it also provides support to the Minister of State for Small Business and Tourism in his or her role on behalf of small business.

EDP Systems

- Small Business Loans Act (SBLA) interim system: The purpose of this system is to monitor claims for loss submitted to DRIE by lending institutions for defaulted loans guaranteed under the SBLA.

Investment Projects

This branch works with sector branches and regional offices in the analysis of large investment projects in which investors of all types seek some form of assistance, participation or intervention on the part of the government; it also identifies marketing opportunities in the course of conducting special project analysis.

Adjustment Projects

This branch provides specialist skills in the field of corporate analysis; assists in the development of special measures of assistance to facilitate industrial development adjustment; co-ordinates the activities of outside consultants working on development and adjustment cases; and advises on changes to department policies and programs.

Crown Investment

This branch serves as a principal contact point between the government and Crown corporations, which report to Parliament through the Minister; it represents the corporations' interest in departmental policy deliberation; and it interprets government policies and programs to the corporations.

Special Projects

This branch provides the financial, strategic and economic analysis required for negotiations concerning a wide range of major industrial projects which, because of their size, complexity, and/or urgency need specialized analytical and computer skills.

Development Projects

This branch provides major project analyses in co-operation with sector branches, regions, other departments and agencies to maximize the commercial and economic benefits from government investments in major projects; it also identifies marketing and technological opportunities arising from such projects.

Small Business Secretariat

The Small Business Secretariat provides support to the Minister of State for Small Business and Tourism in his or her role on behalf of small business.

The secretariat identifies opportunities and constraints affecting the small business community; formulates policy initiatives; and undertakes or commissions research to expand the information base concerning small business issues.

Program Development and Operations

This branch develops and designs major departmental industrial support programs, program legislation, regulations and administrative procedures and systems. In addition, it designs, maintains and operates management information systems; provides secretariat services to the Department of Regional Industrial Expansion Internal Board; recovers defaulted contributions, loans, and loan guarantee and insurance accounts; administers special programs, including the Small Businesses Loans Act, the Credit Reinsurance Program, the Small Business Investment Grants Program, and the co-ordination of requests for tariff changes and remission of duty.

Manuals

- Defence Industry Productivity Program (DIPP) — Administrative Directive and Program Criteria
- Program for Export Market Development (PEMD) — Policy and Administration Directive and Guidelines for Interpretation of PEMD Administrative Directive
- Small Business Loans Act — Procedures Manual and Guidelines for Lenders
- Regional Development Incentives Program (RDIP) — RDIP Manual (Vol. A1)
- Small Business Investment Grants (SBIG) — (SBIG) Election — Part A, B and C, Guidelines for Lenders and Procedures Manual
- Credit Reinsurance Program — Credit Reinsurance Procedures Manual
- Industrial and Regional Development Program (IRDP) — Program Legislation and Policy and Administrative Directive Manual, IRDP Policy Manual for Senior Management and IRDP Procedures Manual

EDP Systems

- Departmental incentives data system (DIDS): The DIDS system was conceived as a means of recording information related to the Regional Incentives Development Act (RDIA) in a consistent and timely manner. The system is used to record the progress of a case from the initial application for a grant to the close of activity.
- Enterprise Development Program (EDP) — loan insurance management system (LIMS): This system is designed to monitor insured loans made under the Enterprise Development Program.
- Enterprise development program: This system contains information on the Enterprise Development Program.
- Program for Export Market Development system (PEMD): The automated computer system supports PEMD by reporting on the status and progress of projects operating within the program. Financial concerns are handled by and supplied to the PEMD by the grants loans and contributions system. Though this program has been transferred to the Department of External Affairs, it is still being administered by DRIE.
- Program resource information system for management (PRISM): PRISM is an on-line computerized system used by DRIE to process and track the status of applications for financial assistance.
- Small business investment grants system: This system is designed to monitor all grants issued by the program, and related information. This includes details on borrowers, elections, lending institutions and their claim for payment. This system is also used by Financial Operations.
- Small Business Loans Act evaluation system: The information from a six-page survey is keyed to establish a master file of claims data relative to small business loans. The information is used for modelling with respect to various policies and company requirements.

Corporate Co-ordination Bureau

The bureau directs and co-ordinates the organization and analysis of the information and the decision-making systems required by the Minister, deputy minister and associate deputy minister. It also oversees security and safety in the Department.

Policy

This organization develops policy recommendations and provides specialized skills in the areas of economic intelligence, industrial policies, strategic planning, trade development, the impact of trade policies and industry, and relations with other departments in the economic field.

Economic Analysis and Strategic Planning

This branch provides policy analysis, advice and recommendations on regional industrial development, short term economic analysis, and structural analysis; carries out statistical and database services and related analysis in support of departmental policies and programs.

Framework Policies and Trade Development

This branch advises senior management on industrial and trade development policy issues affecting industrial sectors; it also provides policy analysis, advice and recommendations on industrial trade policy.

Manuals

- Commodity Trade by Industrial Sector Concordance
- Canadian Econometric Model for Structural Analysis: Model Structure
- Canadian Econometric Model for Structural Analysis: Input/Output Database
- Canadian Econometric Model for Structural Analysis: Estimation Results

EDP Systems

- Advanced Economic Research Information Center (AERIC) forecasting: Active liaison has been maintained with the Conference Board of Canada in the area of quarterly forecasting and regression analysis as it applies to AERIC
- Capital expenditure study system: This system is designed to process data collected by the ITC survey concerning investors attitudes and update the history files, generate tables, and produce reports outlining the results of the processed data.
- Capital investment intentions and outlays survey system: This system was designed to process the data collected by the Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce survey of capital investment intentions and outlays as taken in two yearly personal interviews. This information concerns the attitudes of investors over the previous, present, and next five years. It is recorded, entered into the system, verified and manipulated in such a fashion as to update the history files, generate tables, and produce reports which outline the results of the surveys in different formats.
- Clothing model system: A significant effort was expended to program the merging of commodity, Statistics Canada, and financial data concerning firms involved in the manufacturing of clothing products. The information is required to study the impact of foreign-made products on the Canadian manufacturer. The data is assimilated on an ad hoc basis and appropriate files are prepared to study and evaluate various scenarios.

- Community data system: This is an extensive system of files and programs used to accumulate socioeconomic data at the community level. This data can be used for economic analysis and for the generation of community profiles.
- Composite indices system: The economic indicators representing the major factors which affect growth and productivity are grouped into three components (lagging, leading and coincident), and analyzed quarterly in a computer system. The results measure and calculate significant turning points in the Canadian economy and the interaction of these factors. The data cover a wide domain, extending from real domestic product shipments, trade statistics, and national accounts indicators found in the Canadian statistical review.
- County data system: This is an extensive system of files and programs used to accumulate socioeconomic data at the county or Census division level. This data can be used for economic analysis and for the generation of county profiles.
- Disparity index system: This system is a tool to analyze socioeconomic data for a small area and to derive an index for the purpose of comparing or ranking the areas in terms of socioeconomic advantage or disadvantage.
- Foreign owned subsidiaries survey processing system: This system was designed to aid the Microeconomic Analysis Branch to respond in a comprehensive and expeditious fashion to requests for information on multinational enterprises.
- Short term economic analysis: The purpose of this system is to access external databases for economic data in order to report trends to management.
- Small area mapping (SAM) system: The SAM system is used for visual presentation of socioeconomic information. Small area data is plotted on one of over 30 geographic outlines. The system provides statistical analyses of data classes.
- Socioeconomic data dictionary system: This system is a generic dictionary/catalogue of socioeconomic data. It is intended to provide a complete catalogue of the data co-ordination holdings (several thousand fields of data spread over 2000 files).
- Socioeconomic file definition system (Autobase): This system collects and maintains the physical file layouts of key data co-ordination files. Files described in autobase may be automatically loaded into databases to facilitate the reporting procedures for these files.
- Statistical services system: This project involves the provision of statistical studies and analysis of financial and economic data obtained from Statistics Canada or by extraction from the CANSIM DATA database.
- Trade data processing: With the increased demand for patterns of trade for individual commodities and groups of commodities, a series of programs has been created to respond to requests. Historical data (covering 19 years) has been obtained from Statistics Canada on a monthly basis, at a disaggregated level, to form a large database involving dozens of magnetic tape files. In addition to responding to specific requests for profile analysis, present activity involves the downloading of specific sector data onto micro computers for individual reporting.

OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER

This office advises on policy making and program direction; designs and co-ordinates the Department's management planning and control process; and provides financial and information services and management support.

Program Evaluation Branch

The branch evaluates DRIE projects, policies and activities for effectiveness and reports on the results.

Manuals

- Departmental Program Evaluation Manual

Computer Services Branch

This branch develops and maintains computer based systems, design software and operating software; manages corporate data; and provides and operates all physical computer facilities, including hardware and data communications networks.

EDP Systems

- Branch project accounting control system (BPACS): This system is designed to record all EDP resources against projects. This includes forecasting of user and Computer Services Branch funds and person-year utilization by project, recording all budgets, commitments and expenditures against projects, and the recording of in-house staff time utilization against projects.
- Dun and Bradstreet maintenance system: This system is designed to offer users within the Department access to the Dun & Bradstreet financial database.
- Dun and Bradstreet requests: Significant emphasis on financial analysis of establishments resulted in a series of computer programs being developed to respond to these needs. The facility exists at present to produce file selections, mailing labels, descriptive analysis, and financial evaluation on historical data as well as current data. Basic company profile data can also be extracted for industry analysis.

Resource Management Branch

This branch provides financial management advice on policy, planning, programming and budgeting decisions.

Access to Information and Privacy (ATIP) Office

This office oversees the administration and policy development of the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act as related to the Department; processes formal requests, advises senior management on the operation of the legislation and the disposition of cases, and promotes awareness of the legislation within the Department.

Manuals

- Access to Information and Privacy Manual

Administrative Services Branch

This branch oversees all headquarters matters relating to administrative policy development, contracting and materiel administration, property administration, telecommunications, office automation, forms management, printing and duplicating, word processing, records management and micrographics, travel services, library services, mail and messenger services and the management of administrative floor units.

Management Practices Branch

This branch works closely with headquarters and regional units to plan, facilitate and assist in the development of sound corporate management practices and control systems.

Information Resource Management Branch

This branch establishes strategic and operational plans for the acquisition, use and management of departmental information resources; develops corporate information policies; and monitors the implementation of information management plans and policies.

Portfolio Management Branch

This branch is accountable for the continuing development and co-ordination of the operational planning functions within the Department.

Financial Operations Branch

The branch is responsible for developing and implementing financial policy and systems, accounting for and controlling financial resources, auditing assistance projects, and providing financial advisory services.

Communications Branch

The branch provides a focal point for relaying information about DRIE programs, policies and projects to the business community and the general public; provides films, visual materials and publications on DRIE programs and services; co-ordinates the activities of regional communications services and provides specialized assistance to these offices as required; maintains contact with other federal institutions, and other levels of government and the private sector.

EDP Systems

- Canada Commerce mailing label system: This system contains some 10,000 names and addresses of recipients of the Canada Commerce publication. It prints mailing labels from the name-address master file for the distribution of the magazine, then cycles the label tape back to DRIE in Ottawa for printing.
- Canada Courier system: This system contains a listing of some 200,000 names and addresses of recipients of the publication Canada Courier. Capability exists to select by post, by edition, and by SIC codes. Production is currently halted pending a cleanup of the files and a decision as to the future of the Courier publication.

Human Resources Branch

The branch is responsible for human resource planning staffing; training; employee advisory and career services; job classification; staff relations; grievances; pay and benefits; affirmative action; official languages; and redeployment.

Staffing and Human Resourcing

This branch oversees staffing, training, the official languages program, affirmative action, human resources planning, employee advisory and career services, and redeployment.

Compensation and Staff Relations

This branch acts on job classification, organizational analysis, staff relations, grievances and employee pay and benefits matters.

Manuals

- Manual of Human Resources Directives

Canadian Industrial Renewal Board (CIRB)

The board was set up to assist the restructuring, consolidation and modernization of the textile, clothing and footwear industries; to renew the economic base of communities heavily dependent on those industries; and to help workers affected by the liberation of world trade in these commodities and the rationalization process. The board is made up of private and public sector members representing business, labour, consumer interests, the academic community and the federal government.

Office of Internal Audit

This office provides senior management with an independent assessment of the efficiency, economy and effectiveness of internal management policies, practices and controls.

Manuals

- Office of Internal Audit Handbook

Office for Regional Development

The Office for Regional Development (ORD) was established in July, 1984, to include those functions relating to regional development formerly residing within the Ministry of State for Economic and Regional Development (MSERD). ORD is made up of the following two groups.

Regional Development Branch

The basic role of the Regional Development Branch (RDB) is to undertake liaison with the federal economic development co-ordinators located in each province. In addition, the RDB performs co-ordination work with respect to the ten-year economic and regional development agreements signed with each province and the subsidiary agreements negotiated between federal and provincial sector departments. RDB also provides regional economic development policy advice to the Minister, and through him or her, advice to the Cabinet Committee on Economic and Regional Development.

Federal Economic Development Co-ordinators (FEDC)

The basic role of the FEDC is to act as the chief regional economic advisor to the federal government to ensure that economic development is based on regional strength and occurs with maximum effectiveness. FEDC functions include: providing improved regional information for decision-making by the Cabinet Committee on Economic and Regional Development (CCERD); giving regional officials of sector departments a better understanding of Cabinet decisions and objectives; and co-ordinating the implementation of government decisions affecting economic development in the regions.

EDP Systems

- Regional operation plan system: Approximately 100 spreadsheets make up this system in which data is captured by case, by type of case, and by planning element.
- Regional statistics summary sheets system: The five spreadsheets for the regions of Ontario contain socioeconomic data for each census division.

Native Economic Development Program

This program administers a $345 million fund for aboriginal economic development and co-ordinates federal government efforts towards aboriginal economic development.

Regional Offices

Regional offices provide information on the full range of DRIE programs to industries in their respective region, and administer the programs locally. In addition, the regional offices provide information and advice on domestic and export market possibilities and offer general assistance to Canadian industry for the expansion of trade and tourism.

EDP Systems — Ontario

- Calculation of capacity utilization for Ontario manufacturing industries: This system is designed to calculate capacity utilization for Ontario's manufacturing industries.
- Economic series system: This database contains economic information in various sectors of the economy and regions.
- Major capital investment expenditures in Ontario system: This database contains projects information underway or in development, concerning Capital Investment Expenditures.

EDP Systems — Québec

- Accounting system for the Canadian Industrial Renewal Board (CIRB).
- Business Information Centre: The system contains statistical information and graphs for the Business Information Centre.
- Calculation of actual value for loans without interest: This module calculates the actual value of interest, after tax deduction, for loans without interest.
- Central register management system: This information system keeps track of files and volumes at the central register.
- Community profile management system: This system is an inventory showing promotional and socioeconomic information of some 50 Québec municipalities, as well as information on industrial parks.
- Comparative analysis of a company: This module provides a comparative analysis of a company's specific area of operation with that of the business sector's average.
- Computer tape tracking system: This system allows for the self-documentation and recording of computer data residing on tapes.
- Directory of businesses in the Québec City region: This module gives information on businesses in the Québec City region (used by the Québec office only).
- Directory of computer utilization: This resource monitoring system keeps track of the utilization of computer and human resources in the HP3000 environment. It is based in the DRIE accounting routine.
- Documentation Centre management: This is a library information system containing loans, cardex, periodicals and cataloguing modules.
- Documentation system on computer systems: This utility system allows for the "online" documentation of computer systems' activities, recording items such as general information, technical information, data sets, programs, operation, production and deliveries.
- Dun and Bradstreet reporting system: This module produces listings of establishments in a variety of formats according to socioeconomic needs.
- Financial analysis model: The financial analysis model evaluates the yield of program cases.

- Graphical representations: This menu prompts the users to the various graphical representation modules available on the HP3000.
- Incentives payment forecasting system: This payment forecasting system on the RDIA data allows for the establishment of multi-years disbursement schedules based on historical and statistical information on DIDS files.
- Incentives industrial promotion system: This module shows information on promotion activity such as opportunities and technology.
- Information system on companies and their products: This module provides for the retrieval of information on companies according to products, countries and exports.
- Interface of various aid programs: This module automatically links common applicant/non-applicant information, such as addresses and postal codes, from various sources of information such as program data and statistical data.
- International Development Branch: A management information system is being implemented for the development and promotion branches.
- Inventory management information system: This system keeps track of inventory and records all acquisitions.
- Lower-St. Lawrence-Gaspé Program: This system contains program information relating to the development program for the Lower-St. Lawrence-Gaspé region.
- Management of community records: This system performs the monitoring and production of reports on Canadian Industrial Renewal Board community data.
- Micro-Fam (Micro Computer): This financial analysis model evaluates the yield of program cases (on micro-computer).
- Montréal Special Area Evaluation Project: This package will include mainly the creation of an automatic link or interface between various programs and other statistical information by establishment. This database will produce correlation and statistical activities.
- PRISM — (Micro-Computer Version): A management information system on the Industrial and Regional Development Program is being implemented.
- Pulp and paper management system: This system monitors the activity of pulp and paper cases during their life cycle.
- Sectoral record management and information model: This comprehensive computer system manages the Canadian Industry Renewal Board sectoral cases information throughout their life cycle.
- Standard labels production: This user utility program allows for the creation of standard labels to be used for mailing or retrieval purposes.
- Statistical information system: This module allows for the instant retrieval of socioeconomic tables and indicators as extracted from Statistics Canada databases.

Northern and Special Programs

This organization develops and implements all DRIE programs in the Northwest Territories and Yukon; identifies and forms specific departmental policies, strategies and programs for the industrial development needs of native people.

Canadian Government Office of Tourism (CGOT)

The main objective of the CGOT is to sustain the orderly growth of tourism in Canada. This is achieved by promoting travel to and within Canada and developing tourism markets through the activities of officers located in the Department of External Affairs posts abroad and ITC regional offices in Canada; and by assisting in the development and improvement of the Canadian tourism industry. These functions are performed with a maximum of co-ordination of federal, provincial and private sector activities bearing on tourism. The following branches report to the assistant deputy minister of Tourism.

DEPARTMENT OF REGIONAL INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION

Tourism Marketing Branch

The branch promotes travel to Canada from other countries, travel within Canada by Canadians, and co-ordinates its activities with those of the provinces and territories and the private sector. It provides a focal point for the co-ordination of Canadian public and private sector tourism marketing activities. The branch uses a complex marketing program to both identify the tourism market and to create further demand within the market. It carries out a full range of tourism marketing activities directly from headquarters, and works closely with market development and promotion officers at various posts abroad and at ITC regional offices in Canada.

Tourism Development Branch

The branch promotes growth and improvement in Canadian tourist attractions, facilities and services and helps them to remain competitive in attracting, receiving and catering to the needs of visitors. It analyzes the tourism industry's strengths and weaknesses and, together with private industry and the federal and provincial governments, strives to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the industry.

The branch consults with regional tourism development officers located across Canada on a continuous basis to ensure that both national and regional tourism development objectives are being met to the fullest extent possible.

RESTRICTIVE TRADE PRACTICES COMMISSION

Background

The Restrictive Trade Practices Commission (RTPC) is one of the two entities established by the Combines Investigation Act to carry on the federal government's anti-combines work, the other being the Director of Investigation and Research, Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs. With the exception of certain functions under the Shipping Conferences Exemption Act, all the present functions of the Commission are specified in the Combines Investigation Act.

Overall Responsibilities

As an administrative tribunal, the Commission's function is to appraise and report on statements of evidence related to enquiries which may be transmitted to it by the Director of Investigation and Research. Part IV.1 of the Combines Investigation Act conferred a quasi-judicial function upon the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission and, for the purposes of that part, made it a Court of Record.

Access Procedures

Formal requests under the Access to Information Act should be directed to

Telephone: (613) 992-0274

Secretariat

The Commission acts as a fact-finding and reporting body, and as a Court of Record under the Combines Investigation Act (investigation of combines, monopolies, trusts and mergers). The Commission considers evidence submitted to it by the Director of Investigation and Research (see Bureau of Competition Policy, Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada) and holds hearings where both sides present their arguments. The Commission then reviews and appraises the evidence and material submitted, recommends remedies, and reports to the Minister of Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada. As a Court of Record, the Commission may issue orders of an appropriate nature.

Background

The Ottawa Mint was originally established in 1908 as a branch of the Royal Mint of London, England. On December 1, 1931, an Act of Parliament established the Royal Canadian Mint as a branch of the Department of Finance. On April 1, 1969, the Mint became a Crown corporation. Its head office is in Vanier, Ontario; its three plants are located in Ottawa Hull, and Winnipeg.

Overall Responsibilities

The Mint's primary purpose is to produce and arrange for the production and supply of coin currency in Canada. It also competes in the international circulation and numismatic coin markets against other national or private mints to produce coins of countries other than Canada, and operates a refinery to melt, assay and refine gold, silver and other metals. Over the years, the Mint has won a significant number of international contracts.

The Mint's activities include the production of blanks, coins, metals, medallions, tokens and dies. It maintains a staff competent in the various minting processes, so that it can treat precious metals and produce any coin size, in most shapes and finishes, including proof, brilliant, uncirculated or circulated. The Mint is known throughout the industry for its advanced technology and high standards of quality, and has been commended by the numismatic community for its craftsmanship and the quality of its commemorative and numismatic coins.

Organization

The Mint operates in much the same way as a private company. The principal officer of the Mint is the Master (president and chief executive officer); executive control is vested in the board of directors. The Master is also a member of the board of directors. The Royal Canadian Mint reports to the government through the Minister of Supply and Services.

The Master is supported by a vice president for each of the three divisions: Administration and Finance, Marketing, and Manufacturing. The Marketing Division comprises four units: International Marketing, Bullion and Refinery Sales, Public Relations, and Numismatic Products. The Manufacturing Division also consists of four units: Engineering, Engraving, and the plants in Ottawa and Winnipeg. The two plants also operate Technical Services, Quality Assurance, and Production sections; in addition, the Ottawa plant operates the Material Management section and the Refinery.

Marketing

This division is responsible for planning, organizing and directing sales of Mint products and services in both domestic and foreign markets. It develops sales strategies and marketing activities, prepares sales forecasts and is responsible for obtaining the necessary contracts to keep the Manufacturing Division working at full capacity.

Manuals

- Corporate Policies Manual — gives commercial policies and guidelines on procedures covering agreements with sales agents and preparations of quotations for production contracts
- Detailed Product Specifications — provides specifications of each product

International Marketing

This unit contacts foreign countries in an effort to produce contracts for the manufacture of their domestic coin and numismatic products.

Marketing Research and Development

This unit develops new product and service opportunities and new markets for medals, tokens, and trade dollars for the Mint.

Bullion and Refinery Sales

This unit plans, organizes, directs and controls the marketing activities of the Bullion and Refinery Sales.

Manuals

- Ontario Mineral Policy Background Paper No. 12 (general viewing)

Public Relations

This unit plans, organizes and directs the Mint's public information program. It informs the public on policies and programs of the Mint; supervises press relations nationally and internationally; and is responsible for the compilation, editing, and publishing of the Royal Canadian Mint Annual Report.

Canadian Numismatic Products

This unit plans, organizes and directs all Canadian numismatic programs and sales by developing short and long range objectives. It develops and recommends marketing policies for Mint products, and assists in the national and international promotion of Canadian numismatic programs; has direct worldwide liaison with coin distributing agents and dealers; and co-ordinates the coin design program for each new Canadian numismatic coin. This division is also responsible for the advertising campaigns for the Canadian numismatic programs.

Manufacturing

Manufacturing Division

This division produces Canadian circulation coinage, and Canadian numismatic coins for sale to collectors. Foreign circulation and numismatic coins are also produced, as well as medals and trade dollars, all under a competitive bidding process. In addition the Ottawa plant operates the Mint's refinery, which refines precious metal for mines, jewellers, banks and other institutions, both Canadian and foreign.

Coins and Medals

This unit manufactures all coins, medals, tokens, trade dollars, and blanks produced by the Mint for Canada and, by contract, for foreign countries. It also produces some of the metal alloys used in minting such as bronze, cupronickel, tombac, and 500 fine silver.

Engineering Services

This unit provides advice on equipment; maintains liaison with the Department of Public Works and outside contractors on repairs and alterations to buildings; proposes plans, specifications and drawings for equipment fabrication, installation and layout; designs toolings required in manufacturing; and provides product specifications.

Manuals

- Quotation Specifications — provides details to quote on domestic and foreign contracts
- Detailed Product Specifications — provides specifications for all coins and medals

Engraving

This unit provides the designs, models, casts, and reductions used for punch production, and related photographic and display work. Models of effigies, coats of arms and other designs are rendered in plasticine from the original drawings. Punches and dies are engraved with the utmost care for precision and detail to ensure the artistic quality of the final product.

Manuals

- Operating instructions for various reducing machines — provides instructions for ratio extraction

Material Management

This section has responsibilities in many areas:

- receiving weighing and recording shipments of rough gold and silver bullion from mines and prospectors and jewellery from jewellers and manufacturers; calculating, on the basis of the assay result, the amount of fine gold and silver in these shipments, and recording data; and co-ordinating gold transactions and shipping the fine product.
- assembling, packaging and shipping numismatic products to distributing agents and dealers, and to customers who have ordered through the mail to the Numismatic Orders Processing section.
- receiving weighing, and recording shipments of precious metal blanks; controlling the quantities of processed coins and inventories of coins.
- ordering, receiving, weighing, and recording both raw and manufactured material as well as packaging material purchased by the Mint for production purposes.
- the receipt, control, and issue of finished Canadian circulating coins; for the preparation of shipments of coin to the principal cities in each province on instructions from the Bank of Canada; for the receipt and payment of worn and mutilated coin returned by the Bank of Canada.

Quality Assurance and Assay

Quality Assurance maintains quality standards and performance of equipment; ensures that all incoming materials meet standards and specifications; inspects all work in-progress and finished articles to control the quality of the products of the Mint; performs metallurgical investigation in the heat treating of different metals.

Assay performs assays of: bullion scrap jewellery and fine gold; fine and standard silver and alloyed coins; coinage bars; refinery sweep; commercial gold and silver under the Precious Metals Marketing Act; and suspect counterfeit coins. The analytical laboratory performs chemical and metallurgical analyses and assists various departments with problems of an analytical nature; electroplates gold or silver on medals, etc; prepares and standardizes gold or silver trial plates; and processes control work in production of coins.

Refinery

This unit refines newly mined gold bullion received from Canadian mines. Subsidiary functions are to refine jewellery scrap, placer deposits, fused metals and worn coin received from the Bank of Canada and silver bearing materials received from various sources. The materials recovered from the precipitator are sold as sweep. Also forming part of the sweep are all pots, crucibles, etc., which are crushed into dust.

Technical Services

This unit is responsible for all maintenance, repairs, and installation of new and existing equipment as well as building-related repairs and services. It is also responsible for the manufacture of coining dies, collars, and tooling.

Background

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) was originally formed in 1873, under an Act of Parliament. In accordance with the present RCMP Act, the Commissioner, under the direction of the Solicitor General of Canada, is responsible for the control and management of the Force.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police enforces laws throughout Canada made by or under the authority of Parliament. Administration of justice within the provinces, including enforcement of the Criminal Code, is the responsibility of the provincial governments. The RCMP has contract agreements with the two territories and all provinces (except Ontario and Québec) to enforce criminal, territorial and provincial laws pursuant to Section 20 of the RCMP Act.

Organization

Headquarters of the RCMP is in Ottawa. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police consists of 16 divisions. Each division is managed by a commanding officer. There are 13 operational divisions divided into 48 sub-divisions and 709 detachments located in all provinces and the territories. These divisions are alphabetically designated, with the headquarters for each located in its respective provincial or territorial capital, except for "A" which is in Ottawa and "C" which is in Montréal. Under the Commissioner, functional direction is provided by three deputy commissioners in charge of Administration, Criminal Operations and Canadian Police Services respectively.

Specialized support is offered to the 13 operational divisions by air, marine and laboratory services. The remaining three divisions are "HQ" and "N", located at Ottawa and Rockcliffe, Ontario, respectively and Depot Division located at Regina, Saskatchewan.

The RCMP Academy (recruit training) is located at Depot Division in Regina. "N" Division comprises the Canadian Police College, the Musical Ride and the Band. HQ (Ottawa) consists of the Commissioner's office and secretariat, directorate policy and co-ordinating centres, and specialized support services such as the forensic laboratory, the Canadian Police Information Center, and the Foreign Services Directorate which has responsibilities for activities of RCMP members stationed abroad.

MINISTRY OF STATE FOR SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

Background

The Ministry of State for Science and Technology (MOSST) was established in 1971 by Order-in-Council for the purpose of formulating and developing policies in relation to the activities of the Government of Canada that affect the development and application of science and technology. It is presided over by a Minister of State and a Secretary reporting to the Minister.

Since July of 1983, the Secretary has also been Chief Science Advisor (CSA) to the government with the responsibility for providing expert and objective advice to Cabinet and its committees on priorities for, and the planning of, Canada's overall science and technology effort.

This change of role necessitated the reorganization of the Ministry in order to give the Chief Science Advisor direct access to Cabinet. The new organization permits the Ministry to perform the central agency function of formulating policies and providing advice on science and technology to the federal government. Its mandate covers the science and technology activities of departments, and includes other activities (such as those of industry and universities) insofar as they interact with the federal government.

Overall Responsibilities

The responsibilities of the Ministry, as set out in the 1971 Order-in-Council, are to formulate and develop policies as well as give advice with regard to the establishment of priorities for science and technology; the support of science and technology and its application in furthering national objectives; the optimum investment in science and technology by government, industry and universities; the co-ordination of federal science and technology programs with other government policies; co-operation with the provinces, other organizations and other nations; the organization of science and technology in the public service; the allocation of financial and personnel resources; and the extent and nature of Canada's participation in international scientific undertakings.

On July 31, 1980, the Ministry was designated as the lead department for space research and development policy and the co-ordination of space activities among federal government departments and agencies. In July of 1983, when it was decided that the Secretary would assume the new role of Chief Science Advisor to the federal government, the Ministry was given additional responsibilities for advising on the integration of a long-range scientific perspective into the policy development process and into specific proposals put forward by departments and ministries; on the identification of areas which are science and technology intensive and which will have a significant impact on Canada; and on the quality and effectiveness of science and technology policies. Other responsibilities include assessing the science and technology related policies and programs of the federal government, as they relate to the provincial governments and the industrial and university sectors in Canada and foreign countries, which have an impact on the Canadian economy; identifying areas of significant impact on the economy, society, international relations and national defence; recommending priorities for science and technology and developing cohesive and comprehensive strategies to achieve them.

Organization

The Ministry is organized into three branches: Policy and Strategy, Operations, and Communications. Administrative, Finance, Personnel and Access to Information and Privacy services are provided by the Department of Regional Industrial Expansion (DRIE).

General Information

Reports, brochures, speeches, press releases as well as other publications issued by the Ministry are available through

Operations Branch

This branch is responsible for providing the Chief Science Advisor and the Cabinet committee system with advice on current issues involving science and technology considerations, and for responding to requests for special studies. This branch is also responsible for evaluating the science and technology implications of departmental proposals for Cabinet and for advising ministers on their integration with broader federal objectives.

Communications Branch

This branch is responsible for providing a catalytic and co-ordinative role in encouraging effective federal communication of science and technology related issues. It also provides public affairs support for the Minister and the Ministry.

Policy and Strategy Branch

This branch is responsible for providing the Chief Science Advisor and the Cabinet committee system with advice on medium to long-range science and technology issues that are likely to have an impact on the economic and social development of the country. This branch also develops space research and development policy, and co-ordinates space activities among government departments and agencies.

SCIENCE COUNCIL OF CANADA

Background

The Science Council of Canada was created by the federal government in 1966 to provide independent advice on science and technology policy for this country. Its duties are set out in the Science Council of Canada Act and were enlarged by amendments made in 1978.

Overall Responsibilities

The Council's major responsibilities are to analyze science and technology policy issues; recommend policy direction to government; keep the public informed about the impact of science and technology in Canada; and stimulate discussion of science and technology policy among governments, industry and academic institutions. It reports to Parliament through the Minister of State for Science and Technology. The Council operates at "arm's length" from government, designing its own program of research and publishing its findings at its own discretion.

Organization

The Council consists of a chairman, a vice-chairman and up to 28 members drawn from all regions and representative of a variety of disciplines and interests, with a balance maintained between the academic and industrial communities. Aside from the chairman and vice chairman, members serve without remuneration.

The Council's research is carried out by staff based in Ottawa and by independent consultants working under contract. In general, the Council identifies areas of policy concern, authorizes exploratory studies, and then selects the most appropriate, specific policy studies. A major study (i.e. one requiring more than one year to complete) is normally conducted under the guidance of a study committee, which includes a chairman and some members of the Council, and outside experts, if necessary. The use of such study committees provides more time for detailed scrutiny of the work than is available during the quarterly two-day Council meetings. The staff and consultants under contract carry out the research and analysis and draft reports for discussion by appropriate committees and, in the case of formal policy reports, for subsequent submission to Council for its approval.

Major Publications

Effective communication is of fundamental importance to the Science Council. Research and the production of analyses and policy advice are of minimal value unless the information is delivered to those individuals and groups who can act on it.

Through its publications and other communication activities, the Council increases public awareness of major issues involved in the development and use of science and technology. At the same time, the Council seeks to stimulate nationwide discussion of the issues it raises and the recommendations it makes. This may involve the organization of meetings, conferences or workshops in order to bring together concerned Canadian citizens and representatives of government, industry, labour and the academic communities. Such meetings not only help to diffuse the results of the Council's research, but also provide a forum for feedback on public concerns and reactions to the Council's work and recommendations.

Science Council publications are available from Council's publication office at

100 Metcalfe Street, 17th Floor
Ottawa, Ontario
K1P 5M1
Telephone: (613)992-1142

The Council has a reading room on the 17th Floor at 100 Metcalfe Street where any authorized material may be looked over.

Overall Responsibilities

The activities and programs of the Department of the Secretary of State are diverse and touch upon many aspects of Canadian life.

Some programs encourage native Canadians to preserve their languages and cultures while adapting to the realities of modern life.

Programs directed at Official Language Communities assist numerous Canadian francophones and anglophones to preserve their languages and cultures through the education of their children in their mother tongue. The federal government also helps organizations and establishments in the private and non-federal public sector to provide services to the public in both official languages.

The Translation Bureau provides translation and interpretation services, in all languages as required, to Parliament, the Cabinet, the Public Service and the Judiciary, and to all agencies created by Parliament or the Governor-in-Council, to facilitate federal government internal communication communication with the Canadian public, and international communication.

Services available to future Canadian citizens help them to integrate with their new environment by helping them to acquire citizenship and learn one of the two official languages. Multiculturalism Canada also assists in removing barriers which inhibit the full and equal participation of minority cultural groups in the social, cultural and political life of Canada and encourages and supports the retention and sharing of culture by and among the various groups which make up Canadian society.

Through the Department of the Secretary of State, the Government of Canada contributes to the development and maintenance of education systems, particularly at the post-secondary level, which correspond to Canada's economic, social and cultural needs. It is, as well, responsible for the co-ordination and development of federal government policies and programs in the field of education.

A major activity of the Department is to support voluntary organizations whose role in society is recognized and appreciated by the federal government. These groups of citizens provide the government with important public feedback that indicates the sectors in which government action may be required.

Voluntary groups touch nearly all aspects of society: health, education, human rights, social development, youth, women, native citizens, and the disabled. Their preoccupations are in line with the ideal of social justice that the Secretary of State seeks to promote.

Since its creation, the Department has been charged with organizing and directing official ceremonies and events of national interest, thus contributing to national unity.

As co-ordinator of federal human rights activities in Canada, the Department of the Secretary of State of Canada is responsible for promoting tolerance and understanding so that everyone enjoys fundamental human rights and freedoms.

General Information

The Public Enquiries Unit responds to enquiries directed to the Department by the general public and other departments, with the exception of enquiries addressed directly to the Ministers or those originating from the media. It answers questions about the programs and activities of the Department as well as requests for information on the programs and activities of the federal government as a whole. The unit also handles the distribution of publications. A list of publications is available on request. Members of the public wishing to receive this list regularly, may be placed on a distribution list. Please write to

Citizenship and Culture Program

This program aims to assist Canadians, especially cultural groups and those most in need, to achieve more equitable and equal opportunities for social growth, quality of life and fuller involvement in Canadian society; and to achieve an improved knowledge, appreciation and enjoyment of Canada and its cultural diversity. As well, the program aims to assist Canadians to achieve a greater awareness of human rights, fundamental freedoms and related responsibilities, and to increase respect for and compliance with Canada's domestic and international commitments.

Manuals

- Funding Manual: Grants and Contributions — an operating tool designed for use by departmental staff in dealing with the administration of departmental funding activities.
- Citizenship Registration Manual — contains the legislation and procedural guidelines used in the administration of the Citizenship Registration Program.

Administration and Regional Operations Program

This program aims to ensure, jointly and individually, with equity, the economical, efficient, effective and accountable realization of the Department's objectives and priorities, in a spirit of service to the public; and to contribute to an enhanced sense of belonging to the country, in each region for all Canadians.

Regional Operations carry out all departmental activities in all regions of the country, paying particular attention to the specific needs of each region. The Regional Offices also ensure regional participation and program development at a national level and facilitate communication to the public concerning departmental programs and activities.

The records existing in the Regional Offices are organized into classes of records and subject topics similar to those used by headquarters.

International Youth Year

Description: The secretariat is responsible for co-ordinating Canada's observance of International Youth Year. It administers a special grants program to assist youth groups, non-profit voluntary organizations and institutions in carrying out special projects to mark the Year. Projects that encourage the participation of youth in the decision-making process, offer an innovative and practical approach to addressing the concerns facing Canadian youth, promote public awareness of youth concerns and support the participation of a broad representation of young Canadians in activities promoting the themes of the Year (participation, development and peace) are eligible for funding. Preference will be given to those projects run for and by youth that relate to, and help mark, International Youth Year in Canada. It also gathers and disseminates information on IYY related projects and activities, and undertakes other special initiatives such as national youth forums on issues of concern to youth. The objectives of the federal IYY program are to integrate the concerns of youth with those of other groups in society and to increase public awareness in Canada of the interests, concerns, and accomplishments of young people. As the United Nations has designated 1985 as International Youth Year, the federal program for International Youth Year will end in March 1986. Topics: Administration; operations; government grants.

Background

The Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SSHRC) was created in June 1977 by Act of Parliament. It took over the programs previously administered by the Humanities and Social Sciences Division of the Canada Council in April, 1978. Under the Act, the SSHRC, the Medical Research Council and the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council administer federal funds for university-based research and other scholarly activity.

The SSHRC is governed by a 22 member appointed Council chosen from the academic community and other major interest sectors of society.

Laws and Regulations

- Government Organizations (Scientific Activities) Act, 1976
- Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council By-Laws

Overall Responsibilities

The Council is primarily a grant-giving body whose funds are voted by Parliament. Its mandate, in terms of Section 5 of the Government Organization (Scientific Activities) Act 1976, is to promote and assist research and scholarship in the social sciences and humanities; and to advise the Minister on issues relevant to the research he or she may direct to the Council's attention.

To fulfill its mandate of promoting and assisting research and scholarship within the Canadian scholarly community, and to encourage its excellence, the Council has adopted the following objectives:

- to enhance the advancement of knowledge by assisting research;
- to assist in and advise on maintaining and developing the national capacity for research;
- to promote research which would contribute to the fulfillment of national objectives;
- to facilitate dissemination of research results and to increase Canada's international presence and recognition in the social sciences and humanities.

In pursuit of these goals, the Council administers fellowship programs for research training and support, and grants for research, international scholarly exchanges, research resources, scholarly publishing, conferences and other research-related activities. It conducts enquiries on the state of research in Canada in its disciplines, performs a leadership role in research policy and fulfills a liaison function with government and the scholarly community.

Files on all applicants for SSHRC grants and fellowships for the last four years are kept at the Council's office in Ottawa. The Council's policy on the retention/disposal of files is under review.

- Principles for Evaluation of Programs

Office of the Director General, Program Branch

The Office of the Director General, Program Branch, administers the branch which fosters, promotes and assists research through the delivery of Council's grants and scholarship programs.

Research Grants

The division administers programs of financial support for scholarly research in the humanities and social sciences. It provides for adjudication of individual grant proposals, administers awards to successful applicants and provides funds directly to universities, on a formula basis, for small research and travel grants.

Manuals

- Guide for Applicants
- Information and Instructions for Research Grant Adjudication

Strategic Grants

Strategic grants are awarded to institutions and individual scholars to provide assistance for research or other scholarly work contributing to the fulfillment of national objectives. The two objectives of this program are the establishment of a basis of knowledge on identified social needs or problems — such as population aging, the family and the socialization of children, the human context on science and technology, women and work, managing the organization in Canada — and support for activities designed to help redress underdevelopment in specific areas in the humanities and social sciences. The latter include development of management research, aid to small universities and support for specialized research collections in university libraries.

International Relations and Research Communications

This division (formerly two separate divisions), is responsible for grants awarded for the following: aid to learned journals; aid to occasional scholarly conferences in Canada; aid to scholarly publications; and aid to scholarly associations. This division also administers the International Relations program which provides grants to encourage collaboration between Canadian and foreign scholars and to make the work of Canadian scholars better known abroad. Its aim is to develop, enhance and maintain a research communication network across Canada and throughout the world.

Manuals

- Aid to Learned Journals in the Social Sciences and Humanities
- Aid to Occasional Scholarly Conferences in Canada
- Aid to Scholarly Associations
- Attendance Grants to Scholarly Associations

Fellowships

This division administers scholarships and fellowships for research training and for independent research.

DEPARTMENT OF THE SOLICITOR GENERAL

Background

The Department of the Solicitor General was established in 1966 when Parliament enacted the Department of the Solicitor General Act, which assigned to the Solicitor General responsibility and accountability for the management and direction of reformatories, prisons, penitentiaries, parole, remissions, and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

By 1973, evolutionary additions and changes to these responsibilities resulted in the Department's reorganization into a Ministry, incorporating the Office of the Correctional Investigator, the Correctional Service of Canada, the National Parole Board, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Secretariat. On July 16, 1984, the newly established Canadian Security Intelligence Service was also added to the Ministry.

Overall Responsibilities

The Solicitor General discharges certain duties specifically assigned under a number of Acts, notably the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act, the Penitentiary Act, the Parole Act, the Prisons and Reformatories Act, the Immigration Act, the Official Secrets Act, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act, the Criminal Records Act, and the Criminal Code of Canada. In addition, the agencies of the Ministry have an operational responsibility for the discharge of functions under Acts such as the Criminal Identification Act, the Diplomatic and Consular Privileges and Immunities Act, the Fugitive Offenders Act and the Migratory Birds Act, among others. Specific mandates of the Ministry's agencies are as follows.

The Secretariat is responsible for developing and co-ordinating Ministry policy and program roles, at the federal and federal-provincial levels, in four major areas: criminal justice, corrections, police, and security.

The RCMP is responsible for the enforcement of federal statutes, the provision of police services under provincial and municipal contracts, and of national police services.

The Correctional Service of Canada is responsible for the custody of inmates, their health care, education, training and employment. It also provides inmate counselling and personal development programs and supervises parolees.

The National Parole Board is responsible for granting or denying parole, including day parole, to inmates of federal and provincial prisons. It also rules on unescorted temporary absences for inmates of federal penitentiaries and recommends the exercise of the Royal Prerogative of Mercy and the granting of pardons.

The Correctional Investigator's mandate is to investigate complaints from or on behalf of incarcerated persons and report upon problems identified; in essence, acting as an ombudsman, endeavouring to resolve complaints by administrative action.

The Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) collects, analyses and retains information and intelligence respecting activities that may on reasonable grounds be suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canada.

The Office of the Correctional Investigator, the RCMP, the Correctional Service of Canada, the National Parole Board and the Canadian Security Intelligence Service are described in greater detail elsewhere in this Register with a complete listing of the information they hold. Requests for access to information specifically related to these agencies should be directed to the Access Co-ordinator of the particular agency.

The Secretariat, which reports to the deputy solicitor general, is described below with a complete listing of the information banks under its control.

Office of the Inspector General

The Inspector General is responsible for the monitoring and review of the operational activities of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service.

Police and Security Branch

The branch provides policy advice to the Solicitor General on the role, priorities, programs and operational activities of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Canadian Security Intelligence Service. The branch also develops policy on federal law enforcement, national policing issues, national security and contingency planning.

To facilitate the realization of the government's commitment to provide clear direction to the RCMP and the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, and to ensure the accountability of these organizations to Parliament, the branch has two directorates: the Police and Law Enforcement Policy Directorate and the Security Policy and Operations Directorate. In addition, there is a Security Planning and Co-ordination Division and a Security Advisory Committee Secretariat which under the division's director, has primary responsibility for the development of government administrative security policies.

Security Policy and Operations Directorate

The security components of the branch were reorganized, effective February 1, 1983, to form a new Security Policy and Operations Directorate. The directorate now comprises two divisions: Security Policy, and Security Operations.

The directorate is responsible for reviewing operational proposals referred to the Minister by the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) to ensure their conformity with Ministerial guidelines and standards; reviewing applications by the CSIS to the Solicitor General for approval to implement special investigative techniques provided for by the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act; reviewing the government's national internal security policies and CSIS' general operational policies in order to provide advice to the Solicitor General; and reviewing all proposed changes in government policy and legislation which may have an impact on existing national internal security policies, with a view to advising the Solicitor General on co-ordinating the needs of national security and other areas of government policy.

Security Planning and Co-ordination Division

This division is responsible for developing and co-ordinating government policy and program roles in support of the federal government's national counter-terrorism arrangements; and the development of contingency plans in response to internal security or civil emergency situations in which the Ministry has a lead role. It is also responsible for the Security Advisory Committee Secretariat.

The Security Advisory Committee Secretariat

The Security Advisory Committee (SAC) is an inter-departmental committee of senior security officials of departments having major security responsibilities. The Chairman is the senior assistant deputy solicitor general. He is assisted by a small Secretariat which reports to the director, Security Planning and Co-ordination. An executive committee of the SAC meets monthly to consider major security policy issues and to identify and plan future priorities.

The Secretariat is responsible for developing federal administrative security policies; advising departmental security officers on matters of general security policy; monitoring the publication of security intelligence documents; and providing direction and support to various sub-committees of the SAC dealing with specialized areas of security.

Police and Law Enforcement Policy Directorate

This directorate is responsible for developing and reviewing policy proposals governing the overall effectiveness and accountability of the RCMP; developing and implementing federal policy on the management of RCMP policing agreements with provinces, territories and municipalities; reviewing RCMP policy and expenditure submissions; developing policy for federal-provincial law enforcement initiatives; and participating in the development of policy initiatives with federal and national policing and law enforcement implications.

Programs Branch

The Programs Branch is the Ministry's research and development arm. Its primary aim is to produce sound information through demonstration, research and evaluation, and to communicate this information to improve criminal justice legislation, policy, programs and operations. The branch strives to make accessible the results of research and development and practical experience.

The branch research and development mandate encompasses two interrelated activities:

- knowledge building which is based on research, statistics, experimental programs, and dissemination of information from these activities; and
- technical expertise and services such as communications and media-relations, data processing activities, library and reference services, criminal justice employment programs, and major public involvement campaigns such as Crime Prevention Week.

Research Division

The Research Division conducts social science research on issues that are relevant to the priorities of the Ministry. There are two distinct but interrelated goals of this research. The first is to provide sound information and research-based policy advice for the planning and evaluation of Ministry policies and programs. This research is usually undertaken at the request of Ministry officials, although the findings from these studies also serve to identify emerging issues and new Ministry initiatives. The second is to assist provincial and local criminal justice agencies in the areas of policing, corrections, and other areas of common concern. This research enables the Secretariat to play a leadership role to support the development of experimental programs that can serve as models across Canada.

These research efforts are accomplished through contracting out for research studies and in-house data analysis; communicating the results or findings of the research; identifying research requirements or gaps in knowledge; providing research based policy advice to the criminal justice system; and supporting the development of Canadian criminal justice research manpower and resources through provision of support to Canadian research centres.

Statistics Division

The Statistics Division provides professional and technical services to the Secretariat and the Ministry agencies and promotes the development of better information and statistics in the criminal justice system. This is accomplished through:

- identification of criminal justice policy areas requiring a quantitative base for decision making, and developing means to provide the necessary data and analysis;
- conduct of statistical studies and surveys;
- participation in the development of co-ordinated federal/provincial efforts to strengthen the availability of comprehensive criminal justice information and statistics, and improve the scope, validity and timeliness of the information for use in operations, management and policy decision-making related to ministry priorities;
- maintenance of a base of up-to-date statistics, identification of gaps, and participation in statistics-gathering activities to lessen the gaps;
- provision of data processing support to the Secretariat through development of computer technology, acquisition of hardware, systems design, technical support, training, and preparation of data processing plans;
- participation in the development of policies on information system and statistical data gathering;
- co-ordination of project evaluation and implementation of information systems to assist in the monitoring and evaluation of research and development projects; and
- dissemination of information through the release of the results of statistical analyses and studies.

Consultation Centre

The Consultation Centre is essentially an agent for change and improvement in the criminal justice system. Through the processes of consultation and experimentation, the centre tests and develops innovative problems, increases community participation in criminal justice issues; facilitates information exchange and technology transfer amongst federal, provincial and municipal government organizations and private and voluntary sector organizations, and assists and encourages inter-governmental and intra-governmental planning for criminal justice policies and programs.

To accomplish these objectives, the Consultation Centre organizational structure includes a national headquarters in Ottawa and regional offices in Moncton, Montréal, Toronto, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Communications Group

The Communications Group explains Ministry objectives, roles and activities to all those within the criminal justice system and the public, and serves the information and communication needs of the Solicitor General in the exercise of his or her constitutional responsibility.

The division places special emphasis on converting the results of research and development to appropriate forms for use by components of the justice system and on effective liaison with representatives from various Canadian media.

The Communications Group accomplishes its tasks by:

- developing and implementing communications policies and strategic plans, in conjunction with Ministry agencies;
- establishing a well-balanced and co-ordinated program of information for the public-at-large and the public specifically interested in the criminal justice system;
- responding to the needs of the news media when information is required regarding the activities of the Ministry;
- producing Ministry publications, special reports, press releases and speeches;
- producing audio-visual materials such as films, videotapes and public service announcements;
- co-ordinating the Ministry participation in major fairs, conferences, and travelling exhibits designed to inform the public about federal initiatives in criminal justice;
- publishing Liaison, the only monthly magazine for the criminal justice system in Canada;
- maintaining a daily press clipping service for the Ministry;
- providing library services to the Ministry; and
- operating a National Victims Resource Centre, which makes available a wide variety of information to those involved in assistance to victims of crime in Canada.

Management Support Group

The Management Support Group provides management and executive support services to the Programs Branch to enable it to fulfill its Ministry-wide responsibility for criminal justice research and development, to ensure productive and efficient operations and to co-ordinate interaction between the branch and central agencies of the government and the central services of the Secretariat. Major areas of activity include: management overviews for decision making; research and development project administration; multi-year and contingency planning; resource utilization measurement and forecasting; and general administration matters.

Administration Branch

The branch is responsible for the preparation, implementation and overall administration of personnel, financial and administrative policies, programs, systems, procedures and services to assist the Ministry Secretariat in meeting its organizational objectives. These responsibilities include providing specialized advice and services to ensure delivery of Secretariat programs in accordance with legislative and central agency requirements.

Corporate Systems

Corporate Systems is responsible for corporate level planning and management systems, management information systems, audit, program evaluation, management review and related management tools used in the Ministry Secretariat. It also co-ordinates the use of these instruments, where required, with other components of the Ministry or with external authorities.

Policy Branch

This branch is responsible for formulating strategic policies and strategies concerning criminal justice, juvenile justice and correctional issues, and for providing advice to the deputy minister and the Minister on a wide range of related issues requiring public policy determination. The branch is comprised of directorates responsible for Criminal Justice Policy (including Firearms and International Relations sections), Corrections Policy, and Young Offenders policy matters.

Background

The Standards Council of Canada (SCC) was established in 1970 by an Act of Parliament to foster and promote voluntary standardization in Canada as a means of advancing the national economy, benefiting the health, safety and welfare of the public, assisting and protecting consumers, facilitating domestic and international trade, and furthering international co-operation in the field of standards.

Overall Responsibilities

The Council carries out its task through the National Standards System (NSS), a federation of accredited independent organizations concerned with standards writing, certification and testing, co-ordinated by the SCC. The system was created to provide a medium through which Canadian organizations involved in such activities may operate and co-operate to recognize, establish and improve standardization in Canada. It provides a comprehensive Canadian standardization capability to meet both national and international requirements and responsibilities.

The Council ensures effective Canadian participation in the work of the International Organization for Standardization (ISO), the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC) and any other similar international organizations engaged in the formulation of voluntary standards. Both of these international agencies have as their objective the development of standards, with a view to facilitating international exchange of goods and services. ISO work is concerned with standardization in many disciplines, except for the electrotechnology field which is IEC's responsibility.

General Information

The Council operates a Standards Information Service (SIS) which assists users of standards in identifying the existence of standards documents they may require; it also identifies the organizations responsible for publishing them and advises where and how standards documents may be purchased or procured. The service is a co-operative venture of the Standards Council of Canada and the five accredited standards writing organizations of the National Standards System.

The Standards Information Service can be reached by writing to:

National Standardization Branch

The branch assesses, and recommends for accreditation, organizations engaged in standards writing, testing and certification. It co-ordinates voluntary standardization activities among standards-writing organizations, and maintains liaison with federal and provincial government authorities in the field of standardization. The branch also reviews standards for acceptance as national standards of Canada, and co-ordinates the implementation of international standards in Canada. The branch co-ordinates Canadian participation on the International Organization for Standardization's policy committees for Conformity Assessment (ISO-CASCO), Organization for Standardization for Consumer Policy (ISO-COPOLCO), and the International Laboratory Accreditation Conference (ILAC).

Education and Information Branch

The branch develops, recommends and implements national information programs to communicate to the public at large and the technical, business and industrial communities in particular, information on standards and their application, standardization activities, and the developments taking place within the National Standards System of Canada. The branch operates a national centre for information on standards and standards documents, is the Canadian enquiry point required by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and the Agreement on Technical Barriers to Trade, and functions as Canadian member of the International Organization for Standardization Information Network (ISONET). The branch co-ordinates Canadian participation on the ISO Committee on Information (INFCO). It also sponsors programs for national education and assistance to developing countries.

International Standardization Branch

The branch is responsible for ensuring the effective Canadian participation in the work of the International Organization for

STANDARDS COUNCIL OF CANADA

Standardization (ISO), the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC) and other international standardization organizations, and that this participation meets the national need. It also assists the National Standardization Branch in the harmonization of international standards with Canadian standards, and the implementation of international standards in Canada.

Administration and Finance Branch

The branch ensures the co-ordination of Council programs within budgetary limitations and verifies that all activities are in keeping with its objectives and procedures as set out in the Standards Council of Canada Act and by-laws. It provides administrative services for all Council staff. It also performs the planning, accounting and reporting functions for all of the Council. It is accountable for revenues and appropriations and is responsible for discharging Council's liabilities.

Background

At the time of Confederation, the British North America Act made the census and statistics a responsibility of the Government of Canada. For many years, the development of statistical programs was conducted mainly under the auspices of various departments of the federal government. The first decennial censuses after Confederation were conducted through ad hoc arrangements under successive census commissioners. The Statistics Branch of the Department of Agriculture was given the responsibility for carrying out the 1911 Census.

In 1918, Parliament passed legislation establishing the Dominion Bureau of Statistics (DBS). This legislation envisaged a central statistical system, and in the following years various statistical activities previously carried on in agriculture and several other government departments were brought together under the new DBS. In 1971, Parliament passed further legislation concerning the Statistics Act, which, among other things, changed the agency's name to Statistics Canada.

Today, Statistics Canada is a separate agency of the government reporting through the Minister of Supply and Services. It is the core of Canada's national statistical system, one of the largest centralized statistical systems in the western world.

Overall Responsibilities

The mandate of Statistics Canada, as defined by Section 3 of the Statistics Act, 1971, is

- (a) to collect, compile, analyze, abstract and publish statistical information relating to the commercial, industrial, financial, social, economic and general activities and condition of the people;
- (b) to collaborate with departments of government in the collection, compilation and publication of statistical information, including statistics derived from the activities of those departments;
- (c) to take the census of population of Canada and the census of agriculture of Canada as provided in this Act;
- (d) to promote the avoidance of duplication in the information collected by departments of government; and
- (e) generally, to promote and develop integrated social and economic statistics pertaining to the whole of Canada and to each of the provinces thereof, and to co-ordinate plans for the integration of such statistics.

The program objectives of Statistics Canada are: to collect and publish in impersonal formats statistical information on the characteristics and behaviour of Canadian households, businesses, institutions and governments for research, policy development, program administration, decision-making and general informational purposes; to collaborate with other participants in the broader national statistical system in extending the system's scope, usefulness and use, and to provide leadership, professional expertise and co-ordination in such efforts.

Organization

The basic unit of organization at Statistics Canada is the division. The first type, referred to as a subject matter division, is responsible for managing a statistical program. The second is the service or operational division, which provides a common central service for either internal users or the public. Divisions with related or shared responsibilities are organized into branches. Branches are grouped into fields reporting to assistant chief statisticians, who in turn report to the deputy chief statistician and the Chief Statistician.

The Department is divided into six fields, three of which are major production sectors: Social, Institutions and Labour Statistics, Business and Trade Statistics, and National Accounts and Analytical Services. These sectors are supported by the Informatics and Methodology Field, the Communications and Operations Field, and the Management Services Field.

Sources of Information

In keeping with its mandate and objective, Statistics Canada undertakes to collect information describing the "commercial, industrial, financial, social, economic and general activities and condition of the people." This body of information is known as the national database. Surveys are conducted in households, businesses and industries, social institutions and governments at all levels to acquire this information. In addition, by statutory requirement, Statistics Canada conducts censuses of population and agriculture at prescribed intervals. The surveys are conducted in a variety of ways: by questionnaire mailed out to the respondent, by interview (in person or by telephone), and by accessing the administrative files of social institutions and government departments. They are done on either a sample or a census basis.

The basic statistics thus obtained are published in their own right, and many of these also provide inputs to the set of secondary, or derived, statistics known as the System of National Accounts. Moreover, the application of identical or reconcilable concepts, definitions and classifications gives basic statistics mutual consistency. Disparate sets of statistics can then be brought together for meaningful analysis.

Dissemination of Information

Statistics Canada has devoted considerable effort towards promoting the dissemination and understanding of the information it produces. In fact, a large volume of information, including special tabulations, is released in response to enquiries from users, be they federal, provincial or municipal organizations, private associations and institutions, or the general public. Statistics Canada has developed various products and services to facilitate access to and understanding of its information. This information goes far beyond statistical outputs and includes methodology, processes, definitions, classification criteria and assessments of the quality of the data.

Products

The objective of publishing statistical information has traditionally been met by an extensive range of conventional print publications. However, in recent years more sophisticated media of distribution such as computer tapes, access to data banks and microform have been introduced.

Statistics Canada publishes aggregates and summary tables of almost all the data that it collects. These data are obtained from all commercial, industrial, financial and government organizations in Canada, as well as from individuals. They cover all aspects of the operations of commercial, private and government organizations. They also provide a comprehensive social and economic picture of each segment of Canada's population. It is to be noted, however, that the published data represent only a fraction of all the possible output that could be produced from the data collected. Special tabulations are often prepared to meet specialized requirements of users.

The Statistics Canada Catalogue lists those publications that contain statistical data, related reference material, special studies based on statistical data, or descriptions of Statistics Canada services and operations. One publication (Listing of Supplementary Documents, catalogue number 11-207) lists non-catalogued material of particular interest to technically specialized clientele. Catalogued publications may be purchased from the Publications Sales and Services Section of Statistics Canada. Copies of supplementary documents may be ordered from the library.

Many publications may be ordered directly from Statistics Canada in microfiche form. All publications ever issued by Statistics Canada are available on microfiche from Micromedia Ltd.

CANSIM is Statistics Canada's publicly accessible machine-readable data base and retrieval system. The CANSIM main base contains over 300,000 time series from Statistics Canada data, the Bank of Canada Review, the Québec Statistical Review, and selected U.S. Statistics.

The CANSIM cross-classified module contains census data as well as data on social facts in the areas of health, education, justice etc. Both the main base and the cross-classified module may be accessed from Industrial Life Technical Services. Other service bureaus offer access to subsets of the CANSIM main base. For further information, contact the CANSIM Operations Division at Statistics Canada.

Several areas of Statistics Canada make data available on magnetic tapes. For more information, consult the User Advisory Services Division.

The Statistics Canada Daily, which announces the official release of all the Department's statistical information, is produced each working day and goes to the national press and broadcast media as well as interested individual subscribers. Infomat, a weekly summary of information published by the Department, is distributed the same way.

Services

Statistics Canada provides a number of services to help users locate and interpret the data necessary to satisfy their requirements.

Foremost among the services provided are the Enquiries, Professional Consultation and Educational services available in local reference centres. Staff in these offices are equipped to assist with most questions likely to arise concerning the supply and application of data to user problems. In addition, expert advice concerning source surveys and more complex applications of data can be obtained from subject matter specialists in the agency. Should users need to communicate directly with these specialists, addresses and telephone numbers can be supplied from any local reference centre. (Reference centre addresses are provided further on in the text.)

Statistics Canada has a Central Enquiries unit in Ottawa and User Services staff in eight cities across the country. Toll-free telephone lines to these centres are available. The services offered there are as follows:

Enquiry Service: answers requests for statistical data by telephone, letter and from visitors; provides a collection of all recent Statistics Canada publications, as well as certain historical ones, for public reference; provides tabulations of certain unpublished data and other selected government statistical publications for public reference; and provides visitors with study areas.

Professional Consultation Service: assists both experienced and inexperienced users with data problems; advises on arranging direct access to CANSIM, Statistics Canada's machine-readable data base system; and provides feedback to Statistics Canada on the statistical needs and problems of users.

Data Distribution and Promotion Services: takes orders for all Statistics Canada publications and related material, such as census maps and microfiche; retrieves data directly from CANSIM; provides public copying facilities for printed materials and microfiche; and arranges displays to promote the use of statistical data.

Education Service: provides booklets on finding and using statistics and distributes copies of the Statistics Canada Catalogue of Publications; holds workshops and seminars for users on subjects of special interest, on request; visits educational institutions to speak on statistical subjects, on request; and arranges local training courses on statistical subjects, such as basic questionnaire design and sampling techniques.

Statistics Canada Library

The library provides reference materials and library services to support the research and administrative activities of the agency's staff. It also makes the resources and services available to other government departments and the general public.

The library's main holdings are within the field of socioeconomics and supporting related disciplines. A collection of approximately 100,000 volumes and more than 3,000 regularly received periodicals is maintained.

The library houses a collection of Statistics Canada publications and their predecessors originating from 1841, Canadian and foreign government documents and extensive supporting monographs associated with the socioeconomic field together with the required bibliographies, indexes and other reference tools.

The library offers accommodation for reading and reference work in the public reading room area on the second floor of the R.H. Coats Building in Ottawa. Carrels are provided for the patron's use, and private studies for individual research may be reserved.

Census Pension Searches

The objective of the program is to provide proof of age, place of residence, family relationships or length of residence in Canada from historic census records and 1940 National Registration records. The service is normally provided in support of applications for pensions, citizenship, passports and similar situations where other more preferred administrative records are required but no longer exist or were never issued.

Statistics Canada Records

A primary role of Statistics Canada is to disseminate all its statistical information as a service to users. In fact, the agency is one of the country's major publishers of information. The information it produces covers a broad spectrum of human and social activities and is acquired through very complex technical processes and the effort of hundreds of people.

Statistics Canada holds records, therefore, not only on hundreds of topics, but also on all the phases of the production of statistics. These range from the research and planning stages to the methods and procedures for the collection and compilation of data. Records also relate to consultation with users, analysis of statistics, production of abstracts and compendia, provisions of services and dissemination of information outputs. The public may request access to any of the above records as well as to documents relating to administrative, financial and operating data.

In order to identify and categorize information gathered by surveys, various classification structures are used. Most of these classifications are peculiar to a particular survey or group of surveys. However, four classification structures (commodities, industries, occupations and geographical areas) are widely used both within Statistics Canada and by other organizations. These classifications are available from the Publications Sales and Services Section.

To simplify the process of locating information, the Access Register identifies the subject topics handled by each area. Once a subject has been identified and located in the register, all statistical and peripheral information related to that subject can be obtained by specifying the type of information required (for example: sample size for the price index; sources of statistics on sales of alcoholic beverages; probability of error associated with the Labour Force Survey sample). All records held by Statistics Canada can be accessed in this manner.

It should be noted that the subjects are of necessity broad in scope and only represent a summary of the file content. The description of the function of the division provides additional indications of the type of records likely to be found there. Whenever required, User Services will provide additional assistance to locate information at a much more detailed level.

The guarantee of confidentiality embodied in the Statistics Act is seen by Statistics Canada as an essential element to the effective performance of its role, and the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act tend to support this principle. Statistics Canada cannot accept any request for information that contravenes the confidentiality of the Act, unless explicit legislative provision is made for an exception.

Data collected by Statistics Canada are usually transcribed into machine-readable forms. Supplementary material such as correspondence, manuals, instructions, memoranda and notes are usually stored only in hardcopy (paper) form. However, frequently updated material, such as some manuals, may be stored in machine-readable form to be handled by word-processing equipment. In addition, certain material may exist on microform (microfilm or microfiche). Unless otherwise stated in the access notes found under the description of classes of records, statistical data are stored in machine-readable form and all other material is stored as hardcopy and filed by subject. Within a particular subject, material may be further classified by census year, geographical area, by company or institution name.

Dates shown after certain subject topics (reference years) are the last dates for which that information is available.

The accuracy and reliability of statistical data depend to a large extent on the process by which they are obtained. The process is complex and varies with different types of statistics. Therefore, a methodology has to be established for each survey and for each statistics production activity. As a result, several instruction manuals are developed to cover all phases of data acquisition, production and publication. These manuals can be accessed by identifying the subject. Other manuals used by the agency are listed with the appropriate class of records.

Access Procedures

It is a basic element of Statistics Canada's mandate to provide information to any interested party on the wide range of subjects that it surveys and analyzes, and the agency currently responds to thousands of enquiries a year through the established services described above. In addition, in order to meet the requirements of the Access to Information Act, Statistics Canada has appointed a co-ordinator of access to information. The principal duty of this officer is to ensure that those people whose requirements for information are not met by existing services will be able to exercise their legal rights to information held by the agency.

Office of the Chief Statistician of Canada

The Chief Statistician is a deputy of the Minister responsible for Statistics Canada. He advises on matters pertaining to statistical programs of the departments and agencies of the Government of Canada, and confers with such departments and agencies to that end. He supervises generally the administration of the Statistics Act and controls the operations and staff of Statistics Canada.

The deputy chief statistician assists the Chief Statistician in all aspects of the management and planning of Statistics Canada.

Departmental Secretariat

The secretariat serves as the principal focal point for liaison with the Minister responsible for Statistics Canada, other ministers, and members of Parliament generally. In support of the Minister, the secretariat processes correspondence, deals with parliamentary returns, responds to oral and written questions and prepares briefing material on issues relating to Statistics Canada's program and policies.

Its other functions include staff support to the Chief Statistician, the deputy chief statistician, and the policy committee, as well as liaison with various management committees. The secretariat is also responsible for review and control of official government documentation.

SOCIAL, INSTITUTIONS AND LABOUR STATISTICS FIELD

The Social, Institutions and Labour Statistics Field conducts a wide range of statistical programs dealing with virtually all aspects of the social, institutional and labour market characteristics and activities of Canadians.

The field is headed by an assistant chief statistician with responsibility for census and demographic statistics, institutions and social statistics, and labour and household surveys.

Census and Demographic Statistics Branch

This branch conducts a program of censuses and surveys and related activities designed to provide comprehensive social and demographic statistics on the Canadian population.

Census Operations Division

The Census of Population is a national inventory of Canada's key socioeconomic phenomena. It is the only means by which many socioeconomic statistics are reliably produced for small areas. Its coverage extends to every person in the country. The questions asked are selected on the basis of comprehensive and carefully organized consultation with representatives of virtually every recognizable user community. Census estimates are the most widely used body of data produced by Statistics Canada. They also serve as benchmarks for the weighting of other household statistics.

The Census Operations Division is responsible for the planning, development and implementation of all production-related operations of the periodic decennial and quinquennial census of population. Activities of the division range from the development, testing and production of the census questionnaire package to the final retrieval and dissemination of tabulated results. Included in the process is the hiring, training and supervision of some 40,000 enumerators, the pre-computer manual processing of some nine million questionnaires, the resulting data entry and the highly sophisticated computerized edit and imputation of data. Supporting these collection and processing operations is an equally important public communications team responsible for publicizing census activities from the time of data collection to marketing of the final output. Products, which consist of cross-tabulated data and reference works, are available in pre-planned publications, user summary tapes, public use sample tapes, microform and special tabulations. The data are derived from the census micro database, which occupies six disk packs, each containing some 300 million bytes of information. As an aid to users of census data, various reference documents and manuals are also produced that describe contents and limitations of the data base variables. Further assistance is provided through regional reference centres and the Central Enquiries Unit of Statistics Canada.

Manuals

- Census Catalogue
- Census Dictionary of Terms
- Map Catalogue
- Data Catalogue

Housing, Family and Social Statistics Division

This division is responsible for a broad range of data produced from the census and other sources such as the 1984 Family History Survey, a retrospective study of family life in Canada. It carries out research and analysis of census data and other survey and administrative data to publish reports on the socioeconomic characteristics of the population and subsets of the population. The data produced are at the individual, population, family, household and dwelling levels.

Demography Division

The division is responsible for two major areas. The Population Estimates and Projections Subdivision prepares annual post-censal estimates and periodic projections of population, households, and families for Canada, the provinces, and other smaller areas of the country. The annual estimates of population for Canada and the provinces are used, as required by legislation, in the administration of the Fiscal Arrangements and Established Programs Financing Act, 1977, and the Canada Student Loans Act, 1964-65. The Demographic Characteristics section develops the demographic content of censuses and surveys and analyzes the resulting data. Under its program "Current Demographic Analysis," the division carries out research in various demographic areas (fertility, migration, marriage rate, mortality, population growth) of the Canadian population.

Labour and Household Surveys Branch

This branch conducts statistical programs of household surveys such as the Labour Force Survey, the surveys of income and expenditure, and establishment-based surveys of employment.

Household Surveys Division

This division is responsible for a number of household surveys including the monthly Labour Force Survey which is the largest continuing survey program carried out by Statistics Canada. This survey is conducted by personal and telephone interviews in some 53,000 households across Canada.

It is also responsible for the special surveys program, which provides a capacity to develop and carry out occasional or ad hoc household surveys. Some of the surveys are conducted as supplements to the monthly Labour Force Survey, while others are carried out quite independently on separate sample frames and using totally different survey methodology. The majority of the work carried out by the special surveys staff is sponsored (funded) by other federal departments or agencies, and occasionally by provincial or other sponsors. Statistics Canada reserves the right to publish the survey results and in fact disseminates a considerable amount of data collected through the special surveys program.

The division also provides information on family expenditure data, household facilities and equipment and incomes of Canadian families and individuals.

Manuals

- Z-034E Surveys Supplementary to the Labour Force Survey (January 1966 to December 1975) — Description of the surveys conducted from 1966 to 1975, and a listing of the publications based on the data of each survey
- Z-035B Supplementary Surveys to the Labour Force Survey (January 1976 to December 1977) — Description of the surveys conducted from 1976 to 1977, and a listing of the publications based on the data of each survey
- Z-036B The program of the Special Surveys Group — Overview of the operations of the Special Surveys Group and a description of the surveys conducted from 1978 to 1983

Labour and Household Surveys Analysis Division

The division provides resources for the analysis and evaluation of labour market related data, including data on occupation, industry, individual and family income and expenditure data; and it responds to special requests where expert subject matter knowledge is required. It develops conceptual frameworks and operational definitions for measures of labour supply data. It also develops the complex derivations from micro data and specifies all labour related output variables and tables. It determines the content of labour force survey questionnaires and recommends the labour questions to be used in the census and provides specifications for coding, edit and imputations, and other micro-data manipulation logic.

Labour Division

This division is responsible for producing a wide range of labour data from surveys and administrative records. Prior to April of 1983, a monthly employment survey (ES-1) was conducted on a census basis for "large firms." The survey covered all businesses employing 20 or more persons at any time during the year in the commercial sector, with the exception of agriculture, fishing and trapping.

A monthly employment survey (ES-2) was also conducted on a sample basis. This survey had the same industrial coverage of the commercial sector as the ES-1, but for firms employing fewer than 20 persons. In addition, monthly surveys were conducted to obtain employment data for education and health services.

As of April, 1983, all of the above surveys were replaced by the Survey of Employment, Payroll and Hours (SEPH). It is conducted on a mixture of a census and sample basis, and includes firms, institutions, and organizations of all sizes. All industries are covered by the survey, with the exception of agriculture, fishing and trapping, private household services, religious organizations and military services.

In addition, information is collected on pension plans and statistics reflecting the operation of the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Institutions and Social Statistics Branch

This branch is responsible for the collection, production analysis and dissemination of socioeconomic statistics of justice, health, education, culture and tourism, and public institutions which are required for purposes of decision-making, understanding and research in both the public and private sectors.

Health Division

The division is responsible for the production of statistics on the health of the Canadian people, the occurrence of illnesses, the distribution and cost of health care and treatment in Canadian hospitals and special care facilities, vital statistics (births, deaths, marriages and divorces) and statistical information on the Canadian Social Security System. This information originates in large part from provincial administrative files. A large data base measuring the health status of the population exists for the period 1978 to 1979.

Canadian Centre for Justice Statistics

The Canadian Centre for Justice Statistics, established in 1981 to replace the Justice Statistics Division, operates as a Statistics Canada satellite. Its purpose is to produce statistics and information on the incidence of crime and on the administration of criminal, civil and administrative justice in Canada. The centre works in partnership with the numerous provincial and federal departments and agencies responsible for the administration of justice that supply raw data to produce statistics comparable among the provinces and for Canada as a whole. The program also includes a component designed to help provincial agencies to develop systems that can provide necessary data to the Centre for national statistics programs.

The centre is assisted in its task by a number of formal committees addressing policy-oriented as well as technical issues. They are the Justice Information Council, which is a senior federal-provincial standing committee composed of all deputy ministers responsible for Justice from across Canada, together with the Chief Statistician; the Liaison Officers Committee, a continuing committee composed of representatives of all the Justice Information Council members, and program advisory committees which provide expert advice on each specific sector program within the Centre.

Education, Culture and Tourism Division

This division is responsible for three separate programs and an analytic unit. It collects and disseminates statistics on students, teaching staff, and finances of all educational institutions; culture; and travel, tourism and recreation.

The cultural statistics program was initiated following a Cabinet decision in 1972 to meet specific requirements of the Department of the Secretary of State. Associated with this program is the travel and tourism statistics program, which carries out surveys on behalf of such sponsors as Tourism Canada. These surveys are funded by the sponsors.

Public Institutions Division

This division collects information on and conducts annual and quarterly analyses of financial transactions and employment of federal, provincial and local governments and their boards, commissions and agencies.

NATIONAL ACCOUNTS AND ANALYTICAL SERVICES FIELD

This field is responsible for providing a set of macroeconomic series within the five complex frameworks of the Canadian System of National Accounts. It provides a broad band of research and analysis intended to animate society's perception of social and economic behaviour and undertakes research and development of statistical techniques.

The field is headed by an assistant chief statistician with responsibility for the system of national accounts and analytical studies.

National Accounts Development Division

This office is responsible for the conceptual integration of economic and social statistics. It is responsible for research on the basic restructuring and extension of the Canadian System of National Accounts and dovetailing this work with the fundamental re-examination of the accounts which is taking place at the international level.

System of National Accounts Branch

The System of National Accounts provides a conceptually integrated framework of statistics and analysis for studying the state and behaviour of the Canadian economy. The accounts are centered around the measurement of activities associated with production of goods and services, and the sales of goods and services in final markets.

Gross National Product Division

This division provides quarterly and annual estimates of the national and provincial output of goods and services by expenditure category and also by type of income generated in the production process. It also provides a picture of the key economic processes of production, income generation, sales to major markets, consumption, and capital formation.

Manuals

- System of National Accounts, Catalogue No. 13-549E

Industry Measures and Analysis Division

This division produces monthly, quarterly and annual measures of the current and constant price value of production for individual industries (approximately 200, based on the standard industrial classification), the total economy and a number of special industry aggregates.

International and Financial Economics Division

This division prepares statements of financial flows and balance sheet estimates for the Canadian economy, measuring the financial wealth of the country and the channels through which lending and borrowing take place. It provides a focal point for business microdata integration and analysis, and prepares statistics on international travel. It provides information on current and capital account transactions between Canada and other countries, including movements in Canada's official monetary reserves, and also provides information on Canada's international investment position. Its output depends on comprehensive survey and non-survey programs and data analysis covering merchandise trade with non-residents, imports and exports of services, unilateral transfers and long- and short-term capital flow between residents of Canada and non-residents.

Input-Output Division

This division develops annual input-output tables to provide fully integrated final revisions (benchmarks) to the production accounts within the Canadian System of National Accounts; occasional interprovincial trade flows and input-output data for each province; structural economic models of the Canadian economy; labour productivity measures in the commercial industry and subsidiary industries. It is also responsible for the provision of analytical and consultative services based on the stock of models operated by the division.

Analytical Studies Branch

This branch is responsible for the integration, analysis and interpretation of data collected both within the agency and elsewhere to describe, draw inferences and make deductions about the nature of Canadian society, as well as for the development of new and improved techniques for the statistical analysis and interpretation of socioeconomic data sets.

Econometric Analysis Division

The staff of this unit provides a central organizing framework for monitoring the current performance of the economy.

Population Studies Division

This division provides social-scientific analyses of data relating to trends and patterns of important variables involving key population groups in Canadian communities: assistance to Statistics Canada data users and sub-organizations in the development and application of statistical concepts related to aspects of population, in the appraisal of the quality and relevance of alternative Statistics Canada data or related studies for specified analysis purposes involving the field of population, and in the design of methods and techniques for such analyses; development and publication of data catalogues concerning analysis-relevant statistics relating to population groups (e.g. development of the Canadian Gerontological Data Catalogue).

Social and Economic Studies Division

The role of this division is to conduct appropriate research as well as to stimulate, support and integrate analytic work throughout Statistics Canada. It is also responsible for facilitating the utilization of social and economic data files.

Structural Analysis Division

This division is responsible for the development of structural economic models of the Canadian economy and for the provision of analytical and consultative services based upon the stock of models operated by the division.

Manuals

- Structural Analysis Division Document Index — lists documents, working papers and users' manuals available from the division

Distributional Analysis Division

The division performs research into the distribution of income and wealth in Canada.

BUSINESS AND TRADE STATISTICS FIELD

This field produces a wide range of monthly, quarterly and annual statistics on manufacturing, primary industries, transportation, communications, computing, construction, agriculture, merchandising services, external trade, prices, business finance, science and technology, small business, public finance, Corporations and Labour Unions Returns Act (CALURA), regional industrial structure and related areas.

The field is headed by an assistant chief statistician with responsibility for the Industry, Trade and Prices Statistics and, Resources, Technology and Services Statistics branches.

Industry, Trade and Prices Statistics Branch

This branch is responsible for planning, directing, co-ordinating and controlling the activities of subject-matter divisions to ensure the provision of statistical information and advice to governments, private organizations and institutions.

Industry Division

This division conducts an annual census of manufacturing and census of forestry and current surveys, some monthly, some quarterly, of the mining, energy, resource and manufacturing sectors to produce a full range of cost structure information, material input and commodity output data. It also produces annual measures of construction industry activity including cost, input and output data by type of trade. Data are also collected on the retail and wholesale trade covering the type of business, location, and physical, operating and financial characteristics.

Transportation Division

This division collects, publishes and makes available statistics on air, rail, road and water transportation industries and on related traffic and infrastructures. Some of these statistics are collected by agreement with federal regulatory and administrative bodies including Transport Canada, the Canadian Transport Commission, and Revenue Canada (Customs and Excise), and with certain provincial departments and agencies. Statistics Canada collects returns required by these agencies under the relevant legislations as well as under the Statistics Act.

In air, road and water transport, certain complementary programs are conducted under contract to Transport Canada to enhance statistics in priority areas.

International Trade Division

This division is responsible for the compilation, analysis and dissemination of Canada's merchandise export and import statistics. The ongoing part of this program involves production of regular reports and special tabulations that provide data by commodity, by country, by province of customs clearance for imports and province of origin (lading) for exports, by mode of transportation and by region of lading for exports, and by tariff item for imports.

Statistics Canada works in close co-operation with Revenue Canada (Customs and Excise) in order to capture data from Canada Customs import and export entry forms. The division also carries on a program of reconciliation of international trade figures on an annual basis with the United States, and it exchanges information on relevant aspects of trade statistics with other countries.

Manuals

- Standard International Trade Classification
- Customs Cooperation Council Nomenclature
- Canadian International Trade Classification
- Export Commodity Classification

Prices Division

This division provides information on retail (consumer) prices, living costs, and manufacturer, raw material and construction price indexes, as well as a number of indexes relating to capital expenditures.

Resources, Technology and Services Statistics Branch

This branch is responsible for planning, directing, co-ordinating and controlling the activities of the subject matter divisions to ensure the provision of statistical information and advice to governments, private organizations and institutions.

Services Division

This division is responsible for the development of an integrated and comprehensive program of statistics on services, communications and tourism.

Industrial Organization and Finance Division

This division produces quarterly and annual corporate financial statistics and annual corporate taxation statistics. It also administers the Corporation and Labour Unions Returns Act (CALURA). The CALURA program includes the publication of financial statistics on corporations by country of ownership and control and a directory of intercorporate ownership. Membership, affiliation and financial statistics of labour unions are also published.

Agriculture/Natural Resources Division

The Agriculture Natural Resources program provides data on the supply of food commodities (i.e., production and inventory levels), data on the levels of returns to resources used in farming and data on the economic welfare of farmers.

The program comprises a quinquennial census of agriculture, which produces a comprehensive micro database of primary production units. This generates disaggregated data on the structure and characteristics of the farm sector as well as a base for an intercensal program of crop acreage, yield and production estimates, estimates of livestock and poultry inventories on farms and an integrated set of farm income and expenditure accounts. The intercensal program depends on farm surveys and administrative data.

Science, Technology and Capital Stock Division

This division provides a focus for the collection, analysis and publication of statistics relating to scientific, technological and investment activities.

The division has the following main activities: the collection and publication of statistics on research and development and capital expenditures; the creation and publication of science and technology indicators; the creation and publication of estimates of fixed assets by industry; and the creation and publication of current investment indicators.

INFORMATICS AND METHODOLOGY FIELD

This field ensures that the statistical methodology used by all surveys is sound and statistically efficient, and provides leadership for and management of information processing in Statistics Canada.

The field is headed by an assistant chief statistician with responsibility for Informatics, Classification Systems and Methodology.

Informatics Branch

The branch provides electronic data processing (EDP) services to Statistics Canada. The branch headquarters staff, in conjunction with other members of the branch, is responsible for the formulation of policies relating to EDP and managing the overall activities of the branch. It also co-ordinates relations with the users of various systems and data processing services. The branch provides the chairman and secretariat services for the executive sub-committee on EDP.

Informatics Services and Development Division

This division is responsible for the planning, design, development and maintenance of specific application EDP systems for a particular user. The division is also responsible for EDP training and for the provision of professional advice and direction to the evolution of departmental systems and related methods of work.

Main Computer Centre

The centre is responsible for the provision of large-scale computer and mini-computer services to Statistics Canada, including data capture services and data storage facilities for the agency's EDP data.

CANSIM Development Division (See also CANSIM Operations Division)

This division is responsible for developing new and additional methods and services to make Statistics Canada's information available to broader audiences using electronic means. In this respect the CANSIM Development function focuses on the following areas: providing easier access to existing databases such that new clientele can use electronic information services. Current projects are the TELICHART system, the use of micro-computers linked to CANSIM databases, and the use of public electronic mail services provided by Bell Canada and CNCP. It also focuses on fundamental research and development in the areas of data documentation and description called meta-data.

Client Services Division

This division provides for all users a unified and comprehensive interface for all Informatics Branch services, including the business aspects of the branch's relations with its client. It is responsible for EDP planning, technical evaluation and EDP policies, standards and procedures.

Classification Systems Branch

This branch develops and promulgates classification systems; standardizes economic, social and geographic concepts; develops, enhances and maintains the business register as a major integration instrument of survey-taking; it is also responsible for the exploitation of taxation and other administrative data.

Geography Division

This division develops and maintains a spatially referenced geographic database in support of the standard geographical classification, the census and other bureau programs, by developing geostatistical concepts and delineating areas, producing maps and other reference products, and creating geographic conversion files.

Business Register Division

This division is responsible for the development and maintenance of a central register of firms and their constituent establishments for purposes of statistical collections. The business register master file lists businesses, institutions and similar organizations engaged in economic activity in Canada. The division is also responsible for accessing statistical data from Revenue Canada Taxation records to supplement or replace data collected by survey.

Standards Division

This division develops standard classification systems for industries, commodities, occupations and geographical areas. It monitors their implementation, delineates statistical structures, standardizes economic and social concepts and provides a comprehensive survey level documentation for each survey in Statistics Canada.

Methodology Branch

This branch plans, organizes and directs the work of the divisions and staff engaged in the development, implementation, analysis and evaluation of the statistical methodology underlying all of the programs of the agency. It is also involved in reviewing the paperburden imposed on businesses by federal government departments and agencies for the collection of information.

Survey Methods (Census and Household; Institutions and Agriculture) Division

Centralized methodology groups are responsible for achieving the most effective balance between the cost of data collection and the quality of statistical output. They are also responsible for focussing research and development efforts on issues and problems common to a variety of individual surveys or censuses.

Business Survey Methods Division

The division is responsible for methodological services to business surveys and in some cases for systems design and development. Its services are available to other divisions in Statistics Canada and to certain government and non-government agencies concerned with businesses.

Small Area Data Program

This program, a new initiative of Statistics Canada, is responsible for the development and dissemination of social, economic and demographic statistics and indicators for sub-provincial geographic areas.

COMMUNICATIONS AND OPERATIONS FIELD

This field provides a full range of external communication functions, including respondent, user, media and international relations. It also administers the central and regional operational functions essential to the conduct of the agency's statistical programs, including regional data collection and processing activities, marketing, publishing and electronic data dissemination.

This field is headed by an assistant chief statistician with responsibility for Marketing and Information Services, Operations Branch and Regional Operations.

Marketing and Information Services Branch

This branch is responsible for the activities which design and organize the information products of the agency to service the needs of its various clients at the federal, provincial and municipal government levels, and by diverse public and private sector users.

Communications Division

The division co-ordinates and exercises a focal responsibility for relations with Parliament, federal departments and agencies, provincial, territorial and municipal governments, business, labour, academics, institutions, media and the general public. It provides an entry point to the agency for these publics, monitors the public environment, develops and executes information programs, and supports communications activities of program managers through consultation and through preparation of communications material. It publishes the official release vehicle of Statistics Canada, other information bulletins, compendia of broad interest, and reference products. Further, it supports agency programs by providing an editing service aimed at improving the publications of speciality subject-matter divisions.

Its range of products includes the Canada Year Book, the Canada Handbook, the Statistics Canada Daily, Infomat (a weekly digest of the main statistical output), the Statistics Canada Catalogue, the Annual Report, the employee newspaper: Scan, exhibits, audio-visuals, brochures, newsletters, speeches, respondent relation material and a variety of user guides.

The division's Government Relations Unit acts as the secretariat for the Federal-Provincial Consultative Council on Statistical Policy and its 14 constituent committees. The council and committees promote standardization of data-collection and data-sharing agreements.

Publications Division

Publications Division is responsible for the publishing and marketing of the Department's products.

Professional and International Relations Division

This division co-ordinates Statistics Canada's international involvements with statistical agencies of other countries and international organizations that have statistical activities, such as the United Nations and its specialized agencies, the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, and the Commonwealth. It co-ordinates the work required for meeting international obligations such as representation at conferences or data reporting. As a member of several international organizations, Statistics Canada participates in the development of common standards and frameworks for the compilation of internationally comparable statistics; Statistics Canada is also concerned with assisting developing countries to enhance their statistical capability.

The division's responsibilities also include the co-ordination of the Department's relations with professional societies; the development and administration of a fellowship program; the co-ordination of the Department's professional advisory committees; and the administration of the Department's approved system for foreign and non-operational domestic travel.

CANSIM Operations Division

The CANSIM database is organizationally located in the Communications and Operations Field. CANSIM Operations Division is responsible for entering, maintaining, revising and updating the Canadian Socio-Economic Information Management System, which is an aggregative socioeconomic statistical database. The databases are made publicly available through commercial time-sharing service bureaus for statistical information and research and analysis. Its staff assists users of the services and performs retrievals from the CANSIM database for users who are not equipped with a terminal or who require output on cards and tapes.

Operations Branch

This branch is responsible for analyzing, evaluating and reviewing all statistical operations; for directing all regional operations; and for managing the integrated headquarters operations. It also develops and implements approaches and strategies for integrating operations and services throughout the agency, including the regionalization of operational activities, and manages and co-ordinates related production support services.

Operations Analysis Division

This organization is responsible for the full scale review and analysis of all internal operations and services of Statistics Canada with the objective of developing approaches and strategies for changes in organization and methodology to achieve better integration and overall co-ordination of these operational processes and services, and for the implementation of approved action plans to either regionalize or better integrate residual operations and services at headquarters that are not appropriate for regionalization.

Regionalization Planning

The organization is responsible for the planning and implementation of regionalization programs as approved by the management of Statistics Canada. The objectives are to enhance relationships in regional offices and to improve communications with respondents and/or users. Its goals and objectives are also to enhance the responsibilities of the regional offices by delegating additional tasks, to alleviate specialized resources in the bureau, and to enable further development and/or statistical analysis.

Headquarters Operations Division

The division is involved in five main areas. They include Records Management which manages all recorded information from the time it is received or created in the Department until its final disposition. The Distribution Centre provides distributing statistics data collection material, publications and general correspondence. Material Management is accountable for all purchasing, including capital acquisitions, and inventory control for the Department. Facilities Management is accountable for the effective and efficient use of space in the Department, telecommunications and other activities relating to the working environment. Operations sub-division is accountable for the development and effective management of a centralized statistical production operation, including classification, coding, editing and other related production functions.

Operations Automation Division

The primary mission of the Operations Automation Division is to use technology as part of the program to improve the operational performance of Statistics Canada.

Regional Operations Branch

This organization is responsible through a headquarters staff and a network of regional offices for survey data collection, primary processing and editing, for the provision of statistical information and advice at the regional level, and for related user respondents and community relations. Regional offices are located in St. John's, Halifax, Montréal, Ottawa, Sturgeon Falls, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. A user advisory sub-office is also located in Regina.

These regional offices carry out survey operations. As the data collection arm of the agency for population and agriculture censuses, for all household surveys, and for a large volume of business surveys, the regional offices collect data by personal or telephone contact with the survey respondents, be they households, as for the labour force survey, or business establishments, as for the consumer price indexes. To carry out this work, a full-time staff of 380 employees is supported by some 1,500 part-time interviewers working from diverse locations across the country. The permanent staff of this organization serves as the nucleus for the build-up needed every five years when 2,000 census commissioners and some 40,000 census representatives are employed on the collection and initial processing of the censuses of population and agriculture.

They also provide statistical advisory services to meet the statistical information and consultation requirements, including sectorial and regional analyses, of users of statistics across the country.

Regional offices are also responsible for public and community relations at local levels, for the co-ordination of regional market research activities and of promotional programs to make known the use of Statistics Canada data products and services.

MANAGEMENT SERVICES FIELD

This field organizes and co-ordinates internal management services including the development and implementation of all management policies and systems within the agency and the assessment of the efficiency and effectiveness of these programs. It is headed by an assistant chief statistician with responsibility for Management Practices, Operational Planning and Finance, and Personnel.

Special Assignment Division

This division was created in July, 1983, in response to a departmental need for persons to work on corporate or special tasks of limited duration for which there exists no permanent staffing resources. Such assignments provide opportunities for employees of Statistics Canada to tackle new and different challenges and to develop new skills.

Data Access and Control Services Division

This division serves as a departmental focal point for matters relating to the confidentiality of the information collected by Statistics Canada. It also administers services pursuant to the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act.

Management Practices Branch

This branch is responsible for developing good management systems to support the agency's managers in achieving departmental objectives and for ensuring that management practices identified by the Office of the Comptroller General are carried out.

Management Systems Design and Development Division

This division is responsible for the development of concepts and design of systems covering such aspects of management as accountability, planning, information systems, performance measurement, quality assessment and the status reporting for project and services provision. It is also responsible for the co-ordination of the above with other management practices that are the responsibility of functional areas such as corporate planning, program evaluation, internal audit, personnel, finance, operational planning and budgeting and production and support services.

Internal Audit Division

The division provides an independent and systematic review and appraisal of all departmental operations and furnishes senior management with objective information on the adequacy of management control procedures and frameworks. The scope of these audit activities extends to all process systems and procedures of management including planning, performance measurement, financial and personnel management and data processing, and also includes follow-up compliance audit of the approved recommendations of program evaluation projects.

Program Evaluation Division

The division is responsible for evaluating Statistics Canada's programs to assess the continued relevance of their objectives; and to investigate alternatives that might achieve the objectives in a more cost-effective manner.

Corporate Planning and Analysis Division

This division is responsible for the development and continuing assessment of departmental objectives and priorities; the devising of appropriate options and strategies for their achievement; and the development of medium or longer-term plans reflecting them.

Operational Planning and Finance Branch

The branch is responsible for planning financial requirements and monitoring and controlling financial expenditures of the bureau. It is composed of three areas: program and financial planning, financial services and management information systems.

Financial Policies and Systems Division

This division is responsible for the development, design, implementation and review of departmental financial policies, systems and procedures.

Financial Operations Division

This division is responsible for the accounts office, which retains records on all expenditure and revenue transactions, the financial management information system (REMAPPS), recoverable projects accounting, contract administration and general accounting services.

Operational Planning and Programming Division

This division is responsible for the management of the departmental operational planning system and the preparation of a multi-year operational plan and current year work planning processes and associated budgets.

Personnel Branch

The branch is responsible for providing services to employees and to management in the following areas: classification and staffing of positions, staff relations, development, pay and benefits, career and employee assistance counselling, affirmative action programs. It also maintains a personnel management information system, and is responsible for the official languages program, i.e. identifies language requirements of positions, provides language testing services and co-ordinates language training.

Classes of Records

STC/OCS-005 Formerly Identified as: NO REFERENCE
Departmental Operations (New)

OFFICE OF THE CO-ORDINATOR, STATUS OF WOMEN

---

Background

In 1967, the Government of Canada, seeking to respond to the difficulties faced by women in Canada, established a Royal Commission on the Status of Women (RCSW). In 1970, the RCSW tabled its report to Parliament containing 167 recommendations for federal and provincial governments. In 1971, Canada named a Minister responsible for the Status of Women and set up a Co-ordinator's Office within the Privy Council Office. In 1975, a special project called International Women's Year was set up to promote the role of women, and special information and educational programs were instituted across Canada to explain the situation of Canadian women. In 1976, the Office of the Co-ordinator, Status of Women became a department under Order-in-Council P.C. 1976-779.

Overall Responsibilities

The objective of the program is to ensure that the federal government carries out its commitment to equality between women and men and to ensure that equal opportunities for women in all spheres of Canadian life are promoted. This is achieved through:

- systematic analysis for the Minister of the impact on women of proposals, especially proposals for policy, legislative and program change;
- co-ordination of policy analysis on an interdepartmental, federal-provincial and international level so that policy recommendations to improve the status of women can be proposed to Cabinet by the Minister responsible for the Status of Women; and
- communication with women's groups, non-government organizations and the general public on government priorities and issues of concern to women.

The program is delivered by performing three functions which are reflected in its organization. They are: Policy Analysis and Development, External Relations, and Public Information/Communications.

Office of the Co-ordinator

Policy Analysis and Development

This function involves the systematic analysis of the impact of existing government programs on women and the review of proposals for new or revised programs, policies and legislation with regard to their impact on women. Policy analysis and development is carried out at the federal level as well as in co-operation with provincial governments and international bodies.

External Relations

This function consists of ongoing consultations with women's groups, academics, and other groups and individuals at all levels interested in the current environment and in assisting these groups and individuals in their contacts with the federal government. Status of Women Canada also represents Canada on the United Nations Status of Women Commission, the Working Party on the Role of Women in the Economy of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, and the Organization of American States Status of Women Commission.

Public Information/Communications

This function informs women's groups and the general public of federal priorities and programs relating to the status of women by assisting the Minister in the preparation of speeches, correspondence, and media briefings. It also consists of media analysis, answering queries from the public and issuing publications dealing with women's issues and related areas of interest.

THE ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY AUTHORITY

Background

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority (SLSA) was established in 1954 by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act, and is designated a proprietary corporation (Schedule C, Part I) within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act.

Overall Responsibilities

The Authority was incorporated to ensure:

- acquisition of lands for, and the construction, maintenance and operation of all such works as may be necessary to provide and maintain, alone or in conjunction with an appropriate authority in the United States, a deep waterway between the Port of Montréal and Lake Erie;
- construction, maintenance and operation of all such works as the Governor-in-Council may deem necessary to fulfil any obligation undertaken pursuant to any present or future agreement;
- acquisition of lands for, and construction, maintenance and operation, alone or in conjunction with an appropriate authority in the United States, of bridges connecting Canada with the United States as authorized by the Act; and acquisition, with the approval of the Governor-in-Council, of shares in or property of any bridge company, as well as operation and management of these bridges; and
- acquisition of lands for, and construction or acquisition, maintenance and operation of such works or other property as the Governor-in-Council may deem necessary for works undertaken pursuant to the Act.

The objectives of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority support the basic objective of the Canadian Marine Transportation Administration to provide safe, efficient facilities and services for waterborne commerce and marine operations, and include:

- the provision, operation and maintenance of an efficient deep waterway, assuring through navigation to the head of the Great Lakes;
- recovery of the costs required to operate this waterway;
- development and enforcement of regulations and standards to ensure safe and efficient movement of marine traffic, proper supervision and control of vessel operations, and protection of the environment; and
- assessment, on a continuous basis, of the need for improvements to the seaway system.

The Act confers various powers on the Authority, including the power to borrow money and produce revenue by levying tolls for the use of the deep waterway.

In 1976, the financial structure of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority was revised. In 1978, under the terms of a joint agreement with the United States Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, a new tariff of tolls was implemented, with increases being phased in over three years. These actions were designed to put the Authority on a self-supporting basis, although since 1980 it has been necessary to negotiate further toll increases with the United States to maintain self-sufficiency as required by Cabinet.

The Authority has operating responsibility for locks in two canal sections. It also operates numerous tunnels, bridges and ancillary structures. For operational and management purposes, the deep waterway is divided into two sections.

The Montréal-Lake Ontario eastern section includes seven locks which raise marine traffic a total of 68 meters. Five of the locks are located in Canada while two are in the United States. The latter are operated and maintained by the United States Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation.

The Welland Canal western section includes eight locks between Lake Ontario and Lake Erie — three of which are twinned — which raise marine traffic a total of 99 meters. This section was transferred from the Department of Transport to the Authority in 1959 and deemed to be part of the deep waterway system. Since 1959, the Authority has deepened the canal, constructed tunnels under it, built a new by-pass channel around the City of Welland and made many other improvements designed to increase the efficiency of the system.

Organization

The three members of the Authority as well as Legal Services, Corporate Planning, and Planning and Development are located in Ottawa. Central services, located in Cornwall, Ontario include operations and maintenance, personnel and administration, and finance. The headquarters of the eastern section, which extends from Montréal to Lake Ontario, is in St. Lambert, Québec. The Engineering Services Branch is also located there. The western section, which operates the Canadian-owned Welland Canal, is in St. Catharines, Ontario.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act was amended in 1956 to give the Authority the power to incorporate subsidiaries. There are now three: the Seaway International Bridge Corporation, Ltd., the Great Lakes Pilotage Authority, and the Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated.

The Seaway International Bridge Corporation, Ltd., successor to the Cornwall International Bridge Company Ltd., was incorporated by Letters Patent under the Canada Companies Act on November 13, 1962 and received its certificate of continuance under the new Canada Business Corporations Act on February 20, 1980. Its head office, located in Cornwall, Ontario, operates and manages an international toll bridge system between Cornwall, Ontario and Rooseveltown, New York, on behalf of the owners — the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority of Canada and the United States Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation.

The Great Lakes Pilotage Authority was created under the Pilotage Act. The objectives of this Authority are to establish, operate, maintain and administer a pilotage service in the province of Québec, south of the northern entrance to St. Lambert Lock, and all Canadian waters in and around the provinces of Ontario and Manitoba. Its head office is located in Cornwall, Ontario which is also the location of its eastern region office. Its western region office is located in St. Catharines, Ontario.

The Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges, Inc. received its certificate of incorporation under the Canada Business Corporations Act on November 3, 1978. The administration and control of the Jacques Cartier Bridge, the Champlain Bridge and a portion of the Bonaventure Autoroute in the Montréal area were transferred to this corporation from the National Harbours Board (Ports Canada) by Order-in-Council P.C. 1978-3139, dated October 12, 1978, as amended, effective December 1, 1978. Its head office is located in Ottawa, Ontario and its chief place of business is at Longueuil, Québec.

In addition to the foregoing, by virtue of P.C. 1976-2407 of September 28, 1976, the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority has been entrusted with the maintenance and operation of the Canadian span of the Thousand Islands Bridge over the St. Lawrence River between Landsdowne, Ontario and Collins Landing, New York, including all appurtenant structures and property located in Canada.

By the terms of an agreement dated March 1, 1977, between the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and the United States Thousand Islands Bridge Authority, the latter operates as an agent of the Authority for that portion of the Thousand Islands Bridge which lies in Canada and is under control of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority.

Corporate Planning Branch

This branch is responsible for applying a systematic approach to clarifying corporate objectives, making strategic decisions and checking progress towards the objectives. Corporate objectives are the objectives for the organization as a whole and not for parts of it. Strategic decisions are decisions which affect the organization as a whole over a long period of time. Specific responsibilities, outlined below, are carried out between two sections.

Corporate Planning Section

- preparation of specific corporate plans for fiscal periods;
- participation in the formulation of financial policies;
- development of strategies for improving productivity;
- liaison with central agencies and government departments;
- development of sensitivity to Seaway users' needs;
- development and implementation of performance measurement indicators; and
- participation in the improvement of internal communications including the distribution of business news.

Economics Section

- Data Collection — identification and collection of statistical data and information related to the Seaway economic program.
- Database — development, maintenance and update of a database to store, review and analyze data related to the Seaway economic program.
- Economic Market Analysis — performance of macroeconomic and regional market analyses to determine commodity flows along the Seaway.
- Traffic Forecasting — preparation and update of short- and long-range traffic forecasts for commodities moving through the Seaway.
- Tolls and sensitivity analyses — monthly and annual toll revenue estimates. These include determination of optimum toll increases to satisfy revenue needs.
- Other economic studies — assessments of the regional impacts of the Seaway. These include benefit-cost analyses, feasibility studies and the evaluation of reports and proposals related to the economic program of the seaway.

Planning and Development Division

This division is responsible for the continued planning of conventional improvements to the Seaway system; for major studies on hybrid incremental twinning proposals for the Welland Canal and associated engineering analyses; for feasibility studies, and for cost-benefit studies related to these programs. The division is also responsible for liaison with the Canadian Coast Guard and the United States Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, and for co-ordinating such studies under their control as season extension and precise navigation systems. The division provides an interface with the Canadian marine transportation administration research and development group, and performs the emergency planning tasks required by the Department of Transport, under the umbrella of NATO.

Operations and Maintenance Branch

The branch monitors system performance to detect trends, and monitors capacity policy factors; participates in the development of capacity demand policies and the generation and evaluation of proposals related to the capacity/demand balance; and initiates and/or participates in the design and implementation of new operational programs related to capacity and day-to-day operation.

The branch administers programs related to Seaway regulations, vessel speed programs, operating procedures, maintenance policies and procedures, operational and maintenance staffing requirements, the transportation of dangerous goods, pollution matters, accident investigations, hydraulic and climatic matters, operational and maintenance feasibility studies, and capital and other budgets. It provides support to the Authority and regions in operational and maintenance related matters and provides liaison with users and other marine entities both in Canada and the United States.

Manuals

- Seaway Handbook — contains regulations and information
- Operating Manuals — provide detailed operating procedures for structure and traffic control operations, emergency procedures
- Operations Memoranda — provide general operational guidelines and policies
- Maintenance Manuals — provide detailed procedures and practices

Finance and Accounting Branch

Tolls and Statistics Section

This section compiles data on movement of vessels within the Seaway, receives information on these movements from agents who have assumed responsibility for the payment of tolls, and subsequently assesses tolls and issues a tolls invoice. As an offshoot of this billing procedure, statistics are gathered concerning vessel movements and the cargo carried by them.

Manuals

- Seaway Handbook — includes tariff of tolls
- Commodity, Port and Country Code Book — lists all numerical codes for ports, countries of registry and commodities
- Agent Code Manual — contains listing and numerical codes for all vessel agents
- Tolls and Statistics Users Manual — contains all operations of the EDP system as it applies to tolls and statistics

Accounts Receivable Section

This section is responsible for pre-clearance of all vessels using the Seaway facilities and the recovery of all toll accounts owed to the Authority.

Manuals

- Seaway Handbook — includes tariff of tolls

---

- Lloyd's Register of Ships — contains all data on the physical characteristics of ships, such as length, width, etc.
- Accounts Receivable User's Manual — contains all operations of the EDP system as it applies to accounts receivable

Operations Division, Eastern Region

This division administers the movements of vessels in the St. Lawrence River, from Montréal to Lake Ontario, through the operation of a vessel traffic control centre and several structures, locks and bridges. As well, this division ensures that vessel transits are safe, efficient and expedient in accordance with Seaway regulations, policies and programs, regional operating procedures and applicable federal statutes.

Manuals

- Seaway Regulations — lists rules governing vessel transits
- Operations Manual — contains instructions and procedures for the operation of structures
- Traffic Control Manual — describes instructions and procedures on vessel traffic control
- Regional Instructions — lists regional administrative procedures and instructions
- Clerk's Manual — describes procedures and instructions for operations and communications clerks

Engineering and Maintenance Division, Eastern Region

This division is responsible for making the regional structures available so as to permit the most efficient, continuous movement of vessel traffic. It also establishes systems to provide regular preventive maintenance.

Manuals

- Maintenance Procedures
- Operating Procedures
- Contingency Plans for Shipping Emergencies
- Drafting Procedures
- Mechanical Maintenance Procedures
- Lubrication Procedures

Engineering Services Branch

The primary function of the branch is to ensure the integrity and reliability of all lock and canal installations and permit efficient and continuous operation of the Seaway using a highly trained, multi-disciplined staff to deal with civil, mechanical and electrical engineering design requirements, maintenance and repair; to prepare construction contract specifications for structures and facilities of the eastern and western regions and all branches of the Authority; and to offer engineering services to the Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated, the Thousand Islands Bridge Authority, federal and provincial government departments, standards associations and outside consultants.

Manuals

- Standards Manuals and Specifications (Canadian Standards Association, American Society for Testing and Materials, Canadian Institute of Steel Construction) — specifies design criteria and procedures for civil, mechanical, electrical and structural installations
- Engineering Services Branch Co-ordinators — outlines procedures and practices to be followed by project co-ordinators
- Engineering Services Branch Drafting Manual — outlines procedures and practices to be followed by draftspersons

Operations Division, Western Region

The division is responsible for the efficient manning of the vessel traffic control centre and other operating structures to ensure a safe, efficient and expedient movement of vessel traffic in accordance with Authority policy, programs, procedures, approved budgets and applicable federal statutes. The division is also involved in liaison with the shipping trade, United States and Canadian government agencies involved in the operation of the Seaway.

Manuals

- Traffic Control — provides operating procedures for traffic control operations
- Operations — provides operating procedures for structures operations
- Accident Incident and Violation Reporting Procedures — provides instructions for the reporting of accidents, occurring within Authority jurisdiction

Engineering and Maintenance Division, Western Region

The division is responsible for the continuous availability and reliable operation of all structures and Seaway facilities of the western region of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority (SLSA) to ensure safe and expedient movement of vessel traffic in accordance with Authority policy, programs and service objectives. This is achieved by establishing both basic short- and long-term objectives for the division encompassing the essential maintenance, rehabilitation and improvement projects to be carried out.

THE SEAWAY INTERNATIONAL BRIDGE CORPORATION, LTD.

Background

The Seaway International Bridge Corporation, Ltd., successor to the Cornwall International Bridge Company, Ltd., was incorporated by letters patent under the Canada Companies Act on November 13, 1962, and received its certificate of continuance under the new Canada Business Corporations Act on February 20, 1980. This Crown corporation is designated a proprietary corporation (Schedule D) within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act. The company operates and manages an international toll bridge system between Cornwall, Ontario and Rooseveltown, New York, on behalf of the owners — the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority of Canada and the United States Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation. Its head office is located in Cornwall, Ontario.

THE JACQUES CARTIER AND CHAMPLAIN BRIDGES INCORPORATED

Background

The Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated received its certificate of incorporation under the Canada Business Corporations Act on November 3, 1978. The administration and control of the Jacques Cartier Bridge, the Champlain Bridge and a portion of the Bonaventure Autoroute in the Montréal area was transferred to this Corporation from National Harbours Board (Ports Canada) by Order-in-Council P.C. 1978-3139, dated October 12, 1978, as amended, effective December 1, 1978. The Corporation's head office is located in Ottawa, Ontario and its chief place of business is at Longueuil, Québec.

The Jacques Cartier Bridge, which opened to traffic as a toll bridge in 1930, was constructed pursuant to a tripartite agreement between the Montréal Harbour Commissioners, the Québec government and the City of Montréal. The debt outstanding in 1936 was transferred to the National Harbours Board. This bridge has been toll-free since 1962.

The Champlain Bridge was constructed during the years 1958-1962 with the objective of achieving financial viability through the payment of tolls. It was financed by loans and advances from Canada to the National Harbours Board.

Overall Responsibilities

The corporation was established to provide the public with safe and efficient transit over the Jacques Cartier Bridge, the Champlain Bridge and a portion of the Bonaventure Autoroute in Montréal, Québec; and to provide this service while making every effort possible to make the bridges completely self-financing.

Specific objectives of the corporation are:

- to continue the implementation of a program to maintain the bridges and the autoroute at an acceptable standard;
- to ensure operational safety and the efficient flow of traffic;
- to assess the need for improvements to the system and plan for their implementation;
- to develop a long-term financial plan and recommend to cabinet a toll structure which will enable the Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated to achieve financial self-sufficiency;
- to rationalize the capital structure of the corporation by seeking the deletion of its $111 million debt to the Crown; and
- to examine its personnel requirements on a continuing basis to ensure the optimum utilization of human resources.

DEPARTMENT OF SUPPLY AND SERVICES

Background

Created on April 1, 1969, by the Government Organization Act, the Department of Supply and Services (DSS) was formed by amalgamating a variety of functions previously dispersed through a number of departments, offices, and bureaus.

The Department is divided into two administrations: Supply, and Services, under the direction of a deputy minister.

Laws and Regulations

The Minister is responsible for administering the following Acts:

- Defence Production Act, RSC 1970, c. D-2, as amended
- Department of Supply and Services Act, RSC 1970, c. S-18
- Royal Canadian Mint Act, RSC 1970 c. R-8
- Surplus Crown Assets Act, RSC 1970, c. S-20
- Trading With the Enemy (Transitional Powers) Act, RSC 1947, c. 24, as amended
- Public Service Superannuation Act, RSC 1970, c. P-36 as amended

Organization

The Department is headed by a deputy minister, who is supported by four assistant deputy ministers (Supply Operations, Regional Operations, Finance and Administration, and Management and Operational Services); a director general, Program Development and Evaluation; a director general, Organization Development; a director general, Allocations Management; a corporate secretary and general counsel.

Supply Operations Sector

The Supply Operations sector is responsible for providing common services to other government departments and agencies. These services include requirements definition; acquisitions of goods and services; printing, publishing, film and video services, exhibitions and displays; traffic management services; and advertising management.

Within the acquisitions service, it is the sector's responsibility to procure complex technical engineering and science products and services, as well as those that are of a commercial nature. The sector is also responsible for contracting out research and development requirements and for co-ordinating the unsolicited proposals and public awareness programs.

The sector is divided into six directorates, each with specific responsibilities. The directorates are structured to more closely parallel the operational and engineering organization of the Department's customers, with the objective of improving overall service and response time.

The six directorates which make up the Supply Operations sector are: Aerospace and Armament; Communications Services; Industrial and Commercial Products; Marine, Electronics and Industrial Systems; Office Automation, Services and Information Systems; and Science and Professional Services. Their primary role is to provide acquisitions services and focus on total life-cycle management for a specified group of commodities. The organizational structure and representative listing of the type of commodities managed by each is provided below.

Aerospace and Armament

This directorate is responsible for satisfying customer needs in the area of aerospace and armament equipment and services, as well as providing product support within the commodity group. It also oversees the operation of a number of major crown projects. For example: CF-18 Fighter Aircraft; Light Armoured Vehicle (LAV); Drone Systems; Small Arms Replacement; CL-215 Water Bomber Aircraft.

Industrial and Commercial Products

This directorate oversees the operations of three procurement branches, each responsible for the supply management of a grouping of similar products and services. The Consumer Products and Traffic Management Branch is responsible for traffic services; personnel travel and removal services; food; drugs; and clothing and textile products. The Scientific, Electrical, Mechanical and Construction Products Branch is responsible for scientific instruments and laboratory supplies; photographic equipment, construction materials and supplies; construction equipment and tools; and commercially oriented electrical and mechanical products. The Transportation and Energy Products Branch is responsible for land transportation goods (standard and special vehicles); fuels; oils; coal; petroleum lubricants and industrial lubricants. This directorate also oversees the following Major Crown Projects: the Medium Logistics Vehicle Wheeled (MLVW) Project; the ILTIS Project; the Heavy Logistics Vehicles Wheeled (HLVW) Project; and the Northern Terrain Vehicle (NTV) Project.

Marine, Electronics and Industrial Systems

This directorate serves customers' needs for the following type of requirements: marine inspection and design services; acquisition; repair, overhaul and refit of ships; marine equipment; electronic weapons; radar; traffic control; communications, navigation, satellite, security, surveillance, processing, structural, environmental, railroad, nuclear and propulsion systems.

In addition, it is responsible for the Canadian Patrol Frigate (CPF), Ship Replacement Program II (SRPII), Icebreaker, Radar Modernization Project (RAMP), Tribal Class Update Modernization Project (TRUMP), Canadian Airspace Systems Plan (CASP), Infra-red Search and Target Designation System, Canadian Towed Array Sonar Systems (CANTASS) and the Recovery, Assist, Secure and Traverse Systems (RAST) projects.

Office Automation Services and Information Systems (OASIS)

This directorate oversees the operations of three branches: Procurement Operations; Product, Technology and Account Management; and Operations Support.

The Procurement Operations Branch is responsible for goods and services related to automated business, office information processing systems, office equipment, supplies and furniture.

The Product, Technology and Account Management Branch is responsible for the product management of all goods and services within the OASIS mandate; for the merging and emerging technology associated with office automation and for the provision of account management services covering the total OASIS spectrum, while providing a one-stop shopping service to the client departments.

The Operations Support Branch is responsible for the provision of all support services including operations planning, performance measurement and evaluation, special projects, information systems, document control and contract distribution, and sourcing and vendor relations; for the provision of financial services in support of procurement, including cost analysis and vendor financial viability studies; for the provision of administrative services, including personnel, mail and general administration; and for the provision of contract quality control services.

Science and Professional Services

This directorate has three branches: Science, Professional Services, and the Canadian General Standards Board.

The Science Branch provides a focal point in the areas of natural and human sciences, as well as a centre for the receipt and processing of unsolicited proposals from the private sector. It is responsible for the following services: mission-oriented research and development; feasibility studies in natural science; ongoing and new sciences and technologies; scientific data collection; scientific testing and standardization; human and social sciences; urban; regional and transportation studies.

The Professional Services Branch contracts for many diverse services — consulting services, office temporary help, aerial surveying, air charter, aerial spraying, forest fire-fighting, security services and writing, editing, audio visual and language training services.

The Canadian General Standards Board, by means of a voluntary consensus process, provides standardization and certification programs covering products, services and systems, to all levels of government and the private sector.

Communications Services Directorate

The Communications Services Directorate serves the communication and information community in federal departments and agencies through the provision of printing, publishing, advertising, expositions, and film and video services.

Canadian Government Printing Services provides copying, duplicating and printing services to Parliament and government departments for those requirements which cannot be satisfied more effectively by commercial printers because of cost, urgency, security, sensitivity or close liaison considerations.

The Printing Supply Branch is responsible for the procurement, in the most effective manner possible, of printing, typesetting and printing-related services on behalf of government departments and agencies. Canadian suppliers are invited to bid on government requirements through daily postings on bulletin boards located in the National Capital Region as well as in many regional offices of the Department across Canada. They may also be invited to tender through direct mailing. To serve the specialized needs of government departments, the Printing Supply Branch maintains a current list of approximately 1,000 qualified suppliers.

The Canadian Government Publishing Centre co-ordinates the publishing activities of departments and agencies of the Government of Canada, with the objective of effectively and efficiently maximizing public awareness of government policies, programs and services. The centre's activities include a telephone referral service which enables Canadians nationwide to call the federal government and obtain information on government services, free of charge.

The Advertising Management Services Branch co-ordinates the contracting activity for advertising services on behalf of government. The branch contracts for advertising agency services and for the purchase of media space and time through the Agency of Record; performs central auditing; account payment and billing services; and maintains an advertising management information system.

The Canadian Government Expositions Centre provides departments and agencies with a wide range of signage and exhibits, and associated audio-visual services required for exhibition and display purposes. These services are made in-house, as well as purchased from the private sector, both at home and abroad.

The Canadian Government Film and Video Centre provides federal government departments with consulting, production and administrative services in the audio-visual arts. It also provides state-of-the-art photo developing, printing and related services, and performs practical field research to assist government departments with special photographic needs.

Regional Operations Sector

The Regional Operations sector is responsible for the provision of all services offered by the Supply and Services administration at the local level both in Canada and abroad.

In addition, through its Export Supply Branch, the sector is responsible for providing, on behalf of the Canadian Commercial Corporation, contracting and contract management services for the provision of Canadian goods and services to foreign governments and international agencies.

To deliver its services, the Regional Operations sector is currently divided into five directorates: International Operations; Atlantic Region; Québec Region; Central Region; and Western Region.

Regional Directorates

The four regional directorates are the largest component of the sector, employing approximately 4,000 people and operating from over 100 locations across Canada. These directorates are responsible for the provision of services from both a supply and services perspective at the local level and have regional headquarters located in Calgary, Alberta; Hull, Québec; Montréal, Québec; and Halifax, Nova Scotia.

The Regional Supply Centres are located in Richmond, British Columbia; Edmonton, Alberta; Winnipeg, Manitoba; Etobicoke, Ontario; Ottawa, Ontario; Montréal, Québec; and Dartmouth, Nova Scotia; and are generally comprised of a regional office, district and sub-purchasing offices, printing plants, copy centres and self-service stores.

In addition to providing acquisition and printing services which are also available from headquarters directorates of the Operations sector, this directorate also provides other unique services including stocked item supply; self-service stores; warehousing; maintenance and repair; assets management and disposal.

The Regional Services Branches are located in Edmonton, Alberta; Ottawa, Ontario; Québec City, Québec; and Halifax, Nova Scotia; and are generally comprised of a regional office and district services offices. In addition, specialized divisions exist in Shediac, New Brunswick for superannuation and in Ottawa for National Capital Region pay operations.

International Operations Branch

The International Operations Branch carries out, on behalf of the Canadian Commercial Corporation, contracting and contract management services for the provision of Canadian goods and services to foreign governments and international agencies. The branch also provides functional direction to headquarters directorates on all export supply matters and seeks export opportunities for the Canadian private sector.

The European Region with its headquarters in London, England, is responsible for serving the needs of customer departments located in Canada, as well as federal agencies overseas. Its major client is the Canadian Forces European Command, for which it carries out commercial and engineering acquisitions. In common with their counterparts throughout the Department, procurement officers in the European Region are alert to purchases that could be made from Canadian sources, and when this is possible, they refer such requirements to the appropriate Canadian region or branch. Efforts are also made to support European industry in the licensing, co-production or transfer of technology and production capability to Canada.

The London office is responsible for procurements from the Scandinavian countries and all of Europe except Germany, France and Belgium. A district purchasing office in Koblenz, West Germany, buys from these latter three countries. In addition to the specialized items available only in Europe that are required by government clients in Canada and overseas, the office in Koblenz buys the everyday goods and services needed by the Canadian NATO bases at Lahr and Baden-Soellingen, West Germany.

The United States Region with its office in Washington, D.C., is responsible for maintaining government-to-government contact with the United States for the purchase of specialized Canadian requirements in aerospace technology and armaments. In addition, this region's role has recently been enhanced to include source development, providing more efficient access to DSS sourcing information on Canadian capabilities, and assistance to the Export Supply Branch in its export endeavours.

Crown Assets Disposal Corporation

The Corporation provides a specialized service to government departments, agencies and crown corporations in the disposal of their surplus material located in Canada and abroad. It acts as agent for the United States, British and other governments in the sale of their surplus assets located in Canada, and has arrangements with certain European governments for the disposal of Canadian military surplus located in their countries.

Manuals

Various manuals, catalogues and plans are either produced or used by the above sectors as working documents and tools. In addition, other publications, are generated to assist clients to do business with DSS and understand its organization and systems. A sample listing of such publications follows:

- Supply Policy Manual
- Delegation of Authorities Manual
- Customer Manual
- Regional Operations Manual
- Specification and User Manual for Computer Assisted Publishing System (CAPS)
- Advertising Management System — ADMASS User Guide

- Guidelines for the Preparation of Unsolicited Proposals for Scientific and Technology Work
- Policy and Procedures for the Preparation of Standards
- National Certification Program
- Manufacturer's Inspection System Requirements
- Contractor's Certification Programs, Policy and Procedures.

Finance and Administration Sector

This sector provides direction and control for the Department in the following functional areas: finance, administration, security and contractual dispute resolution. In the area of finance, responsibilities include contract cost and financial review, resource analysis, financial policy, accounting services and statistical information, and data management. In administration, responsibilities include policy development, forms and graphics management, materiel management, facilities management, library services, telecommunications, records management, and mail and messenger services. The Security Branch has responsibility for departmental and industrial security with specialist groups supporting physical security and fire safety, personnel security clearance, and data processing and communications security functions. The chairman of the Contracts Settlement Board is responsible for contractual dispute resolution and settlement, and providing qualitative analysis with respect to contracts for the Department's dispute avoidance program.

United Way Advisory Committee

The Committee provides assistance and guidance to the federal government United Way Campaign organizations on administrative and financial matters.

Manuals

- United Way Campaigns: A Guide for Managers

Security Branch

The branch meets the Canadian government's national and international industrial security commitments; provides a broad range of internal security services including physical and personnel security and classified information protection; conducts a personnel security clearance program for the Department and industry; and manages the departmental data processing and Communications Security Program.

Manuals

- Industrial Security Manual — produced exclusively as a guide to industry, containing instructions dealing with the control of classified information, for use by company officials and security officers.

Management and Operational Services Sector

Reporting to an assistant deputy minister, the Management and Operational Services sector was created through a consolidation of the functions of the former Management Services Sector, together with the Data Processing and Compensation Service Branches and most of the Management Information Systems Directorate from the Supply Administration. The new sector consists of the Information Systems Directorate, the Compensation and Payment Services Directorate, the Government of Canada Banking and Accounting Directorate, the Audit Service Bureau, and the Bureau of Management Consulting.

The primary concern of this sector is to maintain service levels to clients, both within and external to the Department, in the most cost-effective and efficient manner possible. The sector is responsible for liaising with all Department clients in matters pertaining to compensation, personnel, and financial and payment services. In addition, the sector is responsible for the auditing and consulting services for all federal government departments, Crown corporations, agencies, boards, commissions and non-governmental organizations on a cost-recovery basis.

The sector also has the mandate to carry out the banking and accounting responsibilities of the Receiver General for Canada (i.e. the Consolidated Revenue Fund, the Central Accounting System, the Public Accounts and cheque redemption).

Compensation and Payments Services Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the planning, policy and systems development associated with the processing of various payments, such as public service pay and superannuation, social and economic assistance payments, and suppliers' payments. In addition, related file maintenance and accounting services are provided on behalf of client departments and agencies. The directorate is also responsible for payment policies and regulations, and new payment methods and technologies.

Manuals

Operational procedures manuals, prepared in co-operation with other departments and agencies, on pay, pension and socioeconomic programs, include:

- Pay Policy and Procedures Manual
- Superannuation Administration Manual
- Insurance Administration Manual
- Family Allowance Program Policy and Procedures Manual

Audit Service Bureau

The bureau provides on request, through regional offices across the country and head office in Ottawa, a full range of auditing services to client departments and agencies on a professional fee-for-service basis. There are offices in nine major Canadian centres (in addition to the one in Ottawa), and one in London, England.

Manuals

- Audit Manual
- Introduction to Operational Auditing
- A Structured Methodology for the Conduct of Comprehensive Auditing
- Electronic Data Processing Audit Methodology

Government of Canada Banking and Accounting Directorate

The directorate carries out the responsibilities of the Receiver General for the public money and banking program and the central accounting program. In carrying out these programs, the directorate performs the following Receiver General functions: receives, transfers and disburses all public money; holds all public money in Receiver General bank accounts; directs the Receiver General's program to earn interest on balances; controls the redemption of Receiver

General cheques and warrants; establishes, maintains and develops the Central Accounts of Canada; produces the Public Accounts annually; publishes the monthly Statement of Financial Operations of the Government of Canada which shows the budgetary expenditures and revenues, and the non-budgetary transactions of the government (reproduced in the Canada Gazette); prepares special reports to the central agencies, and provides financial statements to departments and agencies. It also produces and distributes to client departments, upon request, management statements on a monthly basis. In addition, the directorate carries out the responsibilities of the Custodian of Enemy Property.

Program Development and Evaluation Directorate

The Program Development and Evaluation Directorate is responsible for the co-ordination of all corporate and program planning activities; the development, review and implementation of corporate policies; the maintenance of an adequate defence industrial base, pursuant to the Department's responsibilities under the Defence Production Act, including the co-ordination of related emergency planning; the contract quality assurance function within DSS, and for assisting customer departments in the establishment of appropriate quality assurance régimes in connection with their delegated purchasing authority; and the evaluation of departmental programs.

Canadian Arsenals Limited

Canadian Arsenals Limited is a legally chartered Crown corporation under Part I of the 1934 Companies Act. It was incorporated by the Dominion of Canada under letters of patent dated September 20, 1945, on the recommendation of the then Minister of Reconstruction.

The company's main role is to maintain in Canada a centre of excellence for the filling and loading of high explosives and propellants, and a production capacity for medium- and large-calibre ammunition and additional military material for Canadian defence needs, and to form the base from which production capacity could be expanded in the event of war.

Royal Canadian Mint

The Ottawa Mint was originally established in 1908 by Royal Proclamation as a branch of the Royal Mint, London, under the provisions of the United Kingdom Coinage Act. In 1931, the Mint was established under statute as a branch of the Department of Finance. In 1969, the Mint was established as a Crown corporation under Part X of the Government Organization Act, 1969 (now the Royal Canadian Mint Act, RSC 1970, c. R-8).

TARIFF BOARD

Background

The Tariff Board was established by the Tariff Board Act in 1931. It is both an independent commission of enquiry into matters of tariff and trade and a quasi-judicial court of appeal under the Customs Act, Excise Tax Act, Anti-dumping Act and Petroleum Administration Act.

Overall Responsibilities

In its role as a commission of enquiry, the Board undertakes specific trade studies at the request of the Minister of Finance. Its recommendations on rates of duty and changes in the tariff structure are used by the government in preparing budgets or changes in tariff or excise tax legislation.

In its role as a court, the Board hears appeals resulting from final decisions made by the deputy minister of National Revenue for Customs and Excise on tariff classification, valuation of goods for customs purposes and federal sales tax. The Board's powers were recently extended to include the hearing of appeals on charges levied on exports of petroleum and petroleum products.

The Board itself does not initiate enquiries. These are undertaken as a result of a reference from the Minister of Finance. In conducting an enquiry, the Board's staff of economists and statisticians is assigned the task of gathering and analyzing data. Meanwhile, the Board invites the submission of briefs and holds regional public hearings at which the views of importers, manufacturers and consumers can be heard.

During the course of an enquiry the Board may publish and distribute background papers and analytical material to encourage informed discussions of the subject under review. Confidential information on prices, costs or other data is frequently provided to the Board in the course of enquiries and is treated in strictest confidence. The Tariff Board Act states that such information "shall not be made public in such manner as to be available for the use of any business competitor or rival." On completion of the enquiry, a report is prepared containing the Board's conclusions and recommendations on rates of duty, the wording of tariff items and any other matters referred to the Board in the Minister's letter of reference. The report is printed and forwarded to the Minister of Finance. At this point it becomes a public document which can be obtained by any interested person.

Access Procedures

Formal enquiries under the Access to Information Act should be addressed to

Appeals Branch

This branch is responsible for all appeals to the Board. In its role as a court of appeal, panels of three members of the Board hold public hearings and render decisions on certain final rulings made by the deputy minister of National Revenue for Customs and Excise, as described below.

- An appeal to the Board may be made from a final decision of the deputy minister on tariff classification or value for duty under Section 47 of the Customs Act.
- A decision of the same deputy minister on the normal value of goods may be appealed to the Board under Section 19 of the Anti-dumping Act.
- The Board may declare what rate of federal sales tax is payable on an article or on transportation by air, or that the article or transportation by air is exempt from tax under the Excise Tax Act.
- The Board may also declare whether any charge is payable or as to the amount of the charges payable on the exportation of any oils or any petroleum or petroleum products under the Petroleum Administration Act.

On any appeal, the Board hears the parties and then prepares a written declaration stating what classification or value for duty is applicable to the specific goods under appeal; or what rate of federal sales tax is payable; or that the goods are exempted from tax. A declaration of the Tariff Board is final and conclusive subject only to appeal to the Federal Court of Canada on any question of law.

Although many appellants are represented at a hearing by counsel or by a customs consultant, an appellant may conduct his or her own case. The rules of the Board are informal in order to keep it a court of easy access. The Board publishes An Informal Guide for Parties in Appeals Before the Tariff Board, which is available without charge from the secretary. Appeals are heard in the Board's courtroom in Ottawa, and from time to time, in major cities in western Canada and the Atlantic provinces.

Any person who has an interest in a subject under appeal before the Board may appear at the hearing as an intervenant and be heard.

There are no court costs or charges for a Tariff Board hearing.

Reference Branch

This branch is responsible for economic enquiries on imports. At the request of the Minister of Finance it carries out such enquiries on matters affecting the trade of Canada, invites the submission of briefs and holds public hearings at which the views of importers, manufacturers and consumers can be heard. It also hears petitions from Canadian producers requesting safeguard action in respect of imports under the General Preferential Tariff. The Board is usually directed to recommend appropriate levels of duty and tariff nomenclature in its report to the Minister, which must, by law, be tabled in Parliament. Its recommendations are used by the government in making amendments to Schedule A of the Customs Tariff Act and the Customs Act.

Background

The Department of Transport was established in 1936 by the Department of Transport Act (RSC 1970, c. T-15), which amalgamated the functions of the Department of Railways and Canals, the Department of Marine and the Civil Aviation Branch of the Department of National Defence. The Minister of Transport has jurisdiction over all government railways and canals (except the Trent and Rideau canals), and has the same powers as were vested in the Minister of Marine with respect to navigation and shipping matters, and the Minister of National Defence with respect to civil aviation, before amalgamation. Additional powers are vested in the Minister by a number of other statutes and regulations.

Overall Responsibilities

The Department attends to the development and operation of a safe and efficient national transportation system that contributes to the achievement of general government objectives, and operates specific elements of that system. This broad role-statement recognizes certain important objectives: efficiency, safety, maximum productivity, accessible and equitable services, cost recovery, and support of government policies and objectives, especially as they relate to social and economic development.

Crown Corporations

The following agencies report to Parliament through the Minister of Transport:

- Canadian Transport Commission
- Air Canada, Canadian National Railways, Northern Transportation Co. Ltd. and VIA Rail (not covered by the Access to Information Act)
- The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, Canada Ports Corporation and the Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific Pilotage Authorities (reporting through the Administrator of the Canadian Marine Transportation Administration)

Organization

The Department is headed by the deputy minister of Transport who is supported by an associate deputy minister; the director general, Review; the director, Departmental Security; and by heads of operational and staff groups.

The Department's three administration groups are air transportation, marine transportation, and surface transportation.

Planning and co-ordination functions are carried out by a group headed by the assistant deputy minister, Planning and Co-ordination. Policy advice and support relating to the management and administration of departmental resources are provided by an assistant deputy minister, Personnel, and an assistant deputy minister, Finance.

The director general, Public Affairs, reports directly to the deputy minister, and the departmental general counsel provides legal services for the Department at the instruction of the deputy minister.

Library and Information Centre

The role of the Library and Information Centre, with respect to access to departmental records, is to provide systematic and comprehensive access to sources of information generated by the Department in any medium. The library fulfils this function in five ways:

- by serving as a place to request information and receive it;
- by functioning as a central system where most internally generated materials are deposited, bibliographically controlled, catalogued and indexed;
- by providing a bibliographic database to determine what information there is relating to a specific question (this database is available for consultation on the premises, for distribution in microfiche at cost and for computerized access through the Canadian On-Line Enquiry System operated by the Canadian Institute for Scientific and Technical Information);
- by providing facilities for consultation or more extensive research in the form of microform readers, carrels or desks; and
- by acting as an internal referral mechanism to ensure that requests are followed up, particularly when it is not clear to individuals or organizations to which address requests should be forwarded.

Library and information services are available at the following addresses:

General Information

Public Affairs

Public Affairs forecasts and analyzes probable reaction to existing and proposed departmental plans, policies and programs. It is responsible for providing support for the implementation of the Department's aims and objectives by handling media relations and public information programs, including advertising, special publications and exhibits. It provides general information about the Department through headquarters facilities in Ottawa and regional offices in St. John's, Dartmouth, Moncton, Montréal, Québec City, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton and Vancouver. Contact may be made in person, by phone, or by writing to the public affairs officers at one of the following addresses:

Deputy Minister

Overall responsibility for the direction of the affairs of the Department rests with the deputy minister, who is its permanent head and senior advisor to the Minister of Transport.

Associate Deputy Minister

The associate deputy minister advises the deputy minister on resource allocations and on the management of the Department. He or she provides the deputy minister with briefings on current issues and activities that have implications for the department as a whole, and provides direction for departmental programming, training, personnel planning, security, audit, review and evaluation activities. The associate deputy minister acts as liaison between the Minister of Transport and Crown corporations reporting to the Minister, and may represent the Department in negotiations with industry, other departments, other levels of government and foreign states. He or she is assisted by the director general, Review, and the director, Departmental Security.

Review Directorate

The director general, Review (DGR) provides the deputy minister and senior management with independent reviews and appraisals of departmental systems, functions and organizational units in order to improve the efficiency, economy and effectiveness of the management policies, practices and controls of the Department. The DGR also provides the deputy minister and senior management with independent assessments and studies on the effectiveness of departmental accountability. The DGR fosters and promotes the development and implementation of performance measures through the provisions of policy, guidance and advice. The Review Group develops and co-ordinates the departmental productivity improvement program, validates human resource level standards and conducts special studies as directed by senior management. The group is assisted by the director of Policy, Planning, Methodology and Quality Control, the chief of Performance Measurement, the chief of Accountability Improvement Measures Planning and Implementation, the director of Internal Audit, and the director of Program Evaluation. DGR is also responsible for the departmental challenge function, which entails the assessment of all proposals with resource implications, prior to their submission to the Minister, Treasury Board or Cabinet.

Security Directorate

The branch administers departmental security policies. This includes administration of security, security of information, physical as well as technical and personnel security, and security inspections, audits and reviews.

CO-ORDINATION AND SERVICES

Assistant Deputy Minister

The overall guidance for strategic planning and the conduct of long-term multimodal planning to respond to future needs and problems, together with the co-ordination of all internal and external activities and relations of Transport Canada, are the responsibility of the assistant deputy minister of Planning and Co-ordination (ADMPC). Within the Department, the ADMPC co-ordinates policies, programs and objectives having multimodal implications, develops policies and procedures governing the transportation of dangerous goods, develops and implements technological research, provides advice to the Minister on policy issues regarding transport Crown corporations and provides support and secretariat services to the Minister and deputy minister. He or she is supported by four directorates: Planning and Policy, Co-ordination, Dangerous Goods, and Research and Development; and one branch, the Departmental Secretariat, which includes the Access to Information and Privacy Co-ordination.

Planning and Policy

This directorate prepares and monitors corporate-level strategic plans; co-ordinates and functionally directs all the main planning activities within the Department; directs the development of long-range multimodal transportation objectives and policies; provides policy analysis services and advice on multimodal transportation issues; prepares national and regional multimodal transportation forecasts; monitors and analyzes transportation systems and formulation of system strategies; and ensures an adequate level of university research and training in transportation.

Co-ordination

Co-ordination directs departmental responses to complex issues that involve several departmental groups; co-ordinates the Department's federal, provincial, industrial, and international relations; negotiates and manages economic and regional development transportation sub-agreements; develops policies and programs concerned with transportation facilities for the handicapped; co-ordinates, analyses and advises on matters concerning Crown corporations and in connection with appeals against Canadian Transport Commission rulings.

Transport of Dangerous Goods

The directorate administers the national program relating to the transportation of dangerous goods; formulates and recommends policies, standards and means of implementing the regulations governing the handling, offering for transport, transportation and in-transit storage of dangerous goods for all modes of transport throughout Canada. It also operates CANUTEC, the 24 hours a day emergency response and information centre for chemical transportation accidents.

Research and Development

Research and Development plans, programs and manages the central transportation research and development program addressing the Department's operational and regulatory mandate as well as the safety and productivity aspects of the transportation sector as a whole. This program includes the departmental multimodal initiatives such as Energy Research and Development, and Transportation of the Handicapped and Elderly research, development and demonstration. The directorate is also responsible for transportation research and development policy, strategic planning, co-ordination and evaluation within the federal government.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

Departmental Secretariat

The secretariat provides comprehensive co-ordination systems for the development and scheduling of policies through the departmental and Cabinet decision-making process, and prepares parliamentary returns as well as advisory and briefing services for the Minister, the deputy minister and senior departmental officials. The director is the departmental co-ordinator for privacy, access to information, and human rights, and maintains a central consolidated registry of departmental statutes and regulations. The government paperburden reduction program in Transport Canada is co-ordinated by the secretariat. The secretariat also co-ordinates the receipt and distribution of crisis information on natural and man-made disasters and the departmental emergency planning activity, pursuant to the federal government's Emergency Planning Order.

Assistant Deputy Minister — Personnel

The development and implementation of all departmental personnel policies and programs is planned and directed by the assistant deputy minister, Personnel (ADMP), whose responsibility it is to ensure the effective recruitment, utilization and retention of human resources in the Department. The ADMP advises on all matters pertaining to personnel administration, co-ordinates and directs departmental training activities, including those undertaken by the Transport Canada Training Institute and the Coast Guard College, and has overall responsibility for employee relations within the Department. He or she is supported by two directorates: Personnel, and Training; and two branches: personnel planning and programs, and labour relations.

Assistant Deputy Minister — Finance

The assistant deputy minister, Finance (ADMF), provides the deputy minister with systems of financial management, materiel management, contract management and review. The ADMF supplies management consulting services, computer services, library and information services, administrative and budgetary services; and advises the deputy on financial matters affecting the Department and the Crown corporations reporting to the Minister of Transport. He or she is supported by six directors: materiel and contracting services, management systems, communications and informatics, financial administration, financial planning and programming, and administrative services.

Canadian Air Transportation Administration (CATA)

The administrator directs the management of all operational, developmental, and regulatory activities of the administration in support of aeronautics, and maintains and promotes all aspects of air safety. On behalf of the Minister, CATA administers Part I of the Aeronautics Act, and provides the Minister with economic and policy advice under Part II of the Act.

The administrator is assisted by a deputy administrator, five assistant administrators, two directors general, one director, and six regional administrators.

CATA is divided into seven directorates and one branch: aviation regulation, airports and construction, air navigation, flight services, resource management, policy and strategic planning, international aviation, and the policy co-ordination and administration branch.

The administration provides and operates the airports, navigational aids and related facilities that allow aircraft of all types and sizes to operate in all parts of Canada. In order that they may do so safely, CATA develops and enforces technical and safety regulations. It employs about 13,000 people and has a budget of approximately $1 billion.

Role of the Six Regional Administrators

Reporting to both the administrator and the deputy administrator, the regional administrators direct the management, administration and implementation of policies, programs and services within the regions, related to such functions as airport activities, air navigation services, aviation regulation requirements, construction services, public affairs, and administration designed to provide safe and efficient air services and facilities to members of the public and the aviation community.

AIR TRANSPORTATION

Air Navigation

The directorate provides, operates, and maintains Canada's air navigation system, which consists of a national system of airways, air traffic services and aeronautical information services. The airway system is based on the strategic deployment of radio navigation aids and consists of some 120 omni-directional radio ranges and 203 non-directional beacons. In addition, there are some 89 precision approach radio aids and 32 non-precision approach radio aids at principal airports.

Air traffic services include air traffic control provided at 60 towers, eight terminal control units and seven area control centres using some 35 surveillance radars, and many air-to-ground radio communication channels. It also includes a network of some 120 flight services stations that provide weather, traffic, and other information to aircraft.

An aeronautical information service, that consists of pre-flight and in-flight information necessary for pilots to conduct safe and efficient flights in all flying conditions, is provided by the directorate through a distributed national organization that collects and distributes the necessary information.

The directorate plans, implements, monitors, and evaluates the performance of all aspects of the air navigation system. It also develops contingency plans for dealing with crisis situations affecting the system. The directorate is divided into five branches: program review and analysis, air navigation system requirements, air traffic services, facility engineering and systems development, and air operations contingencies.

Air Navigation System Requirements

The branch develops national policies, standards and procedures for the planning, implementation, operation and monitoring of the air navigation systems. The branch provides an aeronautical information service in support of safe and efficient flight, and monitors the performance of navigation aids and other components of the air navigation services system.

Air Traffic Services

The branch develops and implements national policies for air traffic services and establishes systems and goals necessary to achieve the safe and efficient movement of air traffic within Canadian-controlled airspace and International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) airspace. It includes the Air Traffic Services Research and Experimental Centre in Hull, Québec.

Facility Engineering and Systems Development

This branch is responsible for the co-ordination and effective utilization of telecommunications and electronics resources in the service and aid of civil aviation, to ensure the safety and efficiency of all flights operating in Canadian airspace, including the development and implementation of the national Flight Service Station (FSS) activity. The director is also responsible for the design, development, installation, and maintenance of all electronic and computer-based systems required on a national basis to provide navigational, surveillance communications, airport security, and information systems.

Airports and Construction

The directorate plans, designs, constructs, operates, and maintains airport facilities, as well as associated marketing activities. The Airports and Construction directorate operates a national airport system that includes large airports such as Toronto's Lester B. Pearson International as well as small Arctic airstrips such as Coral Harbour, Northwest Territories. These airports represent approximately $6 billion in physical assets, in terms of their replacement value.

The administration owns a total of 156 land aerodromes, operating and maintaining about 105 of them through its own resources. On-site responsibilities range from operating terminal buildings to maintaining runways and emergency facilities to ensure the safe movement of passengers and goods.

The administration also provides several programs of financial assistance to other airports. At present, some 143 receive funding for capital programs and/or to support their operations and maintenance. This funding supports 46 Arctic sites, 29 remote sites being developed under federal-provincial agreements, 30 local/commercial airports, and 38 others. In addition, consultant services are provided to a number of other countries to assist them in their airport development.

The directorate establishes policies and standards for safe and efficient airport facilities and services, provides functional direction and support to regions in these areas, and directs the development of plans and programs affecting the future of the National Airports System. It is divided into seven branches: administration and contracts; marketing; policy planning and programming; airport facilities; airport services and security; airport professional services; and airport program review and analysis.

Manuals

- Publications Originated in Airports and Construction TP-2725 Manual AK-07-09-001, January 1984 — 120 pages of airport and construction publications

International Aviation Directorate

The directorate is responsible for technical relations with civil aviation authorities in the United States, the United Kingdom, France and other countries, and with international organizations such as International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), NATO, and the International Air Transport Association (IATA).

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

Flight Services

The directorate is responsible for the department's fleet of 90 fixed wing and rotary wing aircraft. These aircraft are assigned to various tasks across Canada, such as the calibration of air navigational aids, ice reconnaissance, inspection and training, joint operations with the Canadian Coast Guard, environmental protection against oil spills, transportation of Cabinet ministers, and the transportation of foreign dignitaries travelling in Canada.

The directorate also provides flight services for other federal departments and agencies such as Energy, Mines and Resources, and the Marine Administration of Transport Canada.

- Helicopter Maintenance Engineer Shipboard Manual TP-4986
- Flight Operations Manual — Fixed Wing Aircraft TP-3463

Aviation Regulation

The directorate is responsible for all aspects of aviation safety, including the preparation and enforcement of legislation, security planning and programming, licensing of personnel, aircraft and airports, and certification of air services, establishing and maintaining airworthiness standards, promoting aviation safety, and regulating the transportation of dangerous goods.

The directorate licenses all pilots, commercial operators, flying schools, airports, aircrafts, aircraft manufacturers and maintenance personnel. (There are 72,000 licensed pilots and more than 24,000 aircrafts registered in Canada.) The system of airways and air routes is second only in size to that of the United States. Aviation regulation inspectors regularly examine all people and equipment they license to ensure that they meet safety standards and comply with air regulations.

Consistent with the administration's emphasis on safety, the directorate conducts analytical studies into the nature and degree of safety deficiencies in the air transport system. These studies set priorities in the development and delivery of extensive national education and promotion programs aimed at safety motivation within the industry.

The directorate is divided into seven branches: licensing and certification, airworthiness, aviation safety programs, civil aviation security, enforcement and legislation, aviation medicine, program review and analysis.

Licensing and Certification

The branch is responsible for standards, policies, procedures, and national programs for efficient promotion and regulation control of civil aviation activities in Canada.

Airworthiness

The branch is responsible for the management of airworthiness programs, approvals and the continuing safety of all civil aeronautical products manufactured and operated in Canada and the continuing airworthiness support for all Canadian manufactured aeronautics products used in foreign countries.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

Aviation Safety Programs

The branch administers national programs to detect, define, and advise on aviation safety deficiencies. It provides aviation safety advice and guidance on the National Air Transportation System (NATS) to ensure corrective action and to develop a safety promotion program with industry to support the prevention of accidents and incidents in NATS.

Civil Aviation Security

This branch is responsible for ensuring that the appropriate level of aviation security is being provided for the travelling public by Canadian carriers, Canadian airports, foreign carriers operating in Canada, and foreign airports being used by carriers coming into Canada.

Enforcement and Legislation

This branch is responsible for the legislative development, promulgation and codification of aeronautical legislation, including the implementation of recommendations of a legislative nature made by the Commission of Enquiry on Aviation Safety, the development and management of the Aeronautical Regulatory Enforcement Program and for the Aeronautical Bilingualization Program and to carry out a substantive review and revamping of aeronautical legislation and the attendant enforcement policies and procedures.

Civil Aviation Medicine

This branch provides medical advice and assistance in setting standards for civil aviation personnel and advises on all problems connected with the health of travellers by air.

Resource Management Directorate

The directorate manages the resources of the administration. It prepares the long-term operational plan and is responsible for resource analysis, resource planning, resource programming and evaluation. In addition, it operates the financial planning, budgeting, and administration process to determine the short- and medium-term resource implications for the achievement of these air transportation objectives and activities of the administration. The directorate co-ordinates the resource management process and advises the administrator on the quality, cost and effectiveness of plans, policies and resource allocations for the safe and efficient operation of the National Civil Air Transportation System.

The directorate supervises the recovery of operating costs from the users of the civil aviation system. These revenues come from the Air Transportation Tax, airport space rentals and concessions, aircraft landing fees as well as recoveries from other government programs for services provided by the administration.

Policy and Strategic Planning Directorate

The directorate develops policies related to the economic aspects of domestic and international civil aviation. The directorate provides the aviation activity statistics and forecasts needed to manage and plan the air transportation program, and advises the Minister on issues relating to the economic regulation of the air carrier industry and on international air negotiations. The directorate is also responsible for the planning framework and guides the administration's strategic planning process.

The directorate is divided into five branches: domestic policy, international policy, planning, statistics and forecasts, economic analysis and evaluation.

Manuals

Policy Co-ordination and Administration Branch

The branch co-ordinates government and industry relations for the administration, provides policy advice on short-term issues, and general administrative assistance to the air administrator and regional administrators.

MARINE TRANSPORTATION

Administration

The administration groups into one corporate entity the various marine agencies responsible for providing and operating marine terminal route infrastructure facilities, services management of all operational, developmental, and regulatory activities of the department in support of marine transportation, and the development of ports and marine commerce in Canada. The administrator is assisted by a deputy, the Commissioner of the Canadian Coast Guard, the director general, Ports and Harbours, the chairman of the Canada Ports Corporation, the president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, and the chairmen of the four pilotage authorities (Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes, and Pacific).

In particular, the administrator formulates and implements marine transportation policies, programs, and directives; ensures the efficient operation of marine way and terminal facilities, marine traffic management and pilotage services; and is responsible for providing a fleet of ships in support of navigation and the Arctic re-supply activity. These responsibilities are carried out by a headquarters administrative unit, by ports and harbours, marine policy and co-ordination, programming and finance, shipping policy, operations review and emergency planning, and contract administration.

The Canadian Coast Guard's responsibilities include the provision of such services as aids to navigation, telecommunications and ship movement systems, ship safety, including search-and-rescue, icebreaking and all regulatory activities concerning the design, construction and maintenance of ships, and the safety of personnel and cargoes, pollution prevention and marine casualty investigation. The main sub-divisions that carry out these functions are aids and waterways, telecommunications and electronics, fleet systems, ship safety and search-and-rescue. ## Ports and Harbours

The branch plans and administers public port facilities serving commercial water transportation interests, and provides functional direction to the regions in these areas. It also ensures that the development and conduct of harbour commission programs are co-ordinated with the various related activities of the department and other federal government departments.

Marine Policy and Co-ordination

The directorate advises and makes recommendations to departmental senior officials and other federal departments on all major policies concerning national shipping and the provision of marine services and facilities, as well as for directing and co-ordinating the assessment of the impact of those policies. It also responds to matters arising out of current policies relating to marine services and facilities and in so doing, establishes and maintains contacts with other levels of government for the purposes of negotiations and liaison. In addition the directorate is responsible for the development and co-ordination of major domestic and international maritime policies that provide an appropriate commercial operating environment for Canada's marine and shipping industry.

Marine Casualty Investigations

This unit develops and recommends policies on the investigation of marine casualties, conducts investigations and recommends policies on the conduct and competence of certificated officers and pilots. It also prepares and implements a national program for the preservation, protection and disposal of wrecks.

Fleet Systems

The branch develops national policies and plans for the composition, operation and maintenance of the Canadian Coast Guard Fleet, which provides shipping with ice-breaking and ice-escort services, and gives support to other functions, such as aids to navigation, and participates in research and sea rescue activities.

Standard instructions pertaining to all activities of the ships and other components of the Canadian Coast Guard fall under Fleet Systems responsibility.

Manuals

- Canadian Coast Guard Fleet Logistic Instructions
- Eastern Arctic Sealift Co-ordination Plan: Eastern Arctic Sealift
- Canadian Coast Guard Fleet Orders
- Procedural Manual for CCG Ship Refit, Repairs, Alterations and Additions and Drydocking
- Ship Activity Reporting System Manual, Amendment No. 1
- Canadian Coast Guard Shipboard Helicopter Information and Procedures Manual
- Guide to the Inspection of the Supply Function in Ships of the Canadian Coast Guard in which a Logistic Officer is Borne by Complement
- Canadian Coast Guard Arctic Operation Order

Search and Rescue

The branch develops, maintains, and ensures the efficient operation of facilities and services to minimize loss of life and personal injuries in the marine environment as a result of search-and-rescue incidents.

Ship Safety

The branch develops and applies safety standards for the design, construction, operations and maintenance of ships and air-cushion vehicles, for their machinery and equipment, for navigation, for handling and stowage of cargo, for the qualification and certification of ship and air-cushion vehicle personnel, and for the prevention of pollution by ships. It also participates in the development of international codes, conventions and regulations concerning marine safety, and maintains registries of vessels and ships' personnel.

Manuals

- Guide for Customs Officers — Canada Shipping Act
- Standards for Radio Installations and Related Equipment, 1981
- Standard Marine Navigational Vocabulary
- Ship Safety Electrical Standards
- Structural Fire Protection Standards
- List of Approved Products: Hulls Inspection and Standards
- Standard for the Control of Gas Hazards in Vessels to be Repaired or Altered
- Standards Respecting Noise Control and Hearing Protection in Canadian Towboats over 15 Tons, Gross Tonnage
- Marine Automation Standards, Standards for Remote and Automated Control Systems in Ships

- Equivalent Standards for Fire Protection of Passenger Ships
- Guide to Helicopter/Ship Operations
- TERMPOL Code (2nd edition) Code of Recommended Standards for the Safety and Prevention of Pollution for Marine Transportation Systems and Related Assessment Procedures

Emergencies

The branch is involved in clean-up of pollution from shipping and acts as a resource agency for marine pollution incidents from other sources. It evaluates, acquires, and maintains the Coast Guard's pollution countermeasures equipment and regularly provides exercises for the Coast Guard and other personnel.

Manuals

- National Training Plan: Coast Guard Emergencies
- Arctic Marine Emergency Plan
- National Marine Emergency Plan

SURFACE TRANSPORTATION

Administration

The administrator directs the formulation and implementation of surface transportation policies and programs, and manages all operational, developmental, and regulatory activities of Transport Canada relating to surface transportation. It is also responsible for the operation of the Motor Vehicle Test Centre at Blainville, Québec.

The administration is divided into five directorates: highway transportation and surface policy; road safety and motor vehicle regulation; water transportation assistance; railway and grain transportation; and railway passenger transportation.

Information about any of these directorates may be obtained from

Office of the Administrator
Canadian Surface Transportation Administration
Department of Transport
Place de Ville
Ottawa, Ontario
K1A 0N5

Highway Transportation and Surface Policy

This directorate develops, implements and monitors policies and programs affecting the surface modes of transport, and in particular those to improve the capability and efficiency of highway transportation. It also develops and implements urban transportation policies and programs and administers the Railway Relocation and Crossing Act as it pertains to the Department.

Road Safety and Motor Vehicle Regulation

This directorate co-ordinates federal government activities in motor vehicle and traffic safety in order to reduce deaths, severity of injuries, health impairment, property damage, and fuel consumption. Principal responsibilities include development and enforcement of mandatory safety standards for motor vehicles, development of road safety countermeasures, liaison with motor vehicle agencies in other countries, management of the Motor Vehicle Test Centre and fuel economy programs, and participation in co-operative federal-provincial road safety programs.

Water Transportation Assistance

This directorate establishes policies, plans and programs for all aspects of water transportation assistance and associated services, over inland and coastal waters as required by the federal government.

Railways and Grain Transportation

This directorate initiates, develops, implements and monitors policies and programs for the grain transportation and handling system, and for the improvement of the capability, efficiency and safety of railway systems.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

---

Railway Passenger Transportation

This directorate initiates, develops, implements and monitors policies and programs to improve the capability and efficiency of the railway passenger program.

Finance and Administration Division

This division co-ordinates financial, administrative and planning functions for the Surface Administration and, administers private rail cars for government.

TREASURY BOARD (SECRETARIAT)

Background

The Treasury Board is a committee of the federal Cabinet. Its President is the chairman of the committee, and its members include the Minister of Finance and four other Cabinet Ministers who are appointed by the Governor-in-Council. The Board was created by Order-in-Council in 1867 and received statutory approval in 1869. Its Secretariat was part of the Department of Finance until 1966, when it became a separate institution.

Overall Responsibilities

The Board's responsibilities, as set out in the Financial Administration Act, include financial management, personnel management and central administration of the Public Service of Canada. It is also responsible for the application of the Official Languages Act within the Public Service and serves as the employer for negotiating federal Public Service collective agreements under the Public Service Staff Relations Act.

Organization

The Treasury Board is served in these functions principally by the Treasury Board Secretariat, which is divided into five branches: program, personnel policy, staff relations, administrative policy and official languages. In addition, there are three offices — the Office of the Secretary, the Communications Division and the Submission Control Unit.

The Secretary is the deputy minister, who directs the work of the institution. He advises the President and the Board on all areas concerning the organization and management of the Public Service under the Board's jurisdiction. The Office of the Secretary is also responsible for the co-ordination of requests received under the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act for information held by the Treasury Board Secretariat.

The Communications Division provides the President, the Secretary and the five branches with the services, advice and expertise they require in the area of public relations, communications and publishing.

The Submission Control Unit acts as a central clearing point for all submissions received by the Board. Submissions are departmental requests for program expenditure or administrative personnel or other authorities that the Treasury Board is empowered to grant. The unit maintains files on past decisions of the Board.

Access Procedures

All requests for information under the Access to Information Act should be addressed to

Administrative Policy Branch

The branch is responsible for the development, implementation and monitoring of policies, regulations and suggested practices in a wide range of administrative matters. These policies pertain to activities of the Government of Canada in areas of real property, materiel, employee services, information management, and regulatory reform. Their purpose is to ensure honesty and prudence in the acquisition and use of administrative inputs throughout the Public Service and to guide departmental managers in the efficient and effective use of resources in support of departmental programs.

The branch is also responsible for both the Incentive Award Board Secretariat, which administers the Incentive Award Program for the Public Service, and the Common Services Review Board Secretariat, which supports an independent advisory committee providing advice on the resolution of Common Services issues.

Manuals

- Administrative Policy Manual — outlines government policy on real property, materiel, services, information management, and general administrative services

Policy Development and Revision Division

This division is responsible for all administrative policy development and revision in the areas of real property and accommodation, procurement, materiel, services, information management, communications and the Federal Identity Program. Officers of the division also draft regulations, directives and guidelines for the use of government institutions and assist government institutions generally in organizing themselves for implementation of the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act.

Policy Implementation and Review Division

This division provides advice on the implementation of administrative policies and review of Treasury Board submissions in the areas of materiel, services, information, real property and accommodation. It is also responsible for monitoring departmental implementation of administrative policies and matters relating to access to information and privacy.

Planning and Evaluation Division

This division is responsible for the Administrative Policy Manual. It provides advice on policy implementation mechanisms, develops and co-ordinates the branch's management information systems, and provides planning and analytical support to the branch. Policy evaluation is a primary function of this division, as is the Technical Advisory Group, which assists departments and agencies in carrying out socioeconomic impact studies on all new major government regulations in the areas of health, safety and fairness.

Office of the Co-ordinator, Regulatory Reform

This office was established to advise the President of the Treasury Board of Canada on regulatory reform matters and to assist in the administration and co-ordination of the government's regulatory reform program, approved by Cabinet in October 1980. The reform program focuses on three areas: legislative review and housecleaning; reform of regulatory processes; and deregulation of selected industries or activities.

Official Languages Branch

This branch develops and communicates government policies and programs for the application of the Official Languages Act within departments and agencies of the Government of Canada, as well as judicial, quasi-judicial or administrative bodies or Crown corporations, and to monitor, audit and evaluate their implementation and effectiveness.

In accordance with the revised policies on official languages in the Public Service issued in September 1977, the branch is responsible for producing general guidelines and criteria to provide overall direction to departments and agencies; providing technical and specialized assistance as required; reviewing the annual plans and reports of departments for their official languages program and recommending appropriate action; auditing and evaluating departmental official languages activities; monitoring the overall progress of the Public Service towards the achievement of official languages objectives; managing the Official Languages Information System (OLIS); consulting employee representatives through the Official Languages Committee of the National Joint Council; and preparing an annual report to the government on the status and evaluation of official languages policies and programs in the Public Service.

The branch is also responsible for informing federal employees and other interested parties on the Official Languages Act and the government's official languages policies and programs.

To carry out its mandate, the branch is divided into a secretariat and three divisions: operations, policy, and evaluation and audit.

Secretariat

The secretariat provides controls, co-ordination and support services to organizational elements of the branch in the areas of manpower and financial resources; processes departmental submissions; develops and publishes the Branch Operations Manual; and monitors the service-wide costs of official languages programs.

The secretariat also has a documentation and reference centre to provide a quick, up-to-date information service to the branch, departments, agencies and corporations as well as to the general public on matters related to the Official Languages Act and government policies and programs on official languages.

Operations Division

The division advises departments and agencies on the implementation of official languages programs, which includes the preparation of annual plans and progress reports. It also analyzes these and other submissions to the Secretariat from departments, and on the basis of its analysis recommends acceptance, modification or rejection of the submissions. The division analyzes and interprets policy, particularly program operations policy in departments. It is divided into three groups; each is responsible for a specific number of departments, agencies and corporations.

Policy Division

The division formulates and systematically interprets the government's official language policies; analyzes major issues arising as a result of the application of these policies in various departments; formulates proposed policy amendments or revisions; and prepares major reviews and assessments of the impact of these policies, which include an annual report to Cabinet. These functions also include participation in the analysis of annual departmental plans to determine their consistency with current policies.

The division undertakes extensive liaison with other branches and central agencies to ensure the co-ordination of the official languages policies with other related personnel or language policies. It is divided into two groups: Policy Interpretation and Adjustment, and Policy Analysis.

Evaluation and Audit Division

This division defines appropriate indicators of program performance; analyzes data collected through the Official Languages Information System, other reporting media, analysts and audit team observations; conducts special studies; and examines trends and program effectiveness. The audit function consists of monitoring the information system data and ensuring compliance with policies through on-site audits in various departments and agencies; corrective measures are recommended where necessary.

The division also plans and establishes the systems and procedures required to give effect to government policies and to evaluate their implementation effectiveness. It is divided into three groups: Evaluation and Special Studies, Audit, and Procedures.

Personnel Policy Branch

The role of this branch is to develop, communicate and provide for the implementation and evaluation of the personnel policies, systems and methods necessary to ensure that the human resources needed to carry out government programs effectively are determined, obtained at competitive cost, managed and developed efficiently. The interests and the individual and collective rights of employees are duly taken into account.

The branch's specific areas of responsibility include general personnel management; classification, pay and human resource information system; human resources; and planning, evaluation and policy development.

Manuals

- Personnel Management Manual

Human Resources Division

The division develops and implements personnel policies and activities to ensure that the Public Service is as representative of the Canadian population as is possible and that women, indigenous people, the disabled, visible minorities and other designated groups have equality of access to jobs and opportunity for advancement in the federal Public Service. The division also supports the principle of daycare services for children of public servants. It develops and evaluates affirmative action techniques and models and advises departments on their application. It also acts as consultant to departments on the training, development, monitoring and evaluation of quality of worklife projects, and ensures the human element is considered as new technologies and productivity improvements are introduced. The division develops human resource planning policy to help government acquire and maintain a productive workforce. The division ensures the development and dissemination of training policies needed to develop human resources. It also co-ordinates human rights issues and administers the personal harassment policy which aims to correct this problem within the Public Service.

General Personnel Management Division

The division develops and advises departments on policies and programs in the areas of pensions, benefits and universally applied allowances; compensation, classification, complement control, and working conditions for the management category and excluded groups; work force adjustment; performance review and employee appraisal; personnel administrator development; and occupational health and safety. The division provides advice on organizational issues of concern to the Treasury Board, and also provides co-ordination and advisory services to the branch in such areas as legislation, authorities and policies, in addition to administering the Personnel Management Manual.

Manuals

- Personnel — A Manager's Handbook
- Handbook on Occupational Health and Safety
- Personnel Management Manual

Classification, Pay and Human Resource Information Systems Division

The division provides advice on organizational issues of concern to the Treasury Board; reviewing, developing and maintaining classification policies and procedures; co-ordinating training programs in the areas of classification and staff relations; processing of complaints filed under the equal pay provisions (Section II) of the Canadian Human Rights Act; recommending policies and implementing the personnel management information system; recommending and implementing policies for pay systems and co-ordinating pay administration in the Public Service.

Manuals

- Pay Administration Manual
- Data Element Dictionary

Planning, Evaluation and Policy Development Division

The division co-ordinates and develops with specialist divisions of the branch and through the branch management team, the revision, establishment and integration of the various personnel policy elements into a balanced and cohesive government-wide system of personnel policy. It reviews the design integrity and effectiveness of the total Public Service personnel policy system and develops new approaches to personnel policy, practice or procedure for an effective and responsible personnel policy system. The division also manages the Temporary Assignment Program (TAP).

Staff Relations Branch

The branch is responsible for conducting labour negotiations on the employer's behalf in the federal Public Service as described in Schedule I, Part I, Public Service Staff Relations Act (PSSRA); and, in the process, for carrying out consultations with unions at the national level and in the National Joint Council; and for engaging in effective two-way communication with departmental management. The branch conducts, administers and advises on collective bargaining, negotiations, consultations, exclusions, designations, grievances and adjudication, certification, and employee-employer relations training. It is also responsible for compensation analysis for groups subject to collective bargaining, compensation determination for the Canadian Forces and the RCMP, and the conduct of various research, analytical and statistical services for the Personnel Policy Branch (PPB).

Manuals

- Index of Adjudication Decisions
- Index of Managerial and Confidential Exclusions
- Negotiations and Settlement Report

Program Branch

The branch is responsible for the following functions

- the provision of analyses and recommendations to the Treasury Board to assist it in decisions on departmental Multi-year Operational Plan proposals, the Estimates (both Main and Supplementary) and Treasury Board submissions; the records on submissions other than operational plans and estimates are maintained by the Submission Control Unit;

- the provision of support to the President of the Treasury Board in his capacity as a member of every Cabinet committee, in the form of information and advice on departmental submissions to Cabinet; and the operation of the decision-making and resource allocation system (the recording and reporting of the expenditure plans of the government, including the resource implications of all Cabinet decisions and the status of commitments on a multi-year basis);
- the production of multi-year forecasts of spending requirements and the reporting of these forecasts to the Priorities and Planning Committee as part of its review of fiscal plans;
- the development and maintenance of systems and the issue of the instructions and directives necessary to meet the above requirements.

To fulfil these responsibilities, branch staff is required to maintain close working relationships with departmental managers and officials of the Department of Finance and the Privy Council Office.

Manuals

- Policy and Expenditure Management System

Budget Co-ordination Divisions

The Budget Co-ordination Divisions include the Estimates Division and Expenditure Analysis Division.

Estimates Division

This division issues the manuals of instructions on the preparation of multi-year operational plan submissions. It compiles central records for estimates and operational plan submissions, Treasury Board Secretariat recommendations and decisions on those submissions. These central records form the main sources of information on government expenditures, commitments and plans. The division also keeps the accounts for expenditure allotments and for centrally financed votes.

The Estimates Division has a major operational role in the technical production of main and supplementary estimates, including advice to analysts in matters of vote wording, expenditure coding and allotment control. The division is also responsible for scheduling, preparing and documenting the Estimates Act and Appropriation Act and supporting the President at the tabling of these Acts and the related press conferences.

Expenditure Analysis Division

The division is responsible for the central expenditure control function that the branch carries out on behalf of the government. Periodic detailed projections of government spending based on alternative economic and government policy scenarios are prepared in co-operation with the program divisions; analyses of historical and projected future spending patterns are then submitted for Cabinet consideration. Once the expenditure framework has been established, the division is responsible for monitoring subsequent Treasury Board, Cabinet Committee and Cabinet decisions with expenditure implications, changes in the forecast requirements for statutory programs, and the effects of any special spending control initiatives such as expenditure reductions or directed lapses. The division prepares weekly reports for the Treasury Board and the policy committees of Cabinet on the status of expenditure commitments within the approved framework and on expected total outlays for the current and future years. These records are maintained on an "envelope" basis (corresponding to particular policy sectors) as well as at the aggregate level. The above-mentioned central expenditure control duties require a close working relationship with the Department of Finance (particularly the Fiscal Policy Division),

TREASURY BOARD (SECRETARIAT)

Social Development, and the Secretariats of the Privy Council Office, which support the policy committees.

The division co-ordinates special branch activities that cross program division lines, in particular, advice to the President of the Treasury Board and the Minister of Finance on expenditure issues relating to the annual fiscal planning exercise, which entails the collection, consolidation and analysis of detailed information or recommendations from the Program Divisions; the presentation of alternatives for consideration; and analysis and comparison of provincial and international expenditure trends. The division also prepares all related Cabinet documents and the Government Expenditure Plan "Part I" which is tabled with the estimates. It supports the President at the tabling of these estimates and the related press conferences.

The division designs, develops, implements and operates electronic data processing systems to management specifications. These systems are based on the budgetary cycle of operational plan and reviews of estimates and other controls or analytical requirements of the branch.

Program Divisions

The Program Divisions are responsible for assessing the resource implications of departmental policies and programs and for providing advice on these subjects to the secretary, the President and the Treasury Board.

The divisions also communicate to departments the policies, directives and decisions emanating from the Treasury Board that affect the use and level of resources and monitor the implementation of the decisions as required. Interdepartmental consultation on policy and program proposals to avoid duplication of effort or conflicts in mandates is also initiated by these divisions.

The specific responsibilities of the Program Divisions include

- analysis of the multi-year operational plan submissions from departments and agencies and the development of recommendations on the allocation of resources;
- analysis of and advice on departmental submissions to the Board, which include requests for additional financial or personnel resources, proposals for the classification of accounts, authority to levy fees, and approval of specific capital projects (records on these submissions are maintained by the Submission Control Unit);
- analysis of Cabinet documents, including the preparation of briefing material and recommendations for the President of the Treasury Board;
- participation in interdepartmental meetings on the development or implementation of government policies and programs;
- monitoring of the implementation of government policies and programs by departments;
- assessment of the efficiency of departmental programs and operations;
- co-ordination of resource proposals between departments and agencies as required to minimize duplication and to ensure, where possible, that appropriate interdepartmental consultation has taken place before proposals are placed before Ministers; and
- maintenance of liaison with the Privy Council Office, the Department of Finance, the Office of the Comptroller General and other agencies as well as other branches of the Secretariat in the discharge of their responsibilities.

Crown Corporations Directorate

The directorate was created to act as the focal point within the central agencies for the government's relations with Crown corporations and as such is jointly managed by the Treasury Board Secretariat and the Department of Finance.

It was established through the integration of the resources responsible for Crown corporations activities in the government finance division of the Department of Finance and the Crown corporations division of the Treasury Board Secretariat.

This new directorate is a "common service unit" for both the Treasury Board Secretariat and the Department of Finance with regard to Crown corporations. It reports jointly to the assistant deputy minister, Economic Programs and Government Finance Branch, and to the deputy secretary, Program Branch, Treasury Board Secretariat.

The directorate has primary responsibility for advising the President and the Treasury Board on the financial requirements of Crown corporations and their subsidiaries and for the development of policy (and legislation) governing Crown corporations in general.

Specific responsibilities of the division include

- the provision of advice and recommendations to the President and the Treasury Board on estimates and other submissions to the Board on Crown corporations;
- the provision of advice and recommendations to the President and the Treasury Board on the operating budgets, capital budgets and corporate plans of Crown-owned corporations;
- the analysis of Cabinet documents on Crown corporations, including the preparation of briefing material and recommendations for the President of the Board;
- the development of policy (and, periodically, legislation) on matters of general applicability to Crown corporations, such as control by and accountability to government, as well as methods and frequency of reporting; and
- the undertaking of special projects from time to time at the direction of Cabinet or the Treasury Board, such as the valuation of designated Crown corporations or the acquisition and disposition of such corporations.

Background

Of the more than 600,000 Canadian men and women who served in the First World War, approximately 173,000 were wounded and 66,655 gave their lives. In addition, 1,649 men from Newfoundland (which had not yet joined Confederation) died in that war.

During the Second World War, over one million Canadians served their country. Of these, more than 44,000 were killed and approximately 55,000 were wounded. Newfoundland fatalities numbered 714.

During the Korean Conflict, more than 26,000 Canadians served with the United Nations Peacekeeping Force. The dead numbered 516 and 1,200 were wounded.

In 1985, the number of Canadian veterans is approximately 675,700 male and 32,300 female veterans.

The names of Canadians who were killed in these wars, and also the Boer War, are recorded in the Books of Remembrance. The original volumes, including the Newfoundland Book of Remembrance, are open to public view in the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill in Ottawa. Copies are retained in every province.

Overall Responsibilities

The Department's mission is to manage special programs for veterans and other specified persons to compensate for death and disabilities incurred in the service of Canada, or enable them to be self-sufficient and participative members of the community, and to otherwise perpetuate recognition of wartime sacrifice and its contribution to Canada.

The purpose of some original rehabilitation programs, such as re-establishment credits, was successfully fulfilled and they were phased out. Departmental responsibilities continue to include the administration of pensions and war veterans' allowances, medical treatment, counselling, advocacy, and educational assistance to children of the war dead, as well as commemoration of those who served their country during wartime.

Today, most veterans are approaching the end of their working life, and programs are being tailored to meet their needs as they approach old age.

Laws and Regulations

The Department was established by the Department of Veterans Affairs Act R.S.C. 1970, Chapter V-1.

The duties, powers and functions of the Minister are set forth in general terms in Section 5 of the Department of Veterans Affairs Act. The Minister's authority to make regulations in a number of areas, subject to the approval of the Governor-in-Council, is set forth in Section 6. The series of regulations made under the Department of Veterans Affairs Act are as follows:

- Assistance Fund (War Veterans Allowances and Civilian War Allowances) Regulations — P.C. 1965-1213 — June 30, 1965 as amended
- Canadian National Institute for the Blind for training and after-care — P.C. 131-4861 — Sept. 14, 1951 as amended

Organization

The Department of Veterans Affairs has two operational branches: Veterans Services Branch and Veterans Land Administration.

The Veterans Affairs Portfolio consists of the Department of Veterans Affairs and four associated agencies: the Canadian Pension Commission, the Pension Review Board, the Bureau of Pensions Advocates, and the War Veterans Allowance Board, reporting to Parliament through the Minister of Veterans Affairs.

The Department of Veterans Affairs was created by Act of Parliament in 1944. Previously the care of veterans was the responsibility of the Military Hospitals Commission, the Department of Soldiers Civil Re-Establishment (created during the First World War), and then the Department of Pensions and National Health, established in 1928.

Towards the end of the Second World War the Department of Veterans Affairs was formed to oversee expanded rehabilitation programs.

The Canadian Pension Commission was formed in 1933 as the successor to the Board of Pension Commissioners that had been in operation since 1919.

The War Veterans Allowances Board was established in 1936, when it replaced the War Veterans Allowance Committee.

The Pension Review Board and the Bureau of Pensions Advocates were both created in 1971 as a result of amendments to the Pension Act.

Veterans Services Branch

The Veterans Services Branch administers a broad range of economic, medical and social services benefits to qualified veterans and special categories of civilians, and their families. War Veterans Allowance and Civilian War Allowance are income support benefits intended to ensure that family income does not fall below a level provided for under legislation. Assistance Fund grants are available to allowance recipients to meet emergency needs. Pensioned orphans of veterans or members of the Armed Forces are eligible for financial assistance to pursue post secondary education.

Medical, surgical and dental treatment, including special equipment and long term care, are provided to eligible veterans and other qualified persons. Miscellaneous allowance benefits are payable in certain circumstances under the Veterans Treatment Regulations.

Veterans Land Administration

The Veterans Land Administration (VLA) manages property purchase agreements between the Director, VLA, and veterans and their heirs. More than 140,000 veterans have been settled under the Veterans Land Act since its inception nearly 35 years ago. The final lending deadline was March 31, 1977.

Veterans Land Administration offices are located in Saint John, New Brunswick; Montréal, Québec; Willowdale, Ontario; Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

CANADIAN PENSION COMMISSION

The Canadian Pension Commission is charged, under the Pension Act, with the responsibility to administer the legislation in such a way as to recognize the obligation of the people and government of Canada to provide compensation to those members of the Armed Forces who have been disabled or have died as a result of military service. This Act also provides for the payment of pensions for surviving dependants, and allowances for exceptional incapacity, attendance and clothing. The Commission also administers Parts I to X of the Civilian War Pensions and Allowances Act which provides for similar awards for disability or death attributable to service during the Second World War in certain organizations or types of employment which were closely associated with the Armed Forces such as Merchant Seamen or Auxiliary Services personnel; the Compensation for Former Prisoners of War Act which provides for the payment of compensation for former prisoners of war, evaders and escapees, and their dependants; and the Halifax Relief Commission Pension

Continuation Act which authorizes pension payments to certain persons injured in the Halifax explosion of 1917. As well, the Commission adjudicates on pension claims under various other acts, orders and regulations, such as the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act and the Flying Accidents Compensation Regulations.

Canadian Pension Commission district offices are located in St. John's, Newfoundland; Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island; Halifax, Nova Scotia; Saint John, New Brunswick; Ste. Foy, Montréal, Québec; Ottawa, Toronto, North Bay, Peterborough, Hamilton, London, Kingston, Ontario; Winnipeg, Manitoba; Saskatoon, Regina, Saskatchewan; Calgary, Edmonton, Alberta; Vancouver, Victoria, British Columbia.

Laws and Regulations

The statutes administered by the Canadian Pension Commission are as follows:

- Pension Act R.S.C., 1970, Chapter P-7, as amended
- Civilian War Pensions and Allowances Act (Parts I to X) R.S.C. Chapter C-20, as amended
- The Compensation for Former Prisoners of War Act S.C. Chapter C-95
- The Halifax Relief Commission Pension Continuation Act S.C. Chapter C-88

The Commission also adjudicates or makes recommendations on claims under the following:

- The Flying Accidents Compensation Regulations, P.C. 1972-2613, dated November 9, 1972
- Supplementary Pensions under the Women's Royal Naval Services and the South African Military Nursing Service (Benefits) Act R.S.C. 1952 Chapter 297

Background

The Yukon Territory Water Board is a nine-member quasi-judicial body appointed by and responsible to the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. Its responsibility is to manage and protect the Yukon's surface and sub-surface water resources.

Three of the nine appointed members are chosen officials from three federal government departments with specific interests in protecting the water resources in the Yukon. These departments are Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Environment Canada, and Health and Welfare Canada. Of the remaining six members, three are nominated by the government of the Yukon Territory for appointment by the Minister; the other three are appointed at the discretion of the Minister. This selection procedure ensures that the Board is representative of Yukoners in general. The chairman of the Board is appointed by the Minister.

Laws and Regulations

- Northern Inland Waters Act, 1970, Regulations approved by Governor-in-Council in 1972

Overall Responsibilities

Under the authority of the Northern Inland Waters Act, the Board regulates the use of water through the issuance of Water Use Licences.

Water Use Licences are issued for hard rock mining hydropower generation, municipal use in some cases, placer gold mining and other industrial purposes. A licence application received by the Board is reviewed at a public hearing, and advertised in the Canada Gazette and local newspapers; at the hearing the case is presented by the applicant before the Board; in addition, members of the public who have submitted a written notice of intention to intervene before the hearing may present arguments for or against the issuance of a licence to the applicant.

If no intervenors come forward before the date set for the public hearing, the hearing is cancelled, the Board considers the application without public input, and a licence is either issued or denied. A licence drafted by the Board generally contains terms and conditions which reflect a balance between protection of the water resources and their exploitation as proposed by the applicant. The licence is then sent to the Minister whose signature renders it legally effective.

The regional manager, Water Resources, Yukon Region, Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, enforces the terms and conditions of Water Use Licences. The manager and his staff also serve as technical advisors to the Board.
